Attendance up for Homecoming

Husson alumni gathered on the school's Bangor campus Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 where they honored their own, held class reunions, discussed the future of the college, and elected new alumni officers.

Outgoing president of the Husson College Alumni Association, Richard Newcomb, '80, said that attendance was up for the annual two-day event.

James Hathorne, '68, who was elected president of the association, told the group at an awards luncheon that "the momentum has started" for the alumni organization and talked of new plans in the works to increase participation in college and alumni activities.

Anne Roberts Spencer, '83, was elected the first vice president of the alumni association, Raynald Martin, '57, was elected the second vice president, Evelyn Lutz, '83, was elected secretary and Roger Daigle, '72, was elected treasurer.

In a meeting Homecoming weekend that drew alumni and Husson students, President William H. Beardsley and Provost Maureen Evans discussed Husson's future. The informal presentation and discussion centered on various campus issues, curriculum concerns and other challenges to the college.

A bright spot Oct. 1 for Husson alumni was a Homecoming match up between Husson and the undefeated University of Maine Farmington. Husson shutout UMF 1-0.

Alumni officers said two highlights of the weekend's activities were the induction ceremonies for the Husson Sports Hall of Fame and the awards luncheon during which eight others were honored.

Pearl Banks, of Liberty; Franklin L. Beal, of Ellsworth; Walter M. Edwards, of Cranston, R.I.; the late Margaret H. Gillis of East Millinocket; Phil Harris, of Skowhegan; Dr. Ronald I. Soucie, of Bangor; and Shirley Wilson Whitney, of Kenduskeag were inducted into the Husson College Sports Hall of Fame.

In that sometimes emotional Hall of Fame ceremony each athlete paid tribute to coaches and others at Husson after receiving their awards.

Charleyne A. Gilbert, a high school educator; Madalyn Jordan, a retired Husson professor; Edward Hennessey, Jr., the president of Machias Savings Bank; Claudette G. Mason, an owner of a court reporting firm; Arthur E. McKenzie, the senior vice president of the Bangor Publishing Company; Raymond L. Page, a certified public accountant; Tom Sawyer, Jr., the president of Sawyer Environmental Recovery Facilities; and Irene Shannon, the former director of the Eastern Maine Medical Center School of Nursing, were presented awards during luncheon Oct. 1.

Arthur McKenzie - 1948

McKenzie, who is also the general manager, treasurer and member of the board of directors of the Bangor Publishing Company, was presented Husson's Outstanding Alumnus Award. The Bangor Publishing Company publishes the Bangor Daily News.

McKenzie, who lives in East Holden, graduated from Husson in 1948 and he joined the Bangor Daily News Accounting Department in 1951. He has since worked as office manager, assistant treasurer and business manager at the Bangor Daily News. He is a trustee at Husson College, a director of Eastern Maine Healthcare, a Bangor Kiwanian and an active member of the Columbia Street Baptist Church. He is a past president of the Greater Bangor Chamber of Commerce and served for several years as a trustee of Eastern Maine Medical Center. He has participated in fund drives and served on the board of directors of many greater Bangor charitable organizations.

Charleyne Gilbert - 1970

Gilbert, an educator at Westbrook High School, received the Business Teacher Education Award. She graduated from Husson with a bachelor of science in secretarial studies in 1970 and has been teaching since 1969. She has written numerous articles.

She was the dean of students at Higgins Classical Institute in Charleston, Maine, where she taught for three years. She is a past president of the Business Education Association of Maine and the president-elect of the Maine Vocational Association. She is a member of the International Listening Association and a member of the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards, a 64-member board she said is "designed to identify what professional teachers should know and what professional teachers should be able to do." Gilbert was also the vice president of the American Vocational Association's national board. She was recently named the Maine Business Education Teacher of the Year by the Business Education Association of Maine.

