Volume 1, Number 1

The Ledger gets a face lift for fall

This issue marks a milestone for the Husson Ledger, the publication for alumni, students, and friends of Husson College. Previously the Ledger was published in glossy magazine format. In order to have news shared in a timely and meaningful fashion we are changing to a tab newspaper format that will come out in July/August and March/April. The fall issue will feature Homecoming and Parents Weekend and the spring issue will feature commencement activities. In addition, there will be an annual Husson magazine in the glossy magazine format that will be published and mailed in November - December.

Husson College Announces $6 Million Capital Campaign

Artist's rendering of the Clara L. Swan Center.

Clara Swan, Class of 1933 with Richard "Dick" Trott, Class of 1965 at her side, watched as Husson Chairman of the Board Leo Loiselle, Class of 1963, formally announced the Legacy of Leadership Capital Campaign for Husson students in front of the magnificent granite fireplace in the G. Peirce Webber Campus Center on June 18, 2001. Outside, beyond the Pi Rho Zeta Bell Tower, Barney Silver, Class of 1978, was putting final touches on the John Boucher, Class of 1966, Soccer Field, while in the distance Baseball Coach John Kolasinski, Class of 1985, readied the John Winkin Baseball Complex for the American Legion Baseball Tournament, a gift from Husson Fellow and renowned coach Dr. John Winkin. All of this is evidence of the quiet phase of this campaign.

Head Baseball Coach John "J.K." Kolasinski '85 shakes hands with Assistant Coach John Winkin at the ground breaking of the John W. Winkin Baseball Complex. Looking on is Congressman John Baldacci and President William H. Beardsley.

Less conspicuous, in the heart of Peabody Hall, financial aid director Linda Conant completed her first round of Osher Scholarship offers to a group of incoming students whose overall family income averaged less than $11,000 this past year, living testament to the College's enduring century-old commitment to provide education to young people regardless of their means. The Osher Foundation is but one of many wonderful gifts for endowments for need-based student scholarships.

The Leadership Center

Across campus, a new best practices science research lab was being prepared for Dr. Patrick McArthur's research on Maine wild blueberries, and in the public affairs office, season tickets were going fast for the second season of the endowed Kilgore Classical Piano series. In the arboretum, new plantings of American Beech and Pitch Pine took root thanks to Marc Quinlan Class of 1972. In the library, seed gifts from long-time faculty member Bill Read, Bob Menucci, Class of 1970, and Arthur "Ed" McKenzie, Class of 1948, multiplied with gifts from the Stephen & Tabitha King Foundation, the Libra Foundation, and an anonymous foundation moved plans ahead for a long-needed library expansion and renovation. Down at the gym, plans evolve for a human performance center, while down on the coast at Flye Point, trustee O.D. Hopkins readied the college's first venture into marine science research.

There was a special reason, however, for Clara Swan and Richard "Dick" Trott to stand center stage at the announcement of the $6 million Legacy of Leadership Campaign for students. Clara Swan has personified the college, from her days as a student from rural Maine seventy years ago when Husson was a tiny second floor operation in downtown Bangor, to those dynamic years of the 1960's when enrollment exploded with G.I.'s and a stream of young people from across the east coast. Dick Trott, of course, was one of those students who Clara treated with tough love, kept in school and sent on his way to success. Dick, in turn, has stayed close to his home base, building a timber management and real estate business in rural Maine and sending a son, Richard, Class of 2000 and daughter, Leslie, Class of 2002, to Husson. Now, as the largest donor in college history, Dick has chosen to thank Clara Swan by leading a fund-raising effort to build the Clara Swan Center, a 5000 square foot fitness and social center dedicated to students. "This is what students have told us they want and need. This is what they say the college is missing. The Husson students of today are into fitness and health, and this facility will certainly fill a void. This student fitness center is a tribute to Clara the student, athlete, teacher and coach, and reflects her philosophy of putting students first," said Trott. "It also embodies her love for sports and athletics. We are more than three fourths of the way to our $1 million project goal. Our plan is to finish the fund raising and construction with a ribbon cutting and celebration as part of Clara's 90th birthday party, on April 28, 2001," said Trott.

"Of course this is a thrill for me personally," said Clara. "Anyone who knows me knows that I love anything that helps promote athletics and good health. I am honored to have my name on this beautiful new addition to the Husson campus. I'm sure I'll spend some time working out in there myself."

Chairman Loiselle reported that $3.5 million of the $6 million campaign had been received in the form of gifts and pledges from alumni, staff, foundation and friends of the college during this quiet phase of the campaign leading up to the announcement.

