CHAPTER EIGHT

STUDENT LIFE

I
Social and Recreational Activities

You are here to make good; not to make excuses.
—Quoted by Principal Chesley H. Husson, BMSC, ca 1940

The providing for the education of the "whole person" has been consistently an integral aspect of the development of the College.

Although few sources have been found on which to base any detailed account of student life for the period 1898-1926, there is evidence that a well-rounded social program was enjoyed by students at the Shaw College in Portland. According to The Business Educator, there were socials, dinners, lectures, and athletics.

ENTERTAINMENTS

> During the past season many interesting and instructive entertainments have been given in the College hall, for the benefit of the students and their friends, and they have been attended by all of those who could make it convenient to do so.
> The talent for those entertainments has been furnished by the students of the Business College and of the School of Expression, assisted by outside talent.
> The musical part has consisted of piano and vocal solos and duets, selections by the College Orchestra, banjo and guitar solos and harmonica and accordian accompaniments. The literary part has consisted of readings by members of the School of Expression, assisted by public readers from this and other cities. Miss Marion Willis, the talented reader, from Boston, has appeared at several of our entertainments, and has fully sustained her reputation of being one of the finest readers in New England. Prof. Marble, of Bridgton, and R. L. Whitcomb, of Portland, have also favored us, and were received with much enthusiasm. The College Minstrels have added to the pleasure of the entertainments at which they have appeared.
> Prof. F. W. Adams has been in charge of these entertainments, and is deserving of much credit for the manner in which he has conducted them.
> Preceding each entertainment Mr. Reynolds has delivered one of his interesting lectures, which have been received with great pleasure by those present.
> The "Educator" has been a frequent visitor at these gatherings, and has been ably edited by the students.[2]

One may assume that Mr. Harden, who was a graduate of Portland Shaw Business College, would have comparable programs in Bangor. In fact, media accounts and alumni memorabilia include information concerning open houses, anniversary concerts, dances, annual reunions, lectures, and socials. Several of the Shaw alumni, whom one of the authors interviewed, recalled with fondness the "good times" they had at socials. Two went so far as to comment that "Some of the Shaw girls preferred the Doe boys!" (Doe Business College, located in the YMCA, was only a block away from Shaw. See Appendix A.)

An insight to social activities during the MSC-B era (1926-1932) is based largely upon the articles in the yearbooks, 1930, 1931. All social activities, except those of a fund-raising nature sponsored by the Men's Athletic Association, were planned by the MSC Club (Maine School of Commerce Club). Membership was open to all students; the only requirement being the payment of dues which underwrote its activities. The club designated green and gold for the school colors.

Accommodations for socializing were very limited at the Columbia Street site. Parties, corn roasts, dances, picnics, and get-togethers, nevertheless, were held intermittently throughout the academic year. Of interest, indeed, is a reference to the good times at one of the corn roasts "because of Mr. Mann's (Principal of the chain of five schools throughout the State) contributions of fun and ideas".

The MSC Club was active for another decade (1932-1941) in sponsoring social activities for the entire student body. Special dates—Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Washington's Birthday, Post-lent season, graduation—all were occasions for a dance, a party of some kind, or a picnic. Before Commerce Hall, 157 Park Street, was available, the Dorothy Memorial Hall, Park Street; Rosland Ballroom, Central Street; Dahlberg Hall (Now the Annex to the Columbia Street Baptist Church); the YMCA—all were rented from time to time for social activities. Picnics and outings were held at Pushaw Pond, Cold Stream Pond, and Paradise Park.