Madalyn Jordan - 1957

Jordan received the Service Award, an honor given in recognition of her contributions to Husson. She graduated from Husson in 1957 with a degree in business teacher education. After she earned her master's degree in 1960 at the University of Maine at Orono, she began teaching at Husson where she stayed until her retirement this year. She earned a certificate of advanced study in 1976 at the University of Maine.

While at Husson she taught nearly every subject within her department. She advised two sororities and was for several years the social director for Husson. She also was a member of the Presidential and the Curriculum committees.

Before coming to Husson she worked for the FBI in Washington, D.C., taught at Erskine Academy in China for a year and at Hampden Academy for two years.

Edward Hennessey - 1970

Hennessey, who was presented the Business Administration Award, was the salutatorian of his class at Husson in 1970 when he graduated. After graduation he opted to return to Washington County where he began work as a teller and management trainee at Machias Savings Bank. Since that time he has been the assistant treasurer, the treasurer, the assistant vice president, the executive vice president, the senior loan officer and, in May of 1986, he was elected the president, chief executive officer, director, and clerk of the bank.

He is the president of the Down East Health Care Foundation, is actively involved in Machias Area Little League and other community activities. He's also been involved in the farming of wild blueberries since his return to the Machias area.

Claudette G. Mason - 1977

Mason, an owner of Mason & Lockhart, a free-lance court reporting firm in Falmouth, was presented the Office Administration Award.

Mason graduated in 1974 with an associate in science in business and returned to get her bachelor of science degree. She was named the "Outstanding Woman" in secretarial science in 1977, the year she graduated.

She joined the firm of Downing & Peters Reporting Associates where she stayed for five years before forming her present company with her partner. Mason & Lockhart now employs nine reporters and three support personnel.

Page, who received the Accounting Award, graduated in 1963 with a bachelor of science degree in accounting. He moved to Boston where he began work with Arthur Young and Company. His career was interrupted when he was drafted in 1964 but he became an audit specialist in the army. He returned to Arthur Young and Company where he eventually became the audit manager. In 1971 he decided to start his present practice, Raymond L. Page, C.P.A., P.C.

He received his master of science in taxation from Bentley College. For more than 20 years he has been a member of the Lions Club. He has also been the chairman of the Finance Committee of the Water Supply District in Acton, Mass. He has worked with the youth hockey, little league and the scouting programs in Acton. He was also the chairman of the board of a local mutual savings bank, Assabet Savings Bank, for five years until May 1, 1988. He is still a board member of that institution which has now merged with another bank to become the fourth largest mutual savings bank, the Middlesex Savings Bank, in the state.

Tom Sawyer

Sawyer, who was presented the Public Service Award, is the president and treasurer of seven companies, including Sawyer Environmental Recovery Facilities, the largest solid waste management firm in the state of Maine. The companies employ 150 people in Maine.

Sawyer is a Bangor City Councilor, the director of the 1988 United Way Campaign for the Penobscot Valley, is a director for the Bangor Educational Foundation and a Husson trustee.

He served for ten years in leadership positions with the Bangor Jaycees, for eleven years on the Greater Bangor Chamber of Commerce and for nine years as a director of Maine Blue Cross and Blue Shield, serving for one year as the chairman of its audit committee.

Sawyer attended the University of Maine and graduated cum laude from Denver University with a bachelor's degree in education.

Irene Shannon

Irene Shannon, who received the Nursing Award, was the director of the Eastern Maine Medical Center School of Nursing from1961 to 1982. She helped plan the transition of the EMMC School of Nursing, a diploma School, to the Husson College/Eastern Maine Medical Center Baccalaureate Nursing Program.

She graduated from the Eastern Maine General Hospital School of Nursing in 1937, from the University of Maine with a bachelor of arts degree in liberal arts and nursing in 1950, and from Columbia University with a masters in nursing education.

Since she became a head nurse in 1939, after two years as a general staff nurse, she has held leadership positions in nursing. She was the Educational Director at the Eastern Maine Medical Center from 1956 to 1961.