Commencement '01

3 Husson Grads soak up some sun!

THE 102nd HUSSON COMMENCEMENT

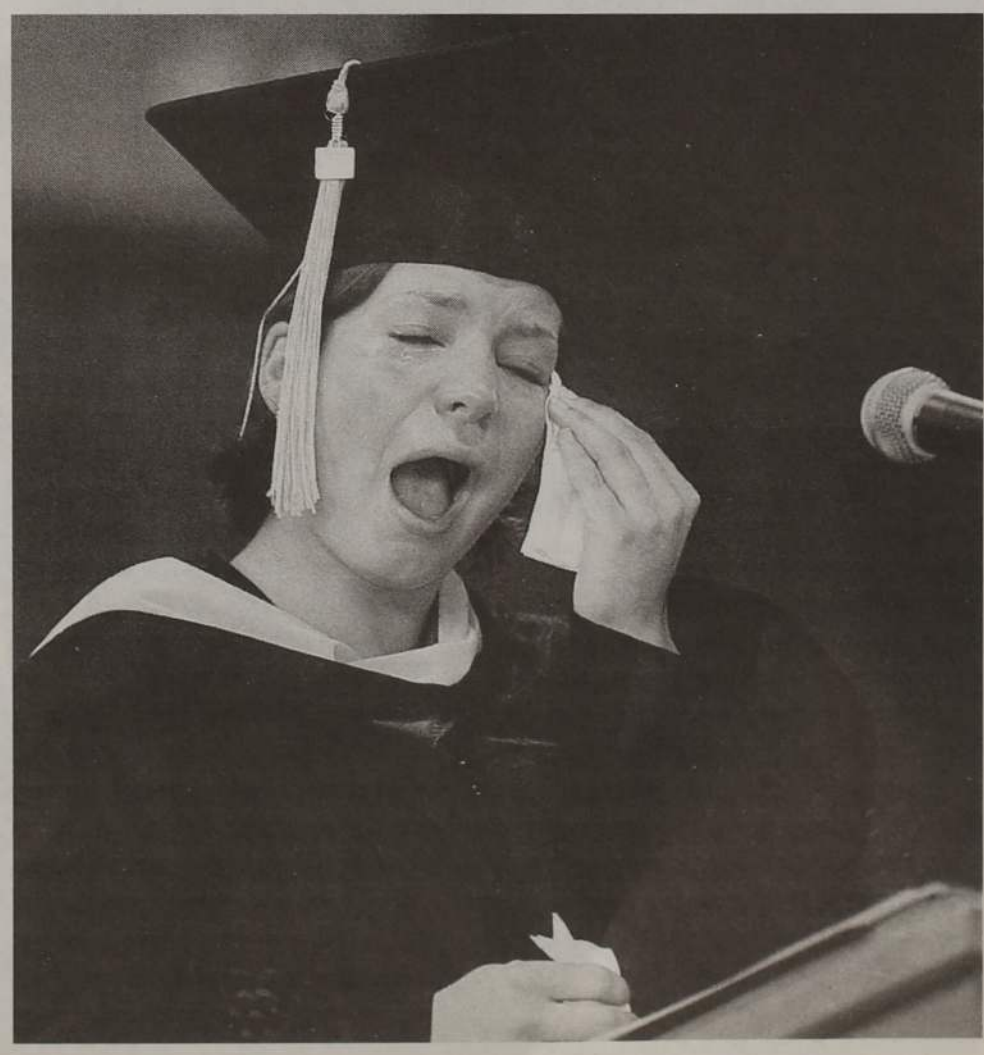

More than 320 students from 143 Maine communities, 18 states and 10 countries received Masters, Bachelors and Associates degrees at the 102nd commencement at Husson College on May 12. Mary Beth Harmon of Hancock, Maine, was named valedictorian. Harmon, who received a B.S. in Business Administration and a Master of Science in Business, graduated with a perfect 4.0 grade point average. Samantha Hibbard of Camden, Maine, who received a B.S. in Business Administration with a 3.924 grade point average, was named salutatorian.

Lawrence J. Lasser, President and CEO of Putnam Investments, headquartered in Boston, gave the commencement address. Lasser joined Putnam in 1969 after receiving his MBA from Harvard Business School. He became CEO in 1985. Putnam currently manages more than $320 billion in investment assets and employs more than 6,000 people. They established a work-at-home training center at Husson last year bringing quality employment to place-bound rural Mainers, while providing extraordinary on-campus jobs and internships for students. Mr. Lasser also received an honorary Doctor of Business Administration.

Virginia S. Pinkham of Ashland, Maine, received an honorary Doctorate of Public Service. She helped establish and became the administrator of the Aroostook Valley Health Center. She later established the Pinkham Charitable Trust, which provides scholarships for low-income students from the St. John Valley.

Campus Achievements & Events

School of Business Positioned to Retain Dominance in Maine

With an estimated 35 percent of the market in graduate business degrees offered by Maine Colleges and with its market share in the baccalaureate market not far behind, Husson is the college everyone is gunning for.

"What gives us leverage is a century-old program that has produced an extraordinary array of business and accounting leaders among our alumni. When the president of the bank, the hospital, the insurance company, accounting firm, leading architectural firm, car dealership and paper mill are all Husson alumni you've got an advantage. But you have to keep the program both applied and of current relevance if you are going to capitalize on these advantages", said Husson President William Beardsley.