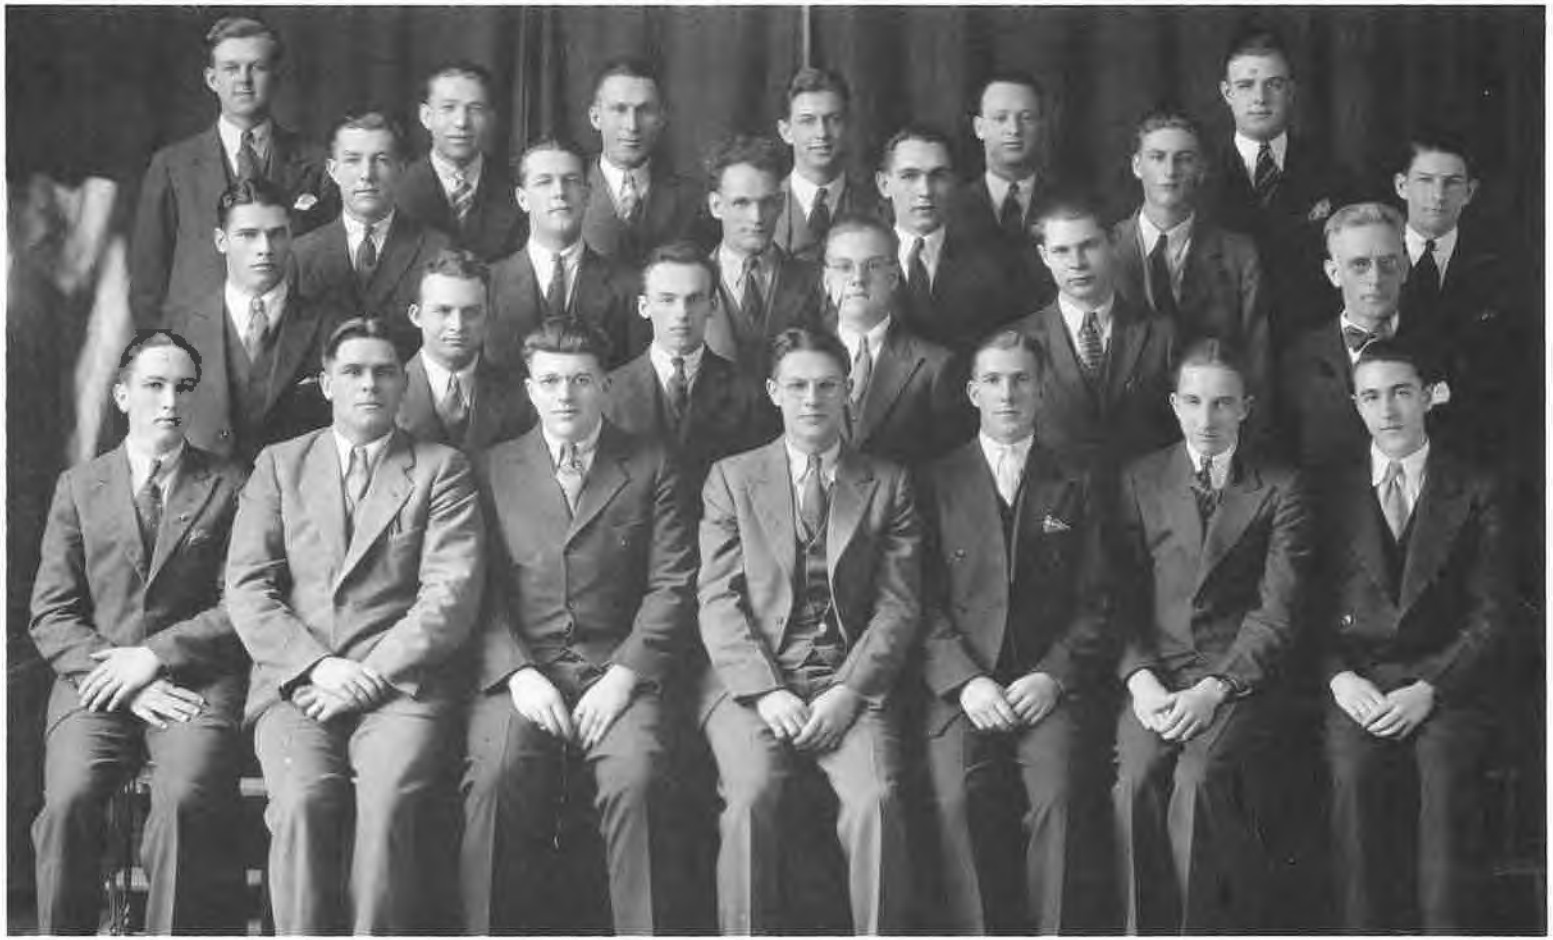

With the change in corporate structure, 1933, more diversified social and athletic programs were introduced. In fact, after becoming president of the corporation, 1935, Principal Husson adopted the general policy of implementing any activity that a sufficient number of students would propose in any given year. As long as the student interest was maintained, he would provide for a sponsor or adviser and encourage participation. If an inservice individual was unavailable or lacked the expertise that leadership of a given activity required, a local professional or some one affiliated with the University would be employed to sponsor the club.

The new facility at 157 Park Street afforded attractive provisions for a wide variety of social and athletic activities. These facilities were frequently supplemented by the use of homes in which students lived. Many of the house-parents took an active interest in the social programs, often becoming honorary members of the organizations to which resident students belonged.

Among the social organizations there have been some that were short-lived; others, a modification or expansion of an established club; a few, continuous through the years.