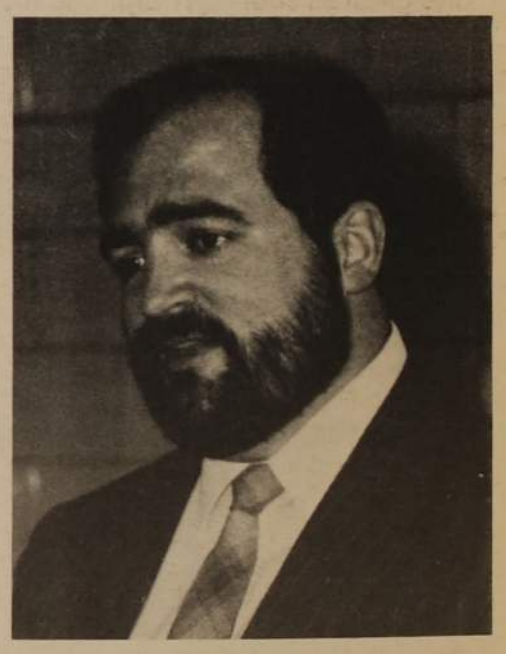

She now serves on several committees including the Salvation Army Advisory Board and was chairman of the School of Nursing Faculty Organization. In addition to being a volunteer for the Penquis Retired Senior Volunteer Program, she is a member of its advisory council and the chair of its recognition committee.

Coach MacGregor finds new life with Braves

By Steve Eaton
Ledger Editor

Coach Bruce MacGregor is born again every September.

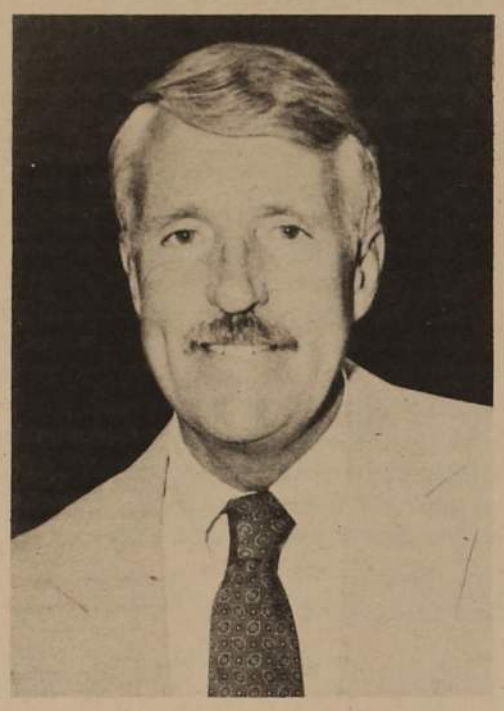

It is in September his basketball team begins to come together. To hear him describe it, fall has got to be one of the best times of the year. It is a time for dreaming.

"We never are certain what the year will bring," MacGregor said. "In September we begin to work together and set our goals. We start with a clean slate. Putting together a basketball team is like life itself. Each season is a microcosm of life itself."

And for MacGregor, he has lived more than one successful life. This year he was listed as the "winningest" coach in New England and is ranked ninth in the United States by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletes. He now has a win loss tally of 377-134, giving him more wins than any other collegiate basketball coach in Maine's history.

Three times he's taken his basketball team to nationals. When he coached golf, twice the team went to nationals, and when he coached baseball, the team won the New England Championship but district officials opted not to send a team to national competition. Seven times MacGregor has been named the coach of the year for either Maine or New England.

For four years, the Braves tallied the greatest scoring margins in the

Bruce MacGregor

NAIA. One year Husson had the best field goal percentage and twice the team had the highest average score in the nation. Husson is ranked 15th in the country by the NAIA when team records for the last fifteen years are compared. Last season the Braves made the playoffs and ended the season with a 20-9 record. For eleven out of the last fifteen years the Braves have at least 20 wins a season.