In addition to the 30-year-old Husson Business Breakfast Series, the Richard E. Dyke Center for Family Business has become a preferred meeting place for business associations. Putnam Investments presence on campus provides world-class business and accounting internship opportunities. Last year's successful tax lecture series will be followed by a health care lecture series in the spring of 2002.

Curriculum is also evolving, graduate business offerings have expanded into health care and non-profit management. Computer Information Systems has expanded into networking. Half of the entering accounting students in September are enrolled in a masters of science in business program as well.

Cheryl Russell, new executive director of the Richard E. Dyke Center for Family Business is fast becoming an internship coordinator. "We have the son of the Ambassador from Senegal to Japan working with the Rural Maine Legislative Caucus on NAFTA and Free Trade," said Russell. "We have a hospitality management student from Nepal hosting a professional loggers association. There are business students from near and far seeking real world experience."

Husson Science Research Institute Receives Research Grant

The Husson Science Research Institute (HSRI) recently received a $5,000 grant from the Wild Blueberry Association of North America. The grant will be used for a new blueberry research program organized by Drs. Paul LaMarche, Jon Connolly, and Pat McArthur to explore the anti-oxidant properties of blueberries. The grant provides the latest opportunity for hands-on learning for Husson students studying the field of immunology as it relates to the health and science programs at Husson College.

During the past twenty years, Husson has dedicated itself to preparing students with increased levels of experiential learning. This dedication to learning, via experiences, has evolved into a clear understanding of how much students gain when they become involved in authentic research projects. The recent creation of the Husson Science Research Institute (HSRI) provides Husson College undergraduate students with tremendous opportunities in research and the discovery-based learning that it brings. The creation of this HSRI also allows extant academic programs (that require student research) to deliver a better experience to the students within those majors.

The Husson Science Research Institute was established in 1998 as an institution-wide research collaborative project that also extends into the local community. Under the direction of Dr. Paul LaMarche, the HSRI has three primary objectives: (1) to provide a vehicle for Husson faculty and fellows to conduct enriching and practical research in molecular medicine, chemotherapeutics, cell biology, kinesiology, physiology, ecology, environmental science, and physiological psychology, (2) to provide students with access to the research projects being conducted within the HSRI so that they can participate and contribute to these research efforts in a meaningful way, (3) to provide medical researchers, clinicians, and epidemiologists within the Eastern Maine Healthcare (EMH) network with a collaborative vehicle for conducting medical research. Included in the latter is a particularly close relationship between the HSRI and Eastern Maine Medical Center (EMMC), a 426-bed medical and biomedical research facility in Bangor.

Teacher Education Reform

From its founding date at the end of the 19th century teacher education was a mainstay of the college. For decades later, during the Second World War, it dominated enrollment. In the 1960's an array of business teacher graduates became a major force in education with such graduates as Henrietta Coulombe Montagna, '65, named Connecticut Teacher of the Year in 1997, Dr. Gloria Bowden Smith, '72, and Dr. Douglas Smith, '72 & '82, professors at Kentucky State University and the University of Kentucky, Jim Doughty '61, named Superintendent of the Year in the State of Maine, Simone Levesque, long-time educator in Aroostook County, and Lynn Hunt, '72, and Nadine Millett, '69, and '85, both named Teacher of the Year in Maine. Many became coaches and superintendents. But the field of teacher education faded during the 1980's and 1990's and the number of Business Teachers fell in half in Maine alone and Husson's BTE program began to fade away. The nadir came in 1999 when only 2 students matriculated into teacher education at Husson.

Today, under the leadership of Jim Doughty, Class of 1961, and Husson Dean for Education, enrollments are soaring. In the entering class this fall there will be over 30 new students, spread over business technology education, physical education, elementary education and science teacher education. "A whole generation of teachers are about to retire across the nation and the supply of new teachers is too small. We have tripled the size of our entering class in the past three years and there is no end in sight. Prospective students like Husson's small college atmosphere, its focus on classroom experience and the way Husson ties teacher education together with its business, health and liberal arts programs," said Jim Doughty.

NESCom Expands Media Option

First FM then Internet radio with plans for a TV station in the works, the New England School of Communications continues to expand its hands-on channels of communications. The old WHSN station is being moved from Peabody Hall to the new communications building. The CBS satellite hook up brings raw CBS footage into the new news room for work up into programs.

The impact of the new facility and technology is beginning to be felt. NESCom tuition deposits for the fall have hit 100 for the first time, up more than 30% from 2000.

Nursing Program Receives Grants

Under the leadership of Dr. Teresa Steele, the Husson College Advanced Practice Psychiatric Nursing Program will receive a three-year Advanced Nursing Education grant from the United States Department of Health and Human Services' Health Resources and Services Administration according to U.S. Senator Susan Collins. The grant will support an increase in the number of psychiatric nurses available to provide mental health care in rural areas.

