GOVERNMENT INTERNS FROM HUSSON

Two Husson College students have been selected to participate in the twelve-week Maine State Government Summer Internship Program. Approximately 190 students statewide applied for the thirty-six available positions.

Patricia A. O'Brien of Hallowell, a junior accounting major, will work as a development assistant within the state Development Office. Her time will be divided between assembling an available industrial buildings and industrial sites file and assisting in financial packaging assistance which entails assisting staff working with Maine companies which are expanding.

Robert C. Bruder of Lewiston, a junior majoring in business administration, has been named training staff assistant in the Bureau of Central Computer Services within the state's Department of Finance and Administration. As staff assistant, he will conduct inventory of training materials and resources, arrange the materials so as to provide ease of location and accessibility and will provide that there is a correct file stored in the computer.

The program has two-way benefits for both the participants and State Government. The participants will gain a better general understanding of State Government operations, a paid work experience with a selected State agency, an opportunity to exchange views with and contribute to the work of State officials, familiarity with State career opportunities, and work experience that will increase their opportunities for more productive permanent employment in the future.

For State Government, the program includes such benefits as: short-term assistance in completing work assignments important to participating State agencies, involvement of men and women interested in future employment with the State, the opportunity to gain from participants new ideas and approaches to State operations, as well as an opportunity to provide participants a greater familiarity with the internal workings of State Government.

Senator Cohen, Pelletier & Spooner

Cohen To Speak At Husson Commencement

U.S. Senator William Cohen (R-Maine) will address approximately 230 students receiving associate, baccalaureate and graduate degrees at the 85th Husson College commencement on Saturday, May 12, 1984.

Cohen, educator Clara Swan and Clifton Eames, president of N.H. Bragg Company, will receive honorary degrees.

The 43 year old Cohen was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1978. He is a member of the Armed Services and Governmental Affairs Committees as well as the Special Committee on Aging and the Select Committee on Intelligence. He recently returned from a trip to the Soviet Union where he met with Soviet officials to discuss arms control.

Cohen, a Bangor native, was first elected to public office as a city councilor in Bangor in 1969; he was chosen mayor of Bangor for the 1971-72 term. He was elected to Congress in 1972 and re-elected in 1974 and 1976.

In 1974, Cohen rose to national prominence as a member of the House Judiciary Committee which conducted the historic impeachment inquiry.

He was a James Bowdoin scholar at Bowdoin College, from which he graduated in 1962 with an A.B. in Latin. He received his LL.B. cum laude from Boston University Law School in 1965. Cohen was admitted to the bar in 1965 and became a partner in a Bangor law firm.

In 1968, he became Assistant County Attourney for Penobscot County. He also maintained an active interest in academic life, serving as an instructor at Husson College in 1968 and at UMO from 1968-1972.

Writing has been Cohen's principal avocation for many years. A volume of his poems, Of Sons and Seasons, was published in 1978. Roll Call, a journal of his first year in the Senate, was published in 1981. A book on cutting through government red tape, Getting the Most out of Washington, was published in 1982.

Educator Clara Swan is a graduate of Husson College, class of '33, and a prominent member of the Husson College Community. She taught at Husson College and rose within the ranks to eventually hold the position of Vice President for Academic Affairs. She is currently President and a member of the Board of Directors of the Husson College Alumni Association.

As President of N.H. Bragg, Clifton Eames represents the fifth generation of his family to serve that company. Eames principal concerns lie in the areas of economic development and social welfare of people in the community. Eames serves on a number of boards and is associated with numerous local and state organizations.

High Tech at Husson

"Computers in the Classroom" read today's news headlines, but computers are not "news" in the Husson College classroom. Computers have been an important part of the Husson curriculum since 1968. Several Husson alumni are able to boast of earning a degree in business administration with a concentration in data processing. Many now hold key positions with well known firms.

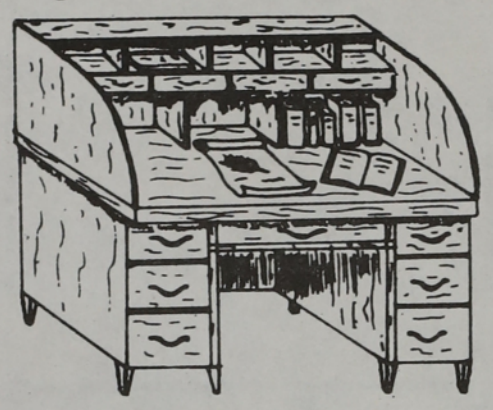

The use of the computer at Husson, however, is not limited to those courses listed in the catalog as computer information systems/data processing. Computers and computer applications are being intergrated throughout the Husson curriculum with computers used in courses in mathematics, finance, accounting, and science.