"Each year we try to create a team atmosphere and chemistry," MacGregor said. "Even if we are not as talented as another group, we know that if we can get it all together, we'll win."

MacGregor often talks of the atmosphere of the team and the chemistry. He said that charting the strategies, the offensive and defensive plans, are the easier parts of coaching. The more complex part is learning how to deal with people or, as MacGregor put it, knowing "which people you pat on the back and which people you kick in the rear."

MacGregor definitely prefers the pat on the back.

"You have to be positive and tell people what they do well," he said. "You've got to make sure people know that they are appreciated and that they know their good qualities."

MacGregor tries to bring out those qualities and when he's successful, the wins come consistently.

MacGregor said he loves to go to practice.

"In practice you teach," he said. "I enjoy teaching the game of basketball. When I step out on that floor, it's almost like therapy for me."

Husson players interviewed said that Coach MacGregor often practices with the team. A few told stories of the coach clowning around and doing impersonations of various players by imitating their style during practice.

MacGregor credits his success to the "good people" who have played for Husson. He admits, however, that he works hard to find those "good people." And MacGregor's schedule doesn't give him much free time for recruiting.

In addition to the five courses he teaches as a tenured professor, last year he was the Faculty Forum president, was on the Husson Board of Trustees and was the chairman of the Promotion and Tenure Committee. He's been reelected the chairman of NAIA District 5, New England. He also runs a summer basketball school and coordinates many of Husson's summer school activities. As a representative of the U. S. State Department, MacGregor has put on basketball clinics in six countries, including Djibouti and Somalia in Africa. He has also done clinics in Canada, England and Scotland at the request of the NAIA and the NCAA.

"When I step out on that floor, it's almost like therapy for me."
—MacGregor

During the basketball season MacGregor said most of his free evening hours go to recruiting and when the season is over he goes out of state in search of talent.

"I usually go down to Connecticut, New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey," he said. "I go see the athletic directors and coaches while the schools are still in session and I get the names of athletes I can contact."

MacGregor said he becomes attached to the people he recruits

Seven athletes inducted into Husson Sports Hall of Fame

Seven athletes were inducted into the Husson College Sports Hall of Fame Oct. 1.

Pearl Banks, of Liberty; Franklin L. Beal, of Ellsworth; Walter M. Edwards, of Cranston, R.I.; the late Margaret H. Gillis of East Millinocket; Phil Harris, of Skowhegan; Dr. Ronald I. Soucie, of Bangor; and Shirley Wilson Whitney, of Kenduskeag were honored at ceremonies held during Husson's Homecoming activities.

Pearl Banks - 1941

Banks, whose maiden name was Carruthers, still remembers her days playing basketball in the 1940-41 season.

"At that time we had about 75 students in school and we knew everybody," Banks said. "We also had the 'Chief' (Chesley Husson) for a teacher and we were able to visit and talk with him."

It was Clara Swan's second year as a coach at Husson and the team only lost one game that season. Banks was co-captain of the team with Beatrice Park, who has already been inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Since graduation, Banks has worked a variety of jobs including ten years of administrative work for the Continental Telephone Company and several summers at Monmouth Canning Company in Liberty, Maine where she did the payrolls for the blueberry rakers.

Franklin Beal - 1935

In the 1930's the rules required a jump ball after every point scored. As a 6-foot-4 "jump center," Franklin Beal was a vital part of the team. Scores were usually low, often in the 20's and 30's. The Bangor Daily News reported that in the last game of the 1933-34 season, Beal scored 12 points in the second half and led his team to a crushing 44-22 victory over Ricker Classical Institute. The team was 15-4 that season and the next year went 16-4.

Playing basketball required some extra sacrifices back then when Husson did not have a home court to play on, Beal said. Coach Husson would take the team on the road for as long as a week at a time. Once the Chief's nine-seater car broke down at 2 a.m. in Holden. The team walked to Bangor, braving 22-degree below temperatures, Beal said.