Under the leadership of Ms. Mary Shea, director of the nurse practitioner M.S.N. program, the College has also been notified of a parallel five-year grant to establish and operate a nurse practitioner-run health clinic in the Old Capehart neighborhood in Bangor.

JOHN WINKIN HONORED

Husson College assistant baseball coach John Winkin was recently inducted into the Maine High School Baseball Coaches Association's Hall of Fame. John was named one of the first class of inductees into the new hall. He is also a member of the Maine Baseball Hall of Fame, the Maine Sports Hall of Fame, the Waterville Boys and Girls Clubs Hall and the American College Baseball Coaches' Hall of Fame. John formerly was head baseball coach at Colby and the University of Maine.

HUSSON TRUSTEE HONORED

Husson trustee Lloyd Willey was presented the 2001 Norbert X. Dowd Award at the Bangor Region Chamber of Commerce Annual Dinner on January 24, 2001. This award is in recognition of Lloyd's exceptional commitment to community service.

In addition to Lloyd's long service on the Husson College Board of Trustees, he has served on the board of the YMCA, United Cerebral Palsy, Bangor Rotary Club, Pine Tree Vending Association, United Community Services of Penobscot Valley, Hampden United Methodist Church, Eastern Maine Medical Center, Fleet Bank and the Maine Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

Cheryl Russell has recently been appointed as the Executive Director of the Richard E. Dyke Center for Family Business. Cheryl is a National Merit Scholar from East Grand High School and past member of the Maine Workers' Compensation Board. She is currently phasing out as executive director of the American Professional Loggers Council. She is the owner and president of Competitive Edge Consulting in Lincoln.

PAUL HUSSON NAMED VICE PRESIDENT OF HUDSON MUSEUM BOARD

Paul Husson, Director of Alumni Affairs, has been elected to serve as Vice President of the Hudson Museum Advisory Board. "I am excited about the Museum's mission and its value to the Greater Bangor Community." The Hudson focuses on the anthropological study of human kind.

TRUSTEE ELECTED TO MAINE SENATE

Husson College Trustee W. Tom Sawyer, Jr. was elected to represent District 9 in the Maine State Senate. District 9 represents Bangor and Veazie. Tom is a Republican.

Dr. Marak A. Sitarski and Dr. Terry T. Tang attended the NASA NOVA conference on February at the Dreyden, Space Flight Center at Edwards Air Force Base at the invitation of the Agency. The round of meetings focused on new methods of teaching and the development of experiential content courses for pre-service teachers and the use of NASA resources in such courses.

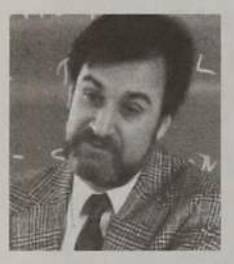

As a result of the visit, the two Husson faculty members will be creating an integrated physical science course for pre-service teachers. The course will be activity-based with an environmental theme, focusing on local, global, and space environmental systems.

The two are currently writing a proposal, at the invitation of NASA, for funds to assist in course development. Dr. Sitarski adds, "This course we envision will meet the Maine and national requirements that teachers face in the science and technology field. In this connection we are very excited and anxious to get started in this Husson-originated Science and Education cooperative endeavor."

The Maine Association of Basketball Coaches presented its prestigious D. Robert Brown Contributor Award to President Emeritus Delmont Merrill '48 at the 2001 Maine McDonald's Senior All-Star Games. The committee selects one honoree who has made a significant contribution to the sport of basketball in Maine.

"Del Merrill has been a moving force behind the growth of basketball in Maine for nearly half a century," said MABC President Jim Ray. "He has been an integral part of the basketball community here; as a player, as a coach, as an official and as an administrator. Merrill also served as Maine's Commissioner of Basketball. We'd like to recognize him for his tremendous contributions to basketball in Maine -- from developing sports programs to coaching winning teams."

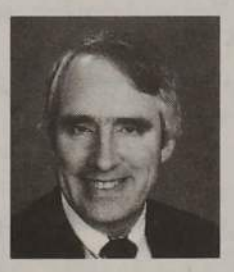

Wadsworth Publishers requested Husson professor Dr. Lambros Karris to review the new edition of one of their most popular titles Psychology Applied to Modern Life by Weiten/Lloyd.

Leon Raikes had a poem published in June in an anthology honoring Glenn Gould, the great Canadian musician. The poem is called "Always at Work" and means to suggest the longevity of Gould's recorded masterpieces for piano.

Congratulations to Dr. Phil Grant on the publication of his latest book, The Power of Linear Economic Perspective.

Professor Dewey Martin has been named Regional Accountant Advocate for Region I of the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA). He was honored at a reception at the Center for Family Business in May.

The cover article in the December issue of Experimental Neurology was authored by Husson's own Dr. Sondra Siegel.

