Activities Fair

By Viviana Altomari

Each year Husson holds an activities fair to acquaint students with the extracurricular activities Husson has to offer. This is an excellent event sponsored by Student Government.

This year the following groups participated: THE SPECTATOR, Circle K, Phi Beta Lambda, the Social Committee, and the International Club.

Although there were few participants this year, there was a lot of information given out by those who were there. All who participated would be congratulated and should be wished the best of luck.

We all hope that next year's Activities Fair will attract an even bigger crowd and more groups will participate.

International Club

Will be holding weekly International Hours on every Wednesday in Room 134 in Prescott. To accomodate different schedules, the meetings will alternate with evening and afternoon times. The meeting times will be as follows:

October	11	3:00 p.m.
	18	7:00 p.m.
	25	3:00 p.m.
November	1	7:00 p.m.

Everyone is encouraged to attend the International Hours. Different topics will be discussed at each meeting.

Before I came here, I had been working in a German securities company for 2 years and six months. My office was located on the 22nd floor in a building which had 33 floors. So when the weather was fine, we could enjoy a beautiful view of Tokyo.

Now I remember it was just an ordinary day, very busy with a lot of transactions as usual. But it was already after the market had closed, so we all were relieved. Then that earthquake happened.

First of all I didn't understand what had happened. I just felt as if we had crashed in a hole. It took me sometime to realize that we had had an earthquake. As Japan is located in an earthquake zone, most Japanese people are used to earthquakes. We Japanese have been taught how to behave when an earthquake comes, so we aren't too surprised at an ordinary one. But this time it was quite unusual, so I was a little afraid that it might be a big one. All the paintings on the wall were swinging. All the elevators were stopped. We couldn't even talk over the phone because it was out of order. I am sure that it was the biggest one that I've ever experienced, but it calmed down soon, so we resumed our work.

Since it was a German company, there were also German people working there. I was really surprised to see one of those people, because he was as pale as if he had seen a ghost. I could hardly keep myself from laughing because he had always seemed strong. But it wasn't a joke for him. Some of the other German people were enjoying their first experience. They said that it had been like experiencing a poltergeist.

When I go back to Japan, I will have to find a job. Next time I work, I want to work on the first or second floor in a building which doesn't have too many floors.

I would like to address those individuals who complain there isn't enough to do here at Husson. The Activities Fair that was held last week proved that there is a lot to do here if you look for it. Many groups were there and I noticed that people rushed by the tables and didn't even glance at them twice. I understand that many people were rushing off to class, but there is really no excuse for doing that and then complaining that there is nothing to do.

What do you want those of us who belong to organizations to do: knock on all your doors and plead with you to join? Give us a break! We would love to get more people to join our clubs, but we can't very well drag people to meetings. It takes a little effort on your part for clubs to work.

By the same token, I'm not going to let the clubs off the hook either. Some members of certain clubs complain that they don't have enough people in their organizations, but when an opportunity like the Activities Fair comes up, not only do they not have a single representative there, they don't even have any information set up for people to take. Let's face it, people can't ask questions and sign up for clubs if there isn't anyone there taking names and answering questions!

Basically we have a problem that isn't really without a solution. All you have to do is this: If you belong to a club, rent a net so that you can snare people and drag them to meetings. If you want to join a club and can't find one, stand at one of the empty tables left over from the Activities Fair and talk to thin air about the club you want to join: you may just get an answer.

Or you could really go off the deep end and attend a meeting or, if you belong to a club, hold a organization meeting and put up a poster so that people will maybe go to the meeting and join.

I know this is a really bizarre solution to the problem, but it may just work!

Sitting there on a log.
Just watching the waves
wash over the rocks.
Washing the sand into its new place on the beach.

Watching the men in the boat rocking back and forth with the waves, looking for their dinner.

Watching the children
while they run on the beach playing with their friends.
Pestering their fathers to take them skiing on this hot summer day.

Watching across the lake
to the uninhabited island where kids go to tell ghost stories, where they go to be scared.