"Husson College has probably one of the better, more inclusive computer information systems curricula in the area," says Dr. Philip C. Grant, Acting Dean for Academic Affairs. Nine courses in computer information systems/data processing are currently offered. They range from courses in computer programming languages (COBOL, BASIC, and RPG) to more advanced courses such as Systems Analysis and Design, and Database Design. The College's regular curriculum also offers four courses in word/information processing.

Likewise, the College offers a variety of workshops and special seminars throughout the year devoted to familiarizing the average learner or user with the IBM System/34 computer and the IBM microcomputer. Workshops focusing on word processing technology are also held annually.

Husson has set no limit on the amount of "state of the art" equipment which is made available to students and faculty alike. The College has four CPT word processing units, an IBM System/34 computer with 14 terminals set aside for exclusive student use, fourteen IBM personal computers and three TRS 80 computers.

FROM THE EDITOR

The Spectator is proud to announce that we now have a stabilization processor. This new piece of equipment will save our photo lab technicians much time in the darkroom!

The stabilization processor will eliminate the need for trays. This, in turn, frees counter space.

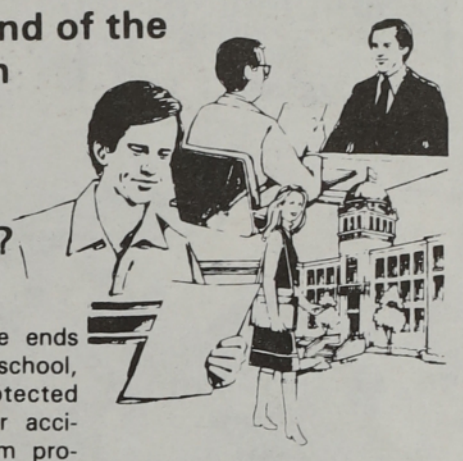

During the last two weeks, Dan and Rich have been reworking the darkroom to make it more space efficient and more functional.

It is our hope that during the next year, we will be able to generate enough funds to purchase the additional equipment necessary to make this a professional darkroom. That's right, we want to be able to process color as well as black and white. We are considering the possibility of doing colored prints for the 1985 yearbook.

We are also looking forward to using this darkroom as a base for training future photo editors and darkroom technicians.

The Spectator wishes to congratulate all those who are graduating, good luck in your new endeavors. And we'll see the rest of you in the fall!

Does the End of the Term mean the End of your Insurance Protection?

If your insurance ends when you leave school, you are unprotected against illness or accident. Short Term protection from Time Insurance provides basic hospital coverage . . . for 60, 90, 120, 180 or 365 days. At reasonable rates. And the plan can be signed and issued on the spot, with coverage beginning immediately. Of course, there's no coverage for pre-existing conditions.

You may need this necessary protection. Let me tell you about it.

Husson Softball

-by Lynne Michaud

The Women's Softball Team has been practicing since returning from spring break. The squad is eager to play, in spite of uncooperative weather conditions.

Coaching again, this year, is Pam Hennessey, a professor here at Husson College. Assisting for the Lady Braves is Susan DeMauro. The coaches and the team are quite optimistic about this particular season.

The team is captained by two strong leaders elected by their teammates: Jennifer Noyes and Tanya Busch. Both of these women are excellent players. Jennifer is a senior veteran who made the NAIA District Team last season. Tanya is the team's catcher with outstanding ability.

The infield is composed of Ann Morin, Lynne Michaud, and Shara MacDonald, who are returning letter veterans. The outfield also consists of letter winners, Theresa Lunt and Jennifer Noyes. The defensive ability of the Lady Braves is, at this point, their strongest attribute.

The freshmen with much potential, include Rhonda Simpson, Holly Noyes, and Barbara Lumbert. The remainder of the team consists of Shannon Whiting, who will no doubt start at third base, and Donna Demmons an outfielder.

The Lady Braves would appreciate any support the Husson College Community could offer, especially since most of the games are scheduled here.

Why Did I Stop?

-by Mike Gagnon

A month ago was the last time I wrote an article for the Spectator. Since that time, I have had many people ask me why.

There are several reasons why I stopped. One is a personal reason, therefore I won't go into it. However there are two more reasons which I don't mind stating at this time.