KARL MCGAW RECEIVES BEAM AWARD

Professor Karl McGaw '63, ΚΔΦ has received the Business Education Association of Maine (B.E.A.M.) 2000 Friend of Business Award. Professor McGaw has been active with B.E.A.M. for more than 20 years and among his many duties he has been the Region F Director, worked with the State Contest and has been a B.E.A.M. board member for more than 10 years.

SCHOOL OF HEALTH PROMOTIONS

Donna Ault has been promoted to director of the Husson/EMMC Baccalaureate Nursing Program. Donna, who has been a member of the Husson Faculty since 1985, received her B.U.S. from UMaine and her M.S.N. from the University of Texas.

Dr. Ben Sidaway has been named Director of the Physical Therapy Program. Dr. Sidaway, who received his Ph.D. from Penn State University takes over for Dr. Sandra Curwin, who has left to direct the physical therapy program at the University of Alberta.

Dr. Lynn Gitlow has been named director of the Occupational Therapy Program. Lynn earned her doctorate at the University of Maine and assisted in establishing O.T. related programs at Kennebec Valley Technical College and the University of Southern Maine at Lewiston.

Kissy Walker Steps Down as Husson Basketball Coach

Kissy Walker has resigned as head coach of the Husson College Women's Basketball program. The 12- year veteran said "It is time to move on. I am finishing my Masters degree, I have taken on new responsibilities in the President's Office, and have a new position as Clinical Coordinator in the Teacher Education programs. With all of that and my family, something had to give."

Walker compiled an impressive 236 - 95 record. She was voted Coach of the Year three times. She took her team to the playoffs 10 of the 12 years she coached advancing to four NAIA National Tournaments. In 1993, she led the Braves to the NAIA Final Four, the only Maine Athletic Conference team in any sport to advance that far in a national tournament.

Walker graduated from the University of Maine with a B.S. in Physical Education. She played varsity ball there and was captain of the team in her senior year. She is a 1982 graduate of Cony High School in Augusta, Maine.

"I've been very fortunate," Walker said. "This has been an extremely difficult decision for me to make. I felt this change is the best direction for my career and for the team. I will miss working with the athletic staff, my assistant coaches, and of course my players. They are all like my own children, each of them unique. I love working at Husson, and this way, even though I won't be coaching, I will still be working closely with the students."

Scott Warman '91 Named Men's Soccer Coach

Scott Warman, '91, has been named the Husson Men's Soccer Coach. He takes over for Nate Benoit, who left to pursue a career with the Maine Department of Transportation. Warman has eleven years of coaching experience having coached at Hermon High School, Bangor High School and Orono High School.

"I think this is a great opportunity," said Warman. "Husson has a great staff of coaches and I am really looking forward to being part of that team. I can't wait to meet the players"

Warman, who was a midfielder and fullback at Husson before receiving his degree in business teacher education, is looking forward to moving from the high school to college ranks. "At the high school level, skill can dominate a game. But college is different. College players have to be smarter. I'll have to teach them the game above the shoulders," said Warman.

Warman is married to the former Candice French, '95. They live in Hampden and have one daughter Alexis and another child on the way. He is the program director for Fellowship Health Resources Inc.