Sitting there on my point
just watching as the world passes

Focus On: Dr. Connie Gaede

By Viviana Altomari

Dr. Connie Gaede is the new director of Business Teacher Education here at Husson. As you speak with her you notice a slight southern accent that comes of having worked and lived in Georgia.

Dr. Gaede is from Ohio, where she graduated from Miami University of Ohio. She originally planned on getting her Ph.D. in International Politics, but her parents had other ideas. They insisted she get a teaching degree at the University.

Because the school offered the opportunity to do student teaching overseas, Dr. Gaede decided that she might as well teach in Greece where she would be able to have some fun.

As a result of the time she spent student teaching in Athens under a superb master teacher, Dr. Gaede decided that teaching was really the profession she preferred.

When she graduated from the University, she began teaching full time at the high school level. She then went on to become a professor at Georgia Southern College for 10 years.

Although she has been at Husson for only one month, she already likes what she sees. She likes the fact that Husson students are enthusiastic and is very impressed with the spirit of the school. She says that Husson's students have a very positive attitude about the school and that is a very good sign.

The past few months have been very hectic for her. Not only has she taken on a new position, she has also taken on the responsibility of a new home. She is in the process of moving and says that she has to get used to things like wood stoves and learning how to snow ski.

In her new position as the Director of Business Education, she is faced with many new responsibilities. For the past month she has taught classes, and has spoken with State Department concerning teaching regulations in the state of Maine. Our interview was interrupted briefly because of a call from the State Department. In the near future she will also be arranging for student teaching for seniors next semester and for internships during the winter break for the freshmen.

This year she is very excited because the enrollment in the Business Teacher Education Program is very strong. Twenty freshmen enrolled in the program. Once in, students concentrate in one program. They have a choice among the following: Accounting, Computer Information Systems, Business Management, and Office Management.

The standards for entering the teaching profession have been raised nationally. Students now have to pass all three components of the National Teacher's Examination.

Dr. Gaede's perspective on teaching is that, "Teaching is a profession that calls for strong communication skills, human-relation skills and also planning

The Audubon Quartet
By Stephen Novak

Thursday night September 28 was a night of enjoyment and relaxation, especially since the world-traveled Audubon Quartet was on campus. It isn't often a small school has the opportunity to have a group of this caliber appear on campus. Thanks to some hard work and a super effort by Julie Green, we were able to enjoy the sweet sounds of the Quartet.

The Audubon has appeared around the world and has won many awards for its crisp and clear sounds. Just listening to the combined sounds from the violins, a viola, and a cello is enough to send a surge of adrenalin through one's body. Just ask Buster Fredrick, one of the 51 to attend. "Yeah, I liked it very much. I always had a fascination for string instruments." I have to agree with him because the sound is unique and one of a kind.

The Quartet played several selections, some of which would be considered classical, but it didn't sound classical due to the rhythm of the music.

Now you can add Bangor and Husson College to their prestigous list of places visited. We all hope to see and hear from them again. It was a job well done on everyone's part.

Friday, September 29 marked the annual performance of Bob Mulcahy's coffee house. This was a really enjoyable night of music, laughter and fun. Much of the evening was spent singing differenct versions of old songs such as the performance of "Wild Thing" by two of Husson's students. All in all this was a fun night and one that should not be missed next year.

Bill Ashby, New Men's Soccer Coach
By Derek King

There is a new face in the Husson College coaching ranks this fall. Twenty-eight-year-old Lubec native Bill Ashby was named head soccer coach this spring to replace Steve Ziegler, who led the Braves to two NAIA District 5 playoffs in 1987 and 1988 with an overall record of 18-9-4.

Ashby is a 1981 graduate of Lubec High School and coached for two years at Fairfield's Lawrence High School. He then attended the University of Maine at Machias for four years where he served as a player/coach. In the fall of 1988 he coached at Narraguagus High School in Harrington. During the past few years Ashby has spent time in New York attending the National Soccer Coaches Association of America clinics where he earned his National License in 1988 and his advanced National License in 1989.