First of all, we all need to take a break sometime. I was writing between 3,000 and 5,000 words per week for the Spectator. This can get old very fast. Those of you who have ever had to write a 500 word essay should understand. I must add, however, that the money was good. The Spectator pays 1 cent per word, in other words, I was receiving between $30 and $50 per week! I only wish more students would have written for the paper, after all, it is our paper.

My second reason for letting up on the paper was time. Plainly stating, I didn't have any. Besides writing for the Spectator, I am going to school, student teaching a media class, recruiting for the Husson College media program, the News Director at WHSN, an intern at WABI TV, and I'm trying to develop a television facility for Husson College.

Now that I have explained why I stopped writing, perhaps you people will tell me why you never wrote.

GREEKS

-by Bob Bruder

It is unfortunate that my last article was misunderstood by a small portion of the Husson community. I can see how this could have happened. As I stated, in my last article, there are some people who will not look at Greeks rationally. To support this statement, I refer to the Spectator, April 16, this statement was made in reference to Greeks: "I am 'desolate', 'closeminded', and believe only what I want." Because I am very concerned about Husson College and it's future, I will attempt to give another view of Greek organizations and explain Greek life.

No matter how you look at it, Greeks are an important part of Husson College. Lets take a serious look at the role Greeks play. Would you like to talk about student leaders on campus? President and Vice-President of Student Government for my first three years at Husson have been Greeks. Next year's President, Vice-President, Commuter President are all Greek. I could list numerous other positions held by Greeks, but these are the most important. True, some of these people, if not Greek would still pursue leadership positions, but not all. I know that many of them were encouraged, inspired, and most of all supported by their respective organization. If Greeks are so meaningless, then why do they year after year continue to get involved.

Greeks also hold many activities that involve the WHOLE campus. As was stated in my last article, Greeks hold parties, sponsor semi-formal events, and what I consider most important-social service projects. To do many of these activities, it takes an organized group of people who will cooperate and work together. Think twice before you say "anyone can do these events." After all, how many blood drives have you seen that were not sponsored by TEP?, how many kegrolls have you seen other than TKE's?, and how many major parties has there been other than Greek sponsored ones? So before you say "I seriously doubt" these activities would come to a halt with out Greek organizations take a look at the past.

Greek organizations also benefit Husson College indirectly. Being in a Greek organization developes many different aspects of an individual, therefore allowing this person to use his/her personal talents in the Husson Community.

The first benefit I want to talk about is Social Awareness. Members of a Greek organization are given the opportunity of working in a wide variety of human relation situations. Working cooperatively with people of various personal backgrounds, ideas, and aspirations give members a broader sense of social awareness. Greeks learn to accept each individual for who they are. Can you see how social awareness is a very important factor in campus harmony?

Second, a member will develop Leadership. By serving as an officer, chairman, or other responsible positions, members develop the skills of leadership. I have already given you some examples of how Greeks are leaders on the Husson Campus.

The last benefit I will mention is Business Experience. The management of an organization is much like that of a business. The president is responsible for the smooth operation of an organization. The treasurer has financial matters to supervise and must use standard accounting principles to be successful. The vice-president, secretary, and chairmen also receive training in organization procedure which is of lasting benefit. If graduates of Husson show they have this experience upon graduation, wouldn't businesses be more apt to hire Husson graduates?

Now I would like to explain a little about pledging. Why do Greeks have pledging process? The answer is actually quite simple. The two weeks a person pledges provides a solid base for a lot of the intangible benefits each member acquires. Intangible benefits being such things as everlasting friendship and love between the members of an organization.

During pledging the potential new members work with each other and the Brothers/Sisters to attain these uncommon but valuable benefits. This is done through certain activities which bring out each person's strengths, weaknesses, true personalities, and other important characteristics. Knowing these things about each member is really what Greek organizations are all about. Getting to know each member inside and out is the whole reason behind pledging. After all if you don't know the members of your organization how will it ever operate effectively.

I would also like to clear up ANOTHER misunderstanding. The campus is not divided into "Greeks" and "AntiGreeks". There are Greeks, people who have chosen not to be Greek but respect those of us who have, and a minute percent who oppose Greeks because they have never taken the time to find out what a Greek organization REALLY is.

In closing, the Greeks at Husson College realize that our organizations aren't perfect, but what organization is? Through the work projects, social service projects, and inter-relating with our Brothers/Sisters we learn to respect EVERYONE for who they are. We truely believe in the ideals of Fraternity/Sorority life, and are constantly striving with our Brothers/Sisters to achieve these lofty goals!