The MSC Club largely sponsored all social activities before World War II. However, as other social groups, such as the fraternity and sorority (local associations), and clubs organized around special interests—drama, music, journalism, business—were introduced, a wider spectrum of activities provided opportunities for all students to become involved.

Assemblies and rallies were held frequently, 1941-1968: pep rallies, always before home games; assemblies, whenever a prominent citizen was available for addressing the students on a relevant subject. Perhaps the most memorable one was in 1955. Rear Admiral Donald B. MacMillan presented an illustrated lecture on his explorations of the Arctic Circle. Another was in 1962, which was held in the old Bijou theatre. (Razed in the early 1970s to make room for the present Merrill Trust Company Building, Exchange Street.) There were over 700 students present. The band—Paul Dinsomore, Director—and the Glee Club—Mr. William Cupp, Director—were featured. After the Christmas message given by the Reverend Charles Dartnell, President Husson announced that "fifty acres of land had been purchased on outer Broadway for the new campus"!

Beginning in the Depression years (1936) an annual trip to Boston for sightseeing was taken by the majority of the students. Such an experience was a highlight for many students who never before had been beyond Penobscot County. These annual treks to Boston continued to be anticipated with much enthusiasm until the late 1950s. The sorority for years went to Boston, while the fraternity selected Canadian cities to visit for its spring outing.

Mu Sigma Chi, organized in 1931 with Mr. Husson and Mr. Linscott cosponsors, has been active except for 1943-1948. It affiliated with Pi Rho Zeta in 1962. Through the years it has sponsored many social activities: parties; Christmas Balls, other get-togethers, and civic and philanthropic projects. Membership is by invitation.

Likewise, membership in Epsilon Tau Epsilon (ETE) founded in 1933, is by invitation. It is the oldest, continuously active group on campus. It became the first national Greek letter organization at Husson in 1946 when it was chartered the Epsilon Tau Epsilon Chapter of Pi Rho Zeta (PRZ) International, an organization for college business men and women. As the student body expanded and the collegiate status of the College became a degree-granting one, ETE Chapter was restructured to provide for two-year program students. Delta Sigma Delta, with Miss Mildred Bradford, sponsor, became the second local Chapter of Pi Rho Zeta International in 1956.

For nearly twenty years, Miss Swan, assisted by Miss Bradford, was sponsor of ETE. The group participated in many and varied activities, both formal and informal: the May Ball, the annual weekend in Boston, large representations to the annual international conclave of PRZ, charities, shows and reviews, outings, mother-daughter banquets, publishing the yearbook (1956) and newspaper (ca 1950s-1960s). At this time a fiftieth-year reunion is being planned for 1984.

The Dramatic Club—Husson Players—was an outgrowth of the Public Speaking Program, required of all Business Teacher Education (three-year normal, 1932) enrollees. It was so stipulated by the Maine State Department of Education for certification. Each student would prepare and present some type of speech, around ten to fifteen minutes in length, before the student body. This requirement was soon superseded by the Dramatic Club Activities (1935). Although not active every year and often coached by directors not primarily affiliated with the College, the Cluh has afforded many students an opportunity to experience that "the play's the thing". One of its most ambitious productions was Ondine, 1962. Mr. Albert Weymouth has been its director for the longest period of time.

Not directly related to the Dramatic Club, but surely a "flashback" to its origin at Husson was the participation of five Business Teacher Education seniors in the Maine Intercollegiate Forensics. Never before had Husson College participated in any of the collegiate forensics held annually by Bates College, Bowdoin College, Colby College, and the University of Maine, Orono. In 1954, the College was invited to participate. Despite the limited time for preparation and the fact that the participants had only a two-hour course in Speech, five members volunteered: Virginia Blood, Barbara Briggs, Dorothy Crane, Patricia Robbins, Oliver Ward. Each received a "good" or excellent rating.

Early in 1935 a small group of men and women organized the first orchestra. In 1937, there was an outstanding orchestra of twelve members under the direction of Mr. Husson. It appeared before various clubs and organizations in Bangor, assemblies at the College, and commencement exercises. Again, in the 1960s an orchestra of 21 members under the direction of Paul Dinsmore, '64, added much to college life appearing at all home games, assemblies, homecoming and special programs. A jazz band was popular during the late 1970s. The Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. William Cupp, also was popular in the 1960s.

From time to time, students have organized associations or clubs built around their major interest professionally. There have been many—some long-lived, others, intermittently; all having merit.

One of the first associations organized by a special interest group was the Future Teachers of America (FTA), 1949. Identified as the Fockner-Nichols Chapter, it was the first to be organized in the State. Its membership was limited to members of the Business Teacher Education Department. One of its outstanding contributions to the College was establishing a library at 157 Park Street. In the middle 1950s the organization changed its title to Student Education Association; it was dissolved in the late 1970s.