Since 1947 Beal has owned and operated his own businesses. He was president of Fred W. Beal, Inc., a family-owned fuel oil and appliance business; built and operated Beal's Mobile Service Station on High St. in Ellsworth; he purchased and operated Bar Harbor Motor Company in Ellsworth, and is now President of Beal & Beal, Inc., a holding company.

Beal is also a director of Union Trust Company of Ellsworth, a trustee of Maine Coast Memorial Hospital and serves on the board of the Hancock County Trustees of Public Reservations. Beal was on the Ellsworth City Council and has been a member of the Ellsworth Rotary Club for 20 years.

Walter Edwards - 1976

Although Walter Edwards only played basketball for one year, he still holds records at Husson College and in the NAIA. Husson went undefeated in 1976, winning 30 games in a row.

Edwards grabbed 479 rebounds in 1976, setting a record that has yet to be bettered at Husson. He holds the record for the best field goal percentage, 61.5 percent, for a season. He was chosen the most valuable player of the year for Husson. Edwards made the first team in the New England Conference, the All-State First Team and was named the senior player of the year in New England.

He graduated in 1976 with a bachelor of science in business administration. He is now the director of the Angelo Zuccolo Recreation Center in Rhode Island and a juvenile counselor at the Rhode Island Training School. Edwards has also been a director of several events in Rhode Island such as Hershey's National Track and Field Youth Program, the Special Olympics — Summer Sports Carnival and the Pepsi/NBA Hot Shot competition.

Husson College hires four new coaches

Four new coaches have joined the good guys.

Lauree E. Gott has been named the women's basketball coach, Gott, a co-captain from 1985 to 1987 on the University of Maine varsity women's team, has been teaching elementary school in East Corinth since her graduation. Gott was a special mention in 1987 on the NCAA All-American Team, a member of the All-Region New England Team in 1987, and a member of the Seaboard All-Conference Team in 1986 and 1987.

John B. Kolasinski has been hired as the men's baseball coach and the women's soccer coach. Kolasinski, the coach of the Bangor Legion Team that finished second in Maine in 1987, has been employed as the director for residential life at Husson where he was also the assistant men's baseball coach.

Husson's young inexperienced women's soccer team struggled its first year but showed consistent improvement. The team even won a game late in the season.

The men's baseball team plays a series of non-league games each fall and Kolasinski said the team earned some impressive wins in the practice games.

Julie Green, one of Maine's leading amateur golfers, was appointed the new golf coach for Husson College.

Green, who has a six handicap, competed last summer in the Tri-State, New England and the Maine State Amateur championships. She has won numerous tournaments. Green is Husson's coordinator for student activities.

The highlight of the golf team's short season was the Husson Invitational Tournament. Husson finished fourth in the contest that drew golf teams from throughout the state.

Ron Lemin, last year's assistant volleyball coach, was named head coach this year. Lemin is an assistant scientist in the college of forest resources at the University of Maine. Although six of the eight players had not played organized volleyball before this year, Lemin said that the team consistantly improved last season.

Husson ranked seventh

Sports Illustrated has ranked Husson College seventh in the nation in the NAIA in its preseason listing.

Although MacGregor is optimistic about the season, he said he was surprised to find the Braves ranked nationally.

MacGregor, who is ranked the ninth "winingnest" NAIA coach in the United States, has had winning teams before but has never had a team ranked in the top ten by Sports Illustrated.

"I can't believe it," he said. "We're honored."

"We are also grateful that none of the other ranked teams are coming to Maine to play us," he joked.

Soccer team makes playoffs

After shutting out the undefeated University of Maine Farmington 1-0 at Homecoming, the Braves continued to mark wins.

The team squashed the Maine Maritime Academy 5-0, defeated the University of Maine Presque Isle 4-0, dropped the University of Maine Fort Kent 1-0, and blanked Anna Maria College 4-0.