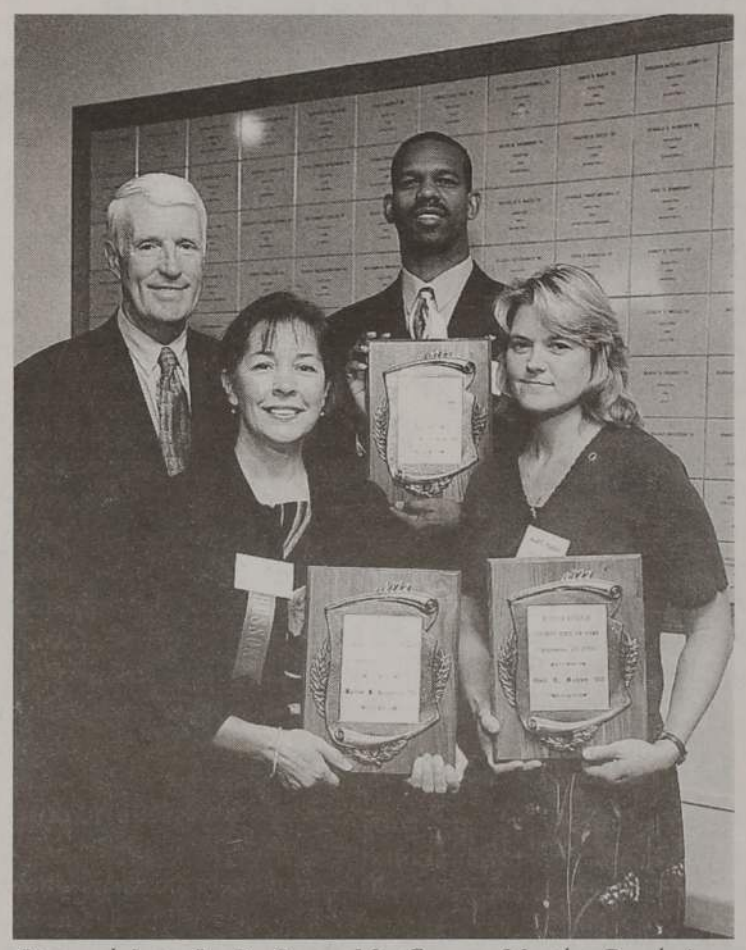

Rick Sinclair '96 Named Assistant Basketball Coach

Rick Sinclair, '96, has been named the new Assistant Basketball Coach at Husson College. Sinclair, who received his B.S. in Sports Management, has spent the past two years as head coach at Hermon High School. He took the Hawks both years to the Eastern Maine Tournament, winning the tourney in 2000 and making it to the final game in 2001. He has returned to Husson to earn his teaching certificate.

During his Husson sports career he played on two MAC championship teams that competed in the NAIA National Tournament. He scored 1,146 points placing him 22nd on the all-time Husson scoring list. In his senior year he was an NAIA All-American Honor Mention.

"This is a great addition to our staff," said head coach Warren Caruso. "Rick is a quality individual who brings head coaching experience to our staff. I couldn't be happier that he has decided to come work with us."

Sports Hall of Fame 2000

Gail L. (Boucher) Mahan '88

Gail is truly one of the most outstanding women athletes to ever play at Husson College. Respected by teammates and opponents alike, Gail was an exceptional basketball and softball player for all of her four years at Husson. As captain of the 1988 basketball team and co-captain of the softball team, she led both of these teams to the NAIA District 5 playoffs in 1988. Gail received the MVP award in softball each of her four years on the team. She also received the MVP award in basketball in 1986, 1987 and 1988. She was on the MAIAW second team in 1985 and 1986 and voted first team honors in 1987. In 1988 she was voted honorable mention as a catcher in District 5 NAIA.

In her senior year, the women's basketball team won twice as many games as they lost. This was a noteworthy accomplishment, because it accurately measured the success of a program that had labored for a number of years without a rewarding won/lost record.

For Coach Merrill "Red" Wilson, "Beyond her talent as a player, Gail was inspirational with her work ethic, her competitive attitude, and with the tangible and intangible qualities of leadership she presented. She was the soul of the team."

Today Gail is married to Michael Mahan, lives in Milford, Maine and is a full time mother to their three beautiful daughters. Proud of her career choice, she has "never regretted a day of being a stay-at-home mom as her children have brought her unimaginable joy."

Martha M. (Deschaines) Hammond '73

When Martha played at Husson in the early seventies, it was the beginning of a new era for women's sports—at Husson and in the entire country. A fiery competitor who didn't like to lose, Martha was part of the history of reintroducing women's sports at Husson when the school moved to the current campus in 1968. She was a point guard and scorer on the women's basketball team. Her love of sports carried over into later life when she coached and was responsible for starting girls' basketball at Catherine McAuley High School in Portland.

Martha, her husband Steve '72 and their two daughters live in Scarborough, Maine. Both daughters were high school athletes and both are currently in college. One daughter is 5"10' and Martha has often remarked if only she could have been a 5'10' basketball player!

Buster Frederick, Jr. '90

When Coach Bruce MacGregor first saw Buster on a basketball court, he recalls having "no idea of the impact this man would have on an athletic program, a school, a league, a district, or a national standing." As he watched the recruiting prospect miss half of his shots, Coach MacGregor also recalls thinking he had made a wasted trip to Hartford, CT. That is, until he introduced himself and learned Buster was practicing shooting left-handed for fun! At the age of 26, Buster gave up a good paying job and his car to come to Husson and pursue his lifelong dream of getting his degree and playing college basketball. In the Husson basketball record book, Buster's name is listed in 23 of the 31 record lists. Husson's only 3-time team captain, the 6'6" forward/center led his team to 100 wins in four seasons, two national tournaments and in 1988 Sports Illustrated listed Husson College as the 7th best NAIA Division II school in the country.

Buster Frederick epitomizes all the values of Husson College athletics: the work ethic, the enthusiasm, the sense of humor, the ability to put things in proper perspective, the leadership, the achievement of success, and the willingness to pursue dreams. Today he lives in Michigan with his wife Kimberly and their five children. A student once again, this time at Wayne State University, Buster is currently pursuing a teaching degree in math.