The Accounting Society—also identified as the Accounting Club and VITA (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance) has been active intermittently since 1949.

The Future Secretaries Association, organized in 1967, was co-sponsored by the local chapter of the National Secretaries Association. It afforded students enrolled in the Office Administration Department an opportunity to meet prominent leaders of the local business community and to discuss procedures relevant to their careers. The association was discontinued in 1975.

As the College increased its enrollment from an ever-widening geographic area, the social activities expanded to provide for a greater scope of interests. Those organizations which had their roots in the '20s and '30s continued to be active; they were complemented by many other organizations: religions, political, special interest, service, social.

The Newman Club, Christian Association, Hillel Club, and Shalom Council—all provided students the opportunity to be in touch with a common bond.

During Presidential campaigns the Young Republican Club and the Young Democratic Club, under the sponsorship of prominent local political leaders, enjoyed the "give and take" of national campaigning.

From time to time Veterans Club and Veterans' Wives Club have been active, affording the veterans and their wives an opportunity for socializing.

Other clubs have included Business Administration Club, the Chess Club, the Debate Club, the Marketing Club. None of these has been continuously active, in so far as verifiable.

There has been a group of organizations at the College that are primarily service oriented. Oldest among these is Circle K, organized in 1963. It was they who erected the sign on outer Broadway to mark the site of the new campus.

Another is the Presidential Guides, 1971. Usually upperclassmen, they contribute freely of their time and enthusiasm in being hosts and hostesses to visitors on campus.

Prominent among the students' news media are The Spectator and the radio station, WHSN. The Spectator and the yearbook, The Chieftain, have been presented in Chapter Six, PUBLICATIONS. WHSN, the College-owned radio station, was established ca 1972. Beginning as an AM station, it became an FM facility in 1974. It affords students interested in broadcasting, an excellent opportunity for getting experience in radio.

For a quarter century, the two local social groups—Mu Sigma Chi, fraternity, and Epsilon Tau Epsilon, sorority—encompassed the special interests socially. The MSC (Maine School of Commerce) Club (1926-1940s) sponsored all activities involving the entire student body. However, as the interests and the composition of the college population modified after World War II and the institution took on a more collegiate status, a broader and more varied social calendar evolved.

Epsilon Tau Epsilon affiliated with Pi Rho Zeta, an international Greek letter business organization. After the College became a degree-granting institution, two chapters of the sorority were formed: Epsilon Tau Epsilon, for baccalaureate degree women; Delta Sigma Delta (1956), for associate degree women. (From 1956 to 1966 the two-year diploma was awarded; since 1966, associate degrees have been awarded.)

An undergraduate Teachers Club, made up of all the men enrolled in the Business Teacher Education program, was organized in the fall of 1952, preliminary to founding a chapter of Kappa Delta Phi at the College.

At that time Kappa Delta Phi, the fraternity with which Mr. Husson was affiliated on the undergraduate level, was exclusively committed to men entering the educational profession. In November, 1952, the National officers of Kappa Delta Phi initiated the local officers and members and presented them with the charter for Lambda Chapter. Currently, membership is open to all male degree students.

Since the change in the corporate structure, 1961, and the occupancy of the new facility, 1968, other Greek-letter organizations have been welcomed on campus.

The Greek Council, made up of the officers of the several Greek-letter organizations on campus, was formed in 1973. Representatives on the Council are the officers of the following:

Phi Rho Zeta (1946)
Mu Sigma Chi Chapter (1931) (1962)
Epsilon Tau Epsilon Chapter (1934) (1946)
Delta Sigma Delta Chapter (1956)

Kappa Delta Phi
Lambda Chapter (1952)
Kappa Lambda Sorority (1971)

Tau Kappa Epsilon (1970)

Tau Epsilon Phi (1973)

The Order of Diana, an independent organization for women, was formed in 1973. Its primary interest is to sponsor activities for those students to whom Greek-letter organizations groups do not appeal.

The International Club, begun in the academic year 1966-1967, serves well both the interest of foreign students and the enrichment of other Husson students. There have been representatives from 50 different countries. They are:

The Cultural Committee, which essentially is an expansion of the Arts Committee, is made up of representatives from the student body, the faculty, and the Joh Corps. The Arts Committee, organized in 1975, was limited in its effectiveness. With the enlargement, ca 1980, the Committee has developed an excellent calendar for the entire academic year. It includes speakers, art exhibits, films, the performing arts—covering a wide range of interests.