Johnson State, a team that was ranked number one in the district and number 17 in the country, stopped Husson 2-0 and the University of Southern Maine took care of Husson 3-0. The Braves finished the regular season at 7-4-4.

It was UMF, however, that came back to haunt Husson. The Braves ended up facing UMF again in the NAIA District 5 Eastern Division semifinal. This time UMF turned the tables and dropped Husson from postseason play by beating the Braves 1-0.

New board appointed

A former president of the University of Maine Presque Isle, Dr. Constance H. Carlson, was appointed chairman of the Husson College Board of Trustees Nov. 7.

W. Tom Sawyer, the president of Sawyer Environmental Recovery Facilities, was appointed vice chairman of the board; and Thomas C. Johnston, an attorney with Eaton, Peabody, Bradford & Veague, was appointed clerk and a member of the board of trustees. William H. Beardsley was re-appointed president and treasurer, Maureen L. Evans was re-appointed provost and John R. Porter was re-appointed controller.

Heinsohn visits Husson College

Tom Heinsohn, former NBA basketball star and coach for the Boston Celtics, spoke at Husson in October and offered his views on the NBA and the Olympics, among other things.

Heinsohn did not offer much hope to those who would like to see an NBA all-star team in the Olympics. He said the risks of injury in Olympic competition and other factors would probably detour the investment of professional talent in the games.

Heinsohn, who is now a sportscaster, was guest lecturing at Husson as part of the Delmont N. Merrill Distinguished Lecture Series.

MacGregor's reborn

for the team. That is, in part, the reason he has stayed at Husson for 20 years.

That family sometimes becomes a part of MacGregor's real family. Betsy Webb, his oldest daughter who is now married, said that the coach has players over to the MacGregor home for dinner and has invited them over for Christmas, Easter and Thanksgiving. Webb said she thinks of some of the MacGregor's former players as brothers.

Because the season has to end in a loss or a national championship, MacGregor said the end of the year can be difficult. Last year Husson saw its hopes crushed when it lost by one point in the New England Quarterfinals.

"The biggest disappointment comes at the end of the year when it's all completed and you know it'll never be the same," the coach said, "you're not going to be looking at the same team in the locker room next year. That phase is over. We have lived and practiced, won and lost together, and it's over. But there is a new group the following year and you start the entire process all over again. I love the fall."

Warren Caruso, a senior, who started for the Braves last year, said that the coach is "loyal" to his players.

"He is a player's coach," Caruso said. "He is not only a coach; he's a friend and a father figure too."

Randy Wadleigh, who played for Husson between 1983 and 1987, echoed Caruso's feelings.

"He was more than a coach," he said. "He was as much a friend as a coach."

Caruso said the players look up to the coach.

"He cares so much about the people he is involved with that you can't help but care for him too," Caruso said. "He's very close to the players. It's like one big family during the year."

"He feels in order for us to be successful we have to enjoy one another," Caruso said. "Winning or losing, we have to stick together."

"I know it sounds corny," said John Ferry, who played for Husson last year, "but we all feel like we are practically brothers in a family."

Seven athletes inducted into Husson Sports Hall of Fame

Margaret H. Gillis - 1939

Three Chieftains mention Margaret H. Gillis and her contributions to "girl's basketball" from 1937 to 1939. Her teams did not go undefeated but it appears they were tenacious and knew how to overcome the odds. For example in 1937 the team lost its first two games but won the third by a score of 40-5. The same thing happened the next year, except the team turned things around in the third game of the season against a new opponent and waxed them 42-8.

Gillis graduated from the Bangor School of Commerce in 1939. She taught for 40 years at Schenck High School in East Millinocket. She died in 1982 just hours before the school honored her by naming its gymnasium after her. At Schenck she started the first cheerleading team, a jazz band, physical education for girls, and a girl's drill team.

"The first to arrive in the morning and often the last to leave at night, she became a part of the school," Tim Powers wrote in a student tribute to Gillis in the Bangor Daily News. "She made Schenck what it is in many ways, and her memory will remain for as long as the school is here."