In Black & White

-by Jeff Jenks

In an internal policy shift, Husson College will now farm out all of its black and white photography to its own student-operated darkroom. Cost comparisons showed that the expert student photographers consistently billed less than commercial labs and with quicker turn-around time and better quality. Now that the lab has a new stabilization processor, it is expected that costs will drop further and turn-around will be quicker yet.

College departments needing black and white pictures up to 8 X 10 in size should contact Jeff Jenks in the Spectator office. Please allow one week's notice.

The College's Data Center is open 24 hours a day, year-round. Also, the Continuing Education and Extension Division, which offers courses at several sites throughout the state, has computers available for student use.

In the not to distant future, Grant revealed, the College will construct a complex for all computer and computer-related equipment. The complex will be located within one area of the College and will be accessible year-round. The complex will be known as the Husson College Technology Center.

The Technology Center may be coupled with the current learning resources center of the College which has video tape machines as well as personal computers to aid students in the learning process.

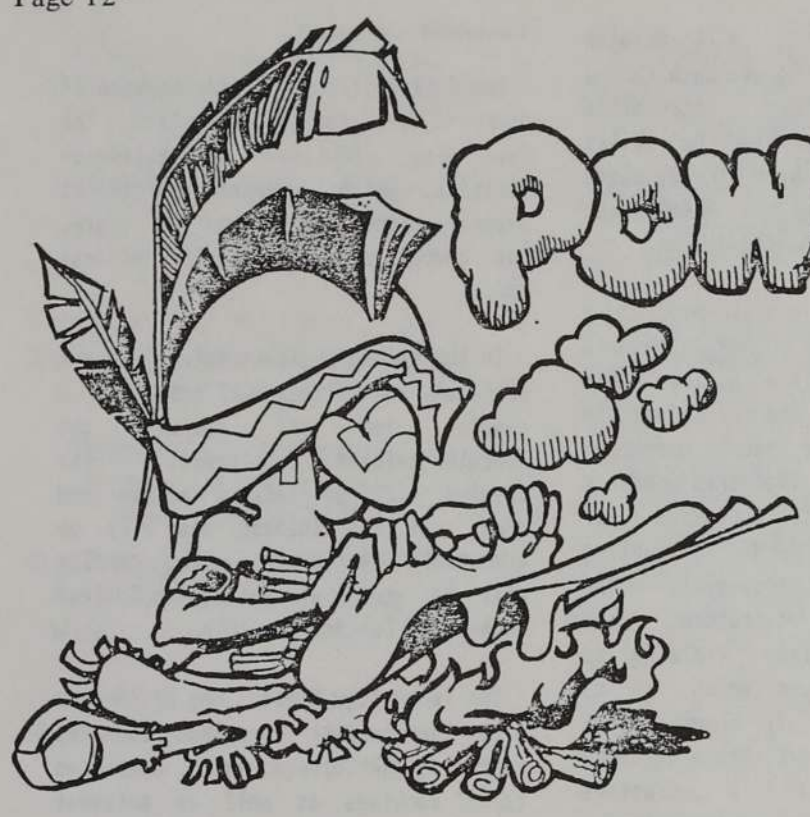

Husson College offers two-and four-year degree programs in the areas of word processing and data processing. According to Grant, the four-year Computer Information Systems program prepares the graduate for such positions as programmer, systems analyst, information systems designer or manager, or manager of a computer center. The word processing degree recipient can anticipate a rewarding career as a data entry person, word processing center manager, marketing support representative or other challenging positions.

It is well known that individuals who have expertise in the area of the computer will be in increasing demand in the job market.

Grant points out that students taking computer information systems courses are not locked into careers in data processing or word processing. "Students need not go into that area exclusively," he said, "computer courses are useful in all areas of work, they enrich the individual's background and help make the student a well-rounded professional!" Grant adds that anyone can learn about computers at Husson by taking just one course, attending a workshop, or enrolling as a full-time student in a degree program.

"Husson College is among the leaders in this area of education and what we offer is accessible and available to all who want to expand their horizons and become a part of today's technology revolution," he said.

Husson College is proud of its curriculum development in the area of computer information systems and technology and welcomes all inquiries and visitors. "We would be happy to demonstrate our computer capability to anyone," Grant says. The College's Admissions office is ready to arrange tours for interested persons.