For over thirty years, an activity—Chief-for-a-Day—has afforded the entire student body an opportunity annually to become better acquainted and to enjoy a common interest. Organized in 1950 upon the suggestion of William Booker, '55, the activity was first sponsored by the Social Director. Since 1952 the Student Council (currently identified as Student Government) has been the sponsor. The sponsors, procedures, themes, activities—all have varied from time to time; yet, each year has culminated in the recognition of popular students.

Student Government is the most representative organization on campus. Its members and officers elected annually represent all segments of student enrollment. Begun in 1936 when the student hody numhered over one hundred, it was known as the Senior Council. Its title has varied from time to time to reflect better its responsihilities to and relationships with college life. During World War II, particularly 1943-1946, the Council was inactive. However, after 1946 and again a larger student enrollment, the need for student government was recognized. The title changed to Student Council (1947-1963). There were further modifications: Student Senate; later, Student Government.

For the past decade Student Government has assumed greater leadership on Campus. Its president receives a stipend; he or she is also a member of the Husson College Board of Trustees.

Each year at the spring election of officers, a member is selected for the David S. Robinson Award. This award is in honor of Mr. David S. Robinson, a former member of the faculty, who advised the Student Senate in the 1960s and was instrumental in restructuring its constitution to reflect more accurately its function and objectives.

There have been a number of recreational activities that afforded participation in a common interest. Oldest of these was hiking. It was popular during the Depression years with as many as three teams of fifteen members each qualifying for MSC letters. It cost nothing but shoe leather; the exercise, worth the effort.

Cheerleading, introduced with the occupancy of the facility, 157 Park Street, has become a very supportive part of the athletic program. It is open to both men and women; by and large, however, women have dominated the teams.

For a decade following World War II, bowling was popular with a large group of students. Both men and women formed several teams each year. Competition was keen; play-offs fostered much enthusiasm.

During the late 1950s, swimming was popular among women students. The YMCA pool was used. Those completing ten hours of swimming received athletic letters.

Judo appealed to a small group of students during the 1960s. Black, green, and brown belt holders participated in the sport. Classes were held at the YMCA. Matches were held with teams from Dow Air Base, University of Maine, Pease Air Force Base, Goosehay Air Force Base and St. Joseph's YMCA.

Other recreational activities have included a Riflery Club, an Outing Club, and a Tennis Club.