Philip Harris - 1947

Harris, who was presented the "Coaches Award," coached baseball and basketball from 1946 to 1947 while he attended Husson. "The Inkspots," as the varsity basketball team was called and the junior varsity team, the "Commerce Penmen," earned winning records under Harris.

After graduation in 1947 his first coaching job was at Madison High School. While there he took four of his teams to the Class B Tournament. In 1954 he moved to Skowhegan where as a high school coach he took two teams to the state tournament. He was principal at Williams High School and the Skowhegan Area High School.

The Kennebec Valley Athletic Conference Basketball Coaches Association presents an award each year to a senior who excels on the basketball court, displays good on-court sportsmanship and is a good citizen. It is called the "Phil Harris Basketball Award." In 1983 the Maine Asocition of Basketball Coaches presented Harris an award for, "dedicated service to high school and college athletics and academics."

Dr. Ronald I. Soucie - 1971

Dr. Ronald I. Soucie, who graduated in 1971, still holds the records he set when he was a pitcher at Husson. In 1969 he struck out 146 batters, bettering Wayne Hartford's record of 121 set in 1966. He and Hartford share the record, eight wins, for the most wins by a pitcher in a season. He also set the record for the most strikeouts in a single game when he downed 24 batters. After setting that record Soucie said he remembers nearly outdoing himself when he struck out 23 players the next game and then 20 more the game after that.

He worked for Prudential Insurance Company as a sales representative from 1971 to 1974. In 1977 Soucie graduated from Logan Chiropractic College in St. Louis, Mo. He now has his own practice in Bangor.

Shirley Wilson Whitney - 1946

Shirley Wilson Whitney, who played "center forward," as it was called then, scored 243 points in 1945-46 and lead the team to the best season any women's team had before tallied, with a 19-1 record. In 1944-45 the team had earned a 14-1-1 record with Whitney

Former Husson College president honored

A former president of Husson College, Franklin A. Peters, died Oct. 17 after a long battle with cancer. He was 74.

He was honored last August at a small private gathering in his home in Searsmont.

Peters sat in an easy chair in his library, surrounded by family and friends, and listened as Husson President William H. Beardsley read a resolution passed by the school's board of trustees.

Peters was president of the college from 1973 to 1978. He was recognized Saturday for his role in "achieving accreditation for the college from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges" and "winning authorization for the granting of master's degrees from the Maine State Legislature."

Peters had paid tribute to several who had come to honor him by noting various ways they had contributed to the college.

"The school is awful lucky to have the new president, Bill Beardsley," Peters said. "When I first heard about it I was so pleased. I heard of all his abilities and his decency."

The resolution describes Peters as one who has served with "dedication, hard work, sacrifice and insight." It credits him with "establishing significant financial aid programs for students."

Peters took the helm when the college was facing financial challenges and is credited by many with having played a key role in ensuring Husson's continued growth and stability.

He was given the title, president emeritus, when he retired in 1978 and he served as chairman of the board of trustees the next year.

He was a financial director for Esso Standard Oil in the Far East and Africa before he retired. He attended Harvard, graduated from Columbia University and earned his M.B.A. from the University of Maine.

He was predeceased by his wife, Jane (Hand) Peters in 1985. He is survived by two sons, Paul Bird III of Monmouth and William Peters of Richmond, Vt.; two sisters, Ruth Whitehead of Spring Lake, N.J. and Catherine Harry of Cooperstown, N.Y.; two nieces and one nephew.

This association is for you

By James Hathorne
President of the Alumni Association

If I owned a big-time advertising firm, I would commission a film crew to shoot a beer-style commercial. Instead of pushing beverages, however, this up-beat commercial would show Husson grads around the world finishing projects, directing companies, balancing books, supervising hospital staffs and doing all those things with style and excellence. The sound track would say something about Husson graduates being a cut above the rest and the vocals would cap the commercial with a jingle like, "For all you do, this association's for you."