Coach Ashby, who is coming into a new program with new players, believes this will be an adjustment year for both him and his team, but he is still eyeing a playoff berth. Ashby's philosophy is a simple one based on proper mental thinking, making proper decisions, and reading the small games into the big, overall game. The three goals Ashby has set forth for his team are (1) to be better soccer players at the end of the season, (2) play the game properly, and (3) have the players learn to coach the game.

Recruiting will involve the selection of the best soccer talent Maine has to offer, and then searching throughout New England will follow. Ashby believes it will take three to four years to build a solid team.

Ashby plans to stay at Husson, and this is welcome news since the average tenure of soccer coaches a Husson has been 2 1/2 years. Ashby is married and works as a Recreational Director at BMHI but would like a full-time position at Husson which would allow his closer association with his team.

Men's Soccer

Last Wednesday Husson lost yet another tough game to Unity College 4 - 1. Husson went for a change in the goalie position by placing junior Derek King in the net. It was very windy, making it rough on the net tenders throughout the game, and Unity used it to their advantage by scoring first on a freak goal because of the wind; a penalty kick which was almost saved made it 2 - 0. Unity had taken a 3 - 0 lead in the second half before Dave Roussel scored a header that was assisted by Pete Boulette. Unity came right back with a goal of their own in the final minutes for a final score of 4 - 1.

On Saturday, Husson lost a heartbreaker to U-Maine at Farmington in overtime by a score of 2 - 0. Once again Derek King was in the net for the Braves and made several great saves. It was a defensive game for both teams with Farmington outshooting the Braves 5 - 3, but no one could penetrate the net in the first half. After a virtual standstill in the second half, a half in which Husson had several good chances to score, the game was headed into overtime.

In overtime the tough Beaver crowd gave their team the lift they needed. They scored their first goal on a corner kick, making it 1 - 0 UMF in the first half of overtime. The Beavers scored an insurance goal in the second half on a half volley kick, thus pulling out a 2 - 0 win over the winless Braves.

The 0 - 9 Braves will be looking for their first win on Columbus weekend against UMPI and UMFK. GOOD LUCK BRAVES!

Husson Fall Baseball
By Derek King

Although many students don't know it, Husson College's baseball team has a very active and competitive fall schedule including daily practices, a 12 game schedule, and study halls five nights a week.

Husson finished a disappointing 7-12-1 last spring, narrowly missing the NAIA playoffs. With the majority of last year's team returning and a talented corps of rookies coming in, this year looks to be very promising.

New faces on the Husson team include former high school teammates from Lawrence High School, catcher Ronny Mayo and thirdbaseman Greg Morrill. Also new are thirdbaseman Mark Bennett from Mt. View High School; pitcher/shortstop Matt Dutil from Lebanon, New Hampshire; pitcher K.C. Winchell from Old Lime High School in Connecticut, and a St. Joseph's College transfer, Jim Palmer, who has Junior eligibility status. Palmer can practice but cannot play in any games this fall due to his transferring.

Two of Husson's starting outfielders from last year, senior John Jordan and junior Rob Gilmore, are sitting out this fall's games because of transferring to Husson's CED night division for the fall semester.

Gilmore decided to return to Husson this fall after attending classes at The University of Maine at Orono this summer and contemplating playing for coach John Winkin's Division I Black Bears.

Husson's pitching ace, senior John Shaw did, however, transfer to UMaine to pitch for the Bears this year.

Other returning players include seniors Jamie Campbell and Lloyd Ross, Juniors Mike Crabtree and Joe Porter, and sophomores Sean Sullivan, Tim Knapp, Corey Tasker, Scott Godbout, and Mike Austin.

This fall Husson has played nine games against Division I national power UMaine and despite losing all nine games, Coach John Kolasinski (J.K.) likes what he sees in his young talented club. J.K. says that defensively his team has been weak but states the Braves have hit the ball well. J.K. also says the warm fall weather has helped his team enormously, compared to rainy, cold, and windy fall baseball seasons of the past.

Husson was scheduled to play St. Joseph's twice September 17, but the games were rained out. The Braves end their season during the first weekend of October including a games with University of Maine at Presque Isle on Saturday, October 7, and a 100 inning inter-squad fundraising game on Sunday the 8th.