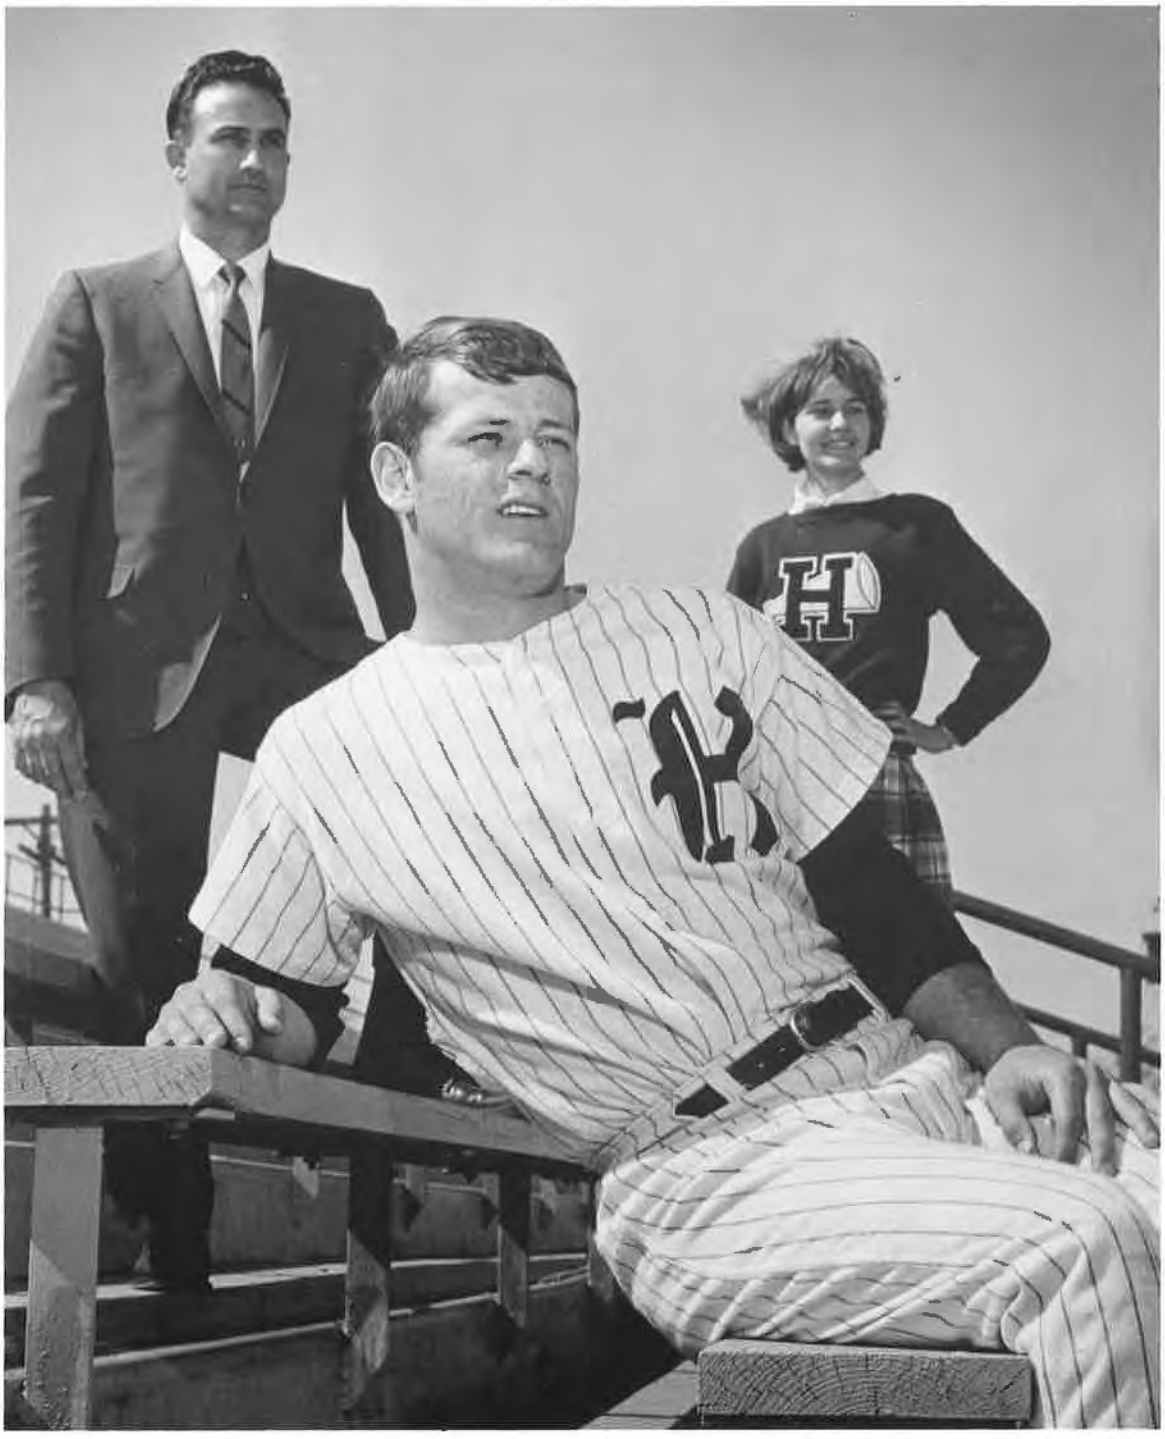

Since occupancy of the new facility, One College Circle, the College maintains an inclusive program of social and recreational activities so that each student may become involved in total living on Campus.

All of these activities—social, cultural, service, independent, political, recreational, religious—afford a wide spectrum of opportunities for student participation.

ATHLETICS

Athletics have been a proud part of the Husson College tradition for many years. A formal sports program really began in 1926 under the leadership of Chief Husson. Interestingly, he described himself as principal, teacher, and coach. There is ample evidence that he believed in sports, just as he did in student activities, as an adjunct to the academic curriculum. His belief in fair play, good sportsmanship, and the concept of the "whole man" has been continued through the years and is today the underlying philosophy of sports at Husson. Basically that philosophy is one that encourages wide participation in sports and the provision of a program which makes it possible for all students, whatever their interests and abilities, to participate.

Athletic programs at Husson may be historically classified. The first period was from 1926 until the advent of World War II. Two varsity sports were established in 1926, men's and women's basketball. The latter has existed continuously since that time. Men's basketball, as will be subsequently noted, was suspended during World War II. Concurrently, two student support organizations were established: the Men's Athletic Association (MAA) and the Women's Athletic Association (WAA). The MAA was restructured in 1935 under the sponsorship of Mr. Husson and Mr. Robert Lunt, and the "first official meeting" was held on October 19, 1935. The purpose of the organization was to "sponsor all sports and to raise funds for underwriting them". The constitution stated that the Association has " ... the power to supervise and control athletics, awards, wearing of the school letter — in short, anything pertaining to athletics". The MAA held a number of fund-raising events including an annual raffle, Thanksgiving dance, cabaret, and other parties. With the limited space on Columbia Street, events were held at the Y.M.C.A. on Hammond Street, the Roseland Ballroom on Center Street, or in Dahlberg Hall. In 1940, the MAA purchased new basketball uniforms for the team.