Okay, so maybe that's why I'm not an advertising executive. I'd hope that a slick advertisement might communicate visually what I must struggle to get across otherwise. Husson graduates can be proud. Just take a look at the "Class Acts" section of the Ledger. Promotion after promotion is listed there and those are only the accomplishments that we know about.

And Husson is also progressing. William H. Beardsley, has inspired in many a sense of pride, not only in what Husson is but in what Husson can become.

Dick Newcomb had begun the process of revamping the alumni association and setting new goals. Greg Vermette, an alumni representative, has been named a trustee on the board of directors, opening a direct channel of communication to that decision-making body.

One recently questioned me as to why alumni would want to become involved. My answer was simple. "Because it's our school," I said.

I lay this groundwork so that you will better understand what I mean when I say that I am honored to have been elected president of Husson's Alumni Association. I invite you to join with me as I work to make this association a vital entity and help to the Husson community.

scoring 225 points and in 1943-44 the team earned a 5-1-1 record.

Whitney, whose maiden name was Wilson, graduated in 1946 and taught business education and coached basketball for one year at Oakfield High School and three years at Hampden Academy.

She has worked at the Bangor International Airport since 1969 where she is an immigration inspector. She said her "one claim to fame" is that she was the first full-time woman immigration inspector in Maine. She has also taught business education, worked with her husband, Wayne, on their 20,000 bird broiler farm and raised five children.

Alumna elected to national office

Penny Harris, '84, has been elected secretary/treasurer of the National League of Women Voters of the United States.

Harris, also a member of the executive committee, said she was supportive of the decision made by the league to withdraw its sponsorship of the "debate" between Vice President George Bush and Gov. Michael Dukakis.

The candidates' numerous requirements for the debate left the league with little or no control over the event, Harris said.

Harris is a second-term member of the board of directors of the League of Women Voters of the United States and the Board of Trustees of the League of Women Voters Education Fund.

Harris is employed as the corporate support manager for Maine Public Broadcasting Network, a statewide network of five radio stations and four television stations. She also participates in on-air fund-raising campaigns.

Students set sail

Students enrolled at Husson College usually do not have to worry about getting a sunburn while attending class and they are never asked to hoist an anchor.

Those who enrolled in "Marine Ecology" last summer, however, were the exception to the rule. Their week-long class was held aboard a 108-foot long schooner, The Nathaniel Bowditch.

The instructor, Helmut Koch, said he wanted the students to be "immersed into the marine environment."

Director for Alumni Affairs

Putting out the Ledger is a bit of an adventure. In the last issue we proudly reported that Veronica (Francis) Husson, '85, had successfully passed her New Hampshire Real Estate Examination, and that she was office manager for ERA in Littleton, N.H. Veronica is my daughter-in-law and I was excited about her success.

She promptly called to inform me that she was office manager for Century 21, and unless I wanted her to tell everyone that she graduated from Thomas, I should make a correction. My son, Peter '85, also informed me that he works for Butson's, not Burson's as we reported.

It was also printed that Dr. Evans was our "frist provost," not the first.

There is some solace in all this, however. You do read the Ledger and it is a popular publication.

We would like to make it better. It is your paper, and we want it to be something you look forward to receiving. We invite your comments, ideas, and suggestions.

We also invite you to submit articles. Several issues ago, we ran an article by Robin Scribner '72, who was the editor of the Journal of Medicine at King Faisal Hospital in Saudi Arabia. It was a great article.

You may have events in your life which would be of genuine interest to our readers. For instance, an adventure, a nostalgic piece about Husson, a group of alumni who have kept in touch over the years, or a successful business venture, there are many possibilities.

Steve Eaton, our editor, is a professional journalist. If asked he will work with you on your ideas. Please submit your articles to him — Husson College, One College Circle, Bangor, Maine 04401.

We look forward to hearing from you.