George T. Abbott '74

Hailing from Cape Cod, Massachusetts, George had already distinguished himself as an athlete in high school sports before he ever set foot on the Husson campus. Arguably one of the best baseball players and catchers to ever play for Husson, his presence on the field left an indelible mark. George was selected three straight years in a row as the team's captain. He also was elected president of the Husson College Varsity Club, which meant he was the leader of all athletes on campus. In recognition of his academic standing, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential, he was included in the 1972-73 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. An all conference player, he led his teams in hitting with a .364 average. After graduation, George joined the management training program at New England Life Insurance Company in Boston. After several promotions, he earned his MBA from Suffolk University. Shortly after, he married his high school sweetheart, Jan, and joined her family hotel business on Cape Cod. Now president of Hemeon-Abbott Management Corporation, he lives in Barnstable, MA with his wife Jan and their two daughters. An avid fisherman and golfer, George also has his pilot's license.

Hall of Fame 2000 Alumni

ANN M. DYER, RN '57

Ann Dyer is, as they say in Maine, a "character." She epitomizes the term "independent," and was a strong-minded, outspoken woman before it was fashionable. Ann could teach the Olympic downhill skiers a thing or two, and many (men and women alike) have learned from her expertise as a nurse, an administrator, and a friend. Ann embarked upon her healthcare career as an operating room nurse and then Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetist. She earned a BA from the University of Maine in 1970. Five years later, she received her Certificate in Respiratory Medicine from Northeastern University while working full-time as Assistant Department Head for Respiratory Therapy at Eastern Maine Medical Center. Ann rocketed through the administrative ranks of EMMC: Administrator of the Alcohol Institute, Assistant to the Director of Nurses, Director of Support Services, and Associate Director of Human Resources. She was mayor of the City of Brewer, active board member of EMMC Credit Union, and United Way volunteer. Since retiring two years ago, she is so busy now, she has often been heard to exclaim that she has no idea how she had a job for so many years! She lives at Lucerne, where she is an avid canoeist, swimmer, and hiker.

Ann M. Dyer '57. Award presented by Nathaniel Bond, Eastern Maine Healthcare

VIRGINIA S. GLIDDEN '42 '58

Virginia first joined the Bangor Daily News (BDN) as a "humble temporary." Before long, she was hired on a permanent basis as clerk in the business office. A subsequent promotion to cashier paved the way for her to assume payroll duties and creation of the BDN's first personnel record system. In 1961, she purchased the first of her two apartment houses. The next BDN title was accountant, from which Virginia worked her way to business office manager, a supervisory and management position. After seven years as special projects coordinator, she became the interoffice servi-center manager in 1990. In 1996, after 54 years at the Bangor Daily News, Virginia—who had worn many hats during her career—finally hung them all up and retired. She still owns and operates her two apartment houses. Her long-standing commitment to the community has been just as impressive. She has volunteered in Senator Susan Collins Bangor office for twenty-three years, and still does to this day. Virginia currently serves on the Husson Alumni Association Board.

Virginia S. Glidden '42, '58. Award presented by Arthur (Ed) McKenzie '48

HILARY (HICKSON) LAMKIN '86

After graduation, Hilary spent a summer in Japan teaching English. Upon returning to the states, she took a job as a sales representative for St. Johnsbury Trucking Company. Even then, she knew that her future personal happiness depended upon owning and operating her own business. In her three years with St. Johnsbury, she worked with Jim Milligan '75 and joined in his plan for a new venture named Carrabassett Spring Water. Two years later, Hilary and Jim incorporated Carrabassett of New Hampshire, which distributes the Carrabassett products in the state of New Hampshire. Today, Hilary is office manager for all three Carrabassett companies. Her analytical prowess, personality and poise are an integral part of Carabbasset's continued growth and prosperity. She is active in community causes, including the Big Brothers & Big Sisters Program, the American Lung Association, and Multiple Sclerosis. Hilary is, as husband Troy will attest, "the voice of reason and patience" in both their professional and personal life. Hilary, Troy, and their two children reside in Standish, Maine.

Hilary N. Lamkin '86. Award presented by Robert E. White '65.

JAMES L. MILLIGAN '75 ΚΔΦ

In 1987, after thirteen years of a successful career for St. Johnsbury Trucking Company, Jim Milligan decided to start his own company. He and his brother founded Carrabassett Spring Water Company, a start-up venture without a single customer. Since the small bottle inception, Carrabassett has attracted such companies as Donna Karan of New York, Foxwoods Casino, Ford Lincoln/Mercury, and GTE Corporation. Their bottles of spring water are now marketed nationally as well internationally. In 1999, Carrabassett Spring Water had a forty-two percent increase in revenue and combined revenues of the three corporations rose to nearly three million dollars.

Jim has served as President of both the Maine Traffic Club and Delta Nu Alpha Transportation Club. He also served for several years as the President of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation in Maine and was a Board member for Northern New England. Jim and his wife, Debbie, have two lovely daughters and make their home in Gorham.