In the 1920s and 1930s, basketball teams practiced and played their games either at the Y.M.C.A. or in the gymnasium at the Bangor Theological Seminary.

It is notable that the women's team was established in 1926. In that time there were few basketball teams for women. For many years the Husson team would have to play local high school teams.

In 1928 the first "club" sport was established. It was hiking for women. That same year the athletic program was considerably expanded to include ice hockey and baseball. Hockey was played for seven years (1928, 1936-1942). Initially, the team played on the frozen river and one can well imagine that the conditions were not always ideal. In 1940, however, a boarded rink was constructed behind the then Webber Motor Company at 499 Hammond Street. Lights were installed and the six home games were played at night. Husson won five of them.

A football team was established in 1932. A full, traditional, eleven-man team was fielded until 1936. In 1937 no team was fielded, and in 1938 the school "sported six-man football". Apparently football received enthusiastic support for several years. Later there was less interest, and football was not revived after the War.

Track was added in 1939. Because of the impending Second World War, it was a short-lived program although cross country would be established in the 1960s. Largely because of the success of the sports program, especially basketball, a cheerleading team was formed in 1940.

With one exception, women's basketball, the entire sports program at Husson College was suspended during the 1942 academic year. Many of the men in the student body (and some women, too) had entered the armed forces. In the 1944-1945 academic year, only eleven male students were enrolled at Husson. Gasoline shortages made athletic travel impossible. It simply was not a time for sports. Clearly the minds of Husson students, like all Americans, was on the war. An era of development had come to an end.

With final victory over the Axis powers by the Allies, however, the mood of America changed, this time to one of elation. Veterans returned to complete interrupted educations; and enrollments at Husson, like most American institutions, increased sharply. The veterans, of course, were older. Many had family responsibilities and little time for sports. Certainly they were more serious about their studies. The Husson athletic program did not immediately respond to the end of the war.

Much of the credit for the revival of the athletic program following the war must go to George "Huck" Husson, a brother of the President. But it was really in 1954 that the modern era of Husson athletics began. That year a young man who had survived the island war in the Pacific, who had received his professional education at Husson, who had taught and coached for five years in high schools, and who would eventually become President of the institution was hired as an instructor. That year Del Merrill began to build a program.

He had excelled as a player at Husson. He had been captain of both baseball and basketball teams. Now, as an instructor at Husson, he would coach those two sports; basketball for the next fourteen years, and baseball for the next nineteen years. The records of his teams were consistently good. In basketball he had a total of 197 wins and 86 losses; in baseball he had 195 wins and 82 losses.

In 1962 soccer was added; and in 1966, two women's sports, volleyball and softball. Both continue today as does men's soccer.

In 1968, the Husson athletic program took a major stride forward. That was the year that Husson moved into an all-new campus. Included in that campus was a comprehensive physical education complex surrounded by ample space for playing fields. The days of renting facilities and going here or there to practice were finally over for the athletic program. The complex, named for Bangor banker and long-time benefactor of the College, William P. Newman, was clean, well-equipped, and commodious. Design of the facility was fully in consonance with the philosophy of the athletic program. There was indeed "something for everyone". It included an olympic-sized swimming pool, an indoor rifle and pistol range, a steam room, a weight room, a wrestling room, training rooms, adequate office space for the administrative and coaching staffs, and a gymnasium for basketball and other sports which would accommodate 2,500 spectators! To the east were located the soccer and baseball fields; to the west ample parking spaces. Locker and shower room facilities were exactly equal for both men's and women's teams.

By 1983, planning was underway for the construction of several tennis courts to be located in front of and across the road from the Newman complex. In 1970 a wrestling team was added. One interesting sports program which has not heretofore been mentioned is the golf team which was established in 1963. It is the only co-ed team in the history of the College. Its home links have been the Bangor Municipal Golf Course located on Webster Avenue in Bangor.

Today Husson College has seven varsity sports; soccer, men's and women's basketball, women's volleyball and softball, baseball, and co-ed golf.

During the modern era of the Husson College athletic program, the institution has gained a regional, national, and even international reputation for the teams it fields. It is affiliated with two recognized national associations, the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). These affiliations, and particularly that with the NCAA in 1981, has allowed Husson to compete against better teams. Today it competes with major Maine Colleges, such as Bowdoin, Bates, and Colby, as well as with the University of Maine at Orono and the University of Southern Maine.

In recent years there has been a trend of having more Maine native athletes. In the current year, six out of seven varsity athletes come from Maine, and one-fifth of the total student body are varsity athletes.

Over the years, there have been a number of highlights in the athletic program. An early one was the 1961-1962 basketball team which played an undefeated seventeen-game schedule under Coach Del Merrill. In 1967 the golf team coached by Dick Vizard was undefeated. The next year, 1968, the same team coached by Pete Tucker was undefeated.

Husson teams have had a remarkable record in tournament and league competition. It really started in 1972-1973 when the baseball team coached by Del Merrill won the NAIA District #32 championship. Since then, Husson teams have won at least one NAIA New England championship each year, and in men's competition alone, it has won sixteen such championships in the last eleven years.

In the last nine years, Husson has competed in eight international tournaments. In 1978 the basketball team toured England and competed in the Doncaster International Tournament. Four years later it toured both England and Scotland and beat Sunderland, the National English champions. It has also competed internationally in the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

It would, of course, he impossible to mention the hundreds of people who have made so many contributions to the Husson College athletic program. There have been the athletes, the coaches, the managers, the supporters, and the benefactors. But there are those who must be included as a part of the historical record. "Chief" Husson was the one who started it all. As noted, his philosophy of athletics is pervasive throughout the program today. He was an indefatigable coach who maintained his keen interest in athletics throughout his later years.

Del Merrill was the architect of the modern athletic program as it is known today. His remarkable coaching record has been noted. He was the first Director of Athletics and stressed the idea that a good athletic program should provide for all. It was he who changed the title from "Director of Athletics" to "Director for Sports, Recreation, and Intramurals" to reflect the comprehensive nature of the program.

Keith Mahaney was the second Director. During his administration, he strengthened the golf program considerably. His 1970 team was undefeated. The current Director is D. Bruce MacGregor who was appointed to that post in 1978. During his tenure as basketball coach, he has established the Husson basketball team as one of the most successful ones in the nation by NAIA and NCAA Division II standards. He has led his basketball teams to national tournaments in England and Scotland. He has also led baseball and golf teams to New England championships and national competition. Coach MacGregor's 1975-1976 basketball team was undefeated in thirty games.

Just as Mr. Husson established men's sports at Husson, Miss Clara L. Swan was instrumental in establishing an especially strong women's program. She was a long-time basketball coach and adviser to the Women's Athletic Association (1940-1957). During World War II, she was able to continue women's basketball as the only intercollegiate sport at the College. She continued to coach until 1959. Her 1952-1953 and 1957-1958 teams were undefeated.

Miss Swan was succeeded by Janet Kinney who is today the Head of the Department of Office Administration at Husson. She coached women's basketball and was the adviser to the Women's Athletic Association and cheerleading squad. Her 1958-1959 team was undefeated.

In 1970 Pamala Hennessey was appointed Women's Athletics Director, Aquatics Director, and Women's basketball coach. Since then her teams have had a winning record. In 1974-1975 her team was state champion. She developed as well a comprehensive women's intramural program.

Over the years, perhaps several thousands of student athletes participated in varsity sports at Husson College. Each made a unique contribution to the athletic tradition of the institution. There were the stars and the play-makers. There were the student athletic managers who indefatigably supported the teams. There were the cheerleaders and the students who came to cheer.

As with any athletic program, some years were better than others although the proud tradition was always there. The record shows that there were eight undefeated teams over the years, the 1960-1961 basketball team under Coach Del Merrill, the 1975-1976 basketball team under Coach Bruce MacGregor, and no less than seven golf teams, four of which were under Coach Keith Mahaney.

Individual and team records have been made and broken. It is perhaps notable that all the records established in baseball were in the decade of the 1960s and still stand today. Similarly, all standing records in men's and women's basketball and soccer were established in the decade of the 1970s. A brief recapitulation of current records is as follows:

Finally, mention must be made of two important aspects of the athletic program, the annual Paul Bunyan Tournament in basketball and the Husson College Athletic Association. The former was established in 1963, and has been played continuously since that year.

It was designed to be a "tip-off tournament" in the sense that it would bring teams together by invitation early in the season to establish a sense of spirit. Teams invited have generally been those which Husson does not play during the regular season.

The Husson College Athletic Association was established as a service to the community. For a nominal fee, local residents may use all of the athletic facilities. It has been a highly popular program with area recreational athletes.