James L. Milligan '75 (right). Award presented by Bradley S. Ryder '75 '94

MARC A. QUINLAN '72

After completing the K-Mart Corporation trainee program, Marc spent four years with the retail giant. In search of greater success with more immediate rewards, he joined the Keebler Cookie Company as a sales representative. Two years later, he became the northeast regional sales manager for Celestial Seasonings. By 1980, he was national sales manager with Globe Products/Holly Farms, Inc. He also handled all their international sales, which prepared him for his subsequent positions with Atalanta Corporation and Zwanzenberg Food Group BV. Currently, Marc is Director of Sales with Stockmeyer N.A., a multibillion-dollar company and one of Germany's largest food manufacturers and exporters.

And although he continues to go on to bigger and better things, Marc has not forgotten what it was like to receive a quality college education in Maine. In 1996, Marc established a scholarship in honor of his favorite Husson professor, Bill Read. Each year, he generously adds to the endowed scholarship to ensure it will continue to help deserving kids from New Jersey and Maine pay for their textbooks. He lives in southern New Jersey with his lovely wife, Cheri.

RICHARD C. TROTT '65 ΜΣΧ

While working as a sales rep for Bausch and Lomb, Dick started buying and selling real estate on the weekends. But it wasn't long before his "weekend job" started paying better than the 9 to 5 one, and so he quit selling contact lenses to do real estate full-time. In the late 70's, he branched out into timberlands and forestry management. Since then, Dick has become a wood broker and a developer as well. Today, his company is named Trott-Woodhead Inc. and real estate accounts for only 20% of the business.

Dick and his wife Alice have three children: the oldest Tifffany just earned her MBA; the middle child Richie graduated from Husson last year (and now works with Dick); and the youngest Leslie is currently a junior at Husson. Devoted parents and fans, Dick and Alice have never missed a home game of any of the teams their kids have played on and estimate they have attended 99% of the away games. He also coaches boys and girls in grades 3, 4, and 5 for the P.A.L. Brewer basketball program. As one of the bagpipers with the Anah Temple Shrine, Dick plays approximately 25 events a year, including Husson commencement. Dick also serves on the Husson College Board of Trustees.

Carol Leighton Budden '53 writes that she and Lawrence are both retired and still live in Greenville in the house they bought 40 years ago. They have two grown sons, Edwin and Dale. Edwin is a Technical Sergeant in the U.S. Air Force. The Buddens have visited him at many of his duty stations; North Carolina, North Pole, Alaska, Germany, France, and Belgium. Some of the highlights of their travel were to see the entrance of the Maginot Line and to visit the graves of General Patten and over 5000 other Americans who lost their lives in the World War II Battle of the Bulge. "As parents of a career military man, we feel deeply about the affairs of the world, especially after so many terrorist attacks. We feel very proud of our armed forces everywhere."

Their other son Dale resides in Greenville in a home which he built himself.

Ben Blodget '56 ΜΣΧ and his wife Jeannette "boarded a container freighter, the Melbourne Star, in Savannah, Georgia and made the round trip voyage to Australia and New Zealand. A supply stop at Pitcairn Island each way was a highlight of the voyage.

Six to eight passengers on various trips between ports added to the enjoyment. I operated my radio as W1VEH Maritime Mobile and kept in daily contact with fellow ham radio operators on the East Coast. Packing our bags and walking down the gangplank after 74 days was really sad. This is the way to go for anyone who likes the sea and the informality of a working ship without the frills. Any readers who would like details may email me at bblodget@juno.com."

They also ask how I was able to start a business as a Masseur. I tell them that if it were not for the education I received at Husson, there is no chance that I would consider running my own business. The teaching staff along with the well planned academic program gave me the confidence and knowledge to go out on my own. Thank you to all the staff and the students who helped me through one of the toughest and most rewarding times of my life only to come out on the other end a better person and student.

Thank you all very much."

Dear Alumni and Friends,

The Husson College campus, rough and tumble in its youth, is aging nicely. The rectangular buildings, circle, bell tower, and rolling fields of old still define the landscape but a myriad of subtle changes are creating a collegiate beauty. A colonnade of Norway maples and forsythia follows the entrance with its black Canadian marble and Crotch Island granite signage. The pasture up towards the farmhouse has become a maturing arboretum with bluestone pathways and stone benches.

The once stark, yet spectacular, Dyke Center for Family Business is now beautifully nestled among a stand of hardwoods. New windows, entrances, ivy and pocket gardens have softened the lines of the old angular buildings. The classy Winkin Baseball Complex with its brick dugouts and Fenway Green and the dramatic British style Boucher Soccer Pitch have formalized the lower campus. Needless to say, the Swan Center and other future visual additions will continue the evolution from pastoral to collegiate.

A college, or any institution for that matter, is known by its context and Husson is no exception. Husson is known by its alumni, its sports reputation, its Carnegie classification, and its professional and regional accreditation. It is known by its faculty and staff and current students, by reports in the news and by word of mouth, by who identifies with Husson and who keeps their distance, by the quality of technology, clinical experiences, student life, and yes, by the look and the feel of the campus.

I encourage you to drop by, swing through and walk across campus one of these days.
It will feel good.
