HUSSON LEDGER

APRIL, 1966 | HUSSON COLLEGE, BANGOR, MAINE | VOLUME 41, NO. 3

WINTER CARNIVAL

"This is Maine where the winters are fun and the Circle K Club will prove it." These are the words of "Chief" Husson as quoted from the Winter Carnival ad book. On the weekend of February 17 through 19, the truth of this statement was witnessed by Husson College students and faculty, when the Circle K Club sponsored its second annual Paul Bunyan Winter Carnival.

The carnival began on Thursday night with Husson's crushing defeat of Washington State College on the basketball court. During the half-time, the queen candidates: Gwen Bearoff, Vicki Brawn, Diane Lavway, Micheline Le Blanc, and Brenda Leeman, were introduced to the appreciative spectators.

All of the candidates aside from experiencing an occasional case of the "jitters" looked exceptionally lovely as they were formally introduced. The young lady who was to be Carnival Queen on Saturday night would receive a trophy in recognition of her title.

Trophies would also be presented for the winner and runners up of the snow sculpture contest. This year's Winter Carnival theme was "Our American Heritage." The two fraternities and two sororities along with other organizations participated in the snow artistry competition.

Some young men from Husson Hall built a culpture of Abe Lincoln which was fashioned after the Lincoln monument in Washington. The brothers of Kappa built a replica of the Mayflower and the MEX brothers made a sculpture of the Liberty Bell.

The sororities seemed to be at a loss for ideas for a sculpture. The sisters of DSD started out making an Indian Head, but none of them knew what an Indian looked like so they soon forgot that idea. Then, after seeing the Abe Lincoln sculpture, they decided to build George Washington, but the only part they could make was the nose. So now in wild desperation they went around looking for ideas and finally settled on a space capsule. The sisters of ETE were also at a loss for idea and finally came up with the brain storm of building Plymouth Rock. It's too bad that Kappy had the Mayflower going in the opposite direction.

The members of "The Young Dems" sculptured an open book inscribed with the immortal words of John F. Kennedy. A facsimile of the eternal flame glowed above the memorable quotation.

On Friday, the second day of the Winter Carnival, the student body voted for the Carnival Queen. Later on the snow sculptures were judged by art directors of various local stations and members of the Bangor Kiwanis Club. On Friday evening there was a sleigh ride at Sutton Farms in Orono. The turn-out was tremendous and everyone had a great time from start to finish, even Mr. and Mrs. Herd who arrived just in time to go on the last sleigh ride.

Winter Carnival Queen Brenda Leeman

While the sleigh ride was going on outside others were enjoying themselves inside by just sitting around or by square dancing to the call of Mr. Rogers. True, it wasn't like dancing to the beat of the Jesters but all in all it was very enjoyable for those present.

Saturday, the last day of the Winter Carnival, was climaxed with a semi-formal ball in the Banquet Room of the Bangor House. Music was provided by the Sheldon Lewis Band and students and faculty alike had a memorable time. The student body made a very handsome and dignified showing, as did the faculty. Mr. and Mrs. Herd and Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth served as chaperones.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the Winter Carnival Queen. As the lights lowered and the drums rolled, Jack Nandel escorted last year's queen, lovely Barbara Sproul, down the aisle to the queen's throne. Each candidate was then escorted down the aisle to be presented to the queen and all who were present. Gwen Bearoff was escorted by Randy Keep, Vicki Brawn by Tom Gorman, Dian Lavway by Jim Gecewicz, Brenda Leeman by Bill Brown, and Mickey LeBlanc by Dave Foulds.

Mr. Walter Greenlaw, serving as master of ceremonies, announced the winners. The second runner-up was Gwen Bearoff. First runner-up was Diane Lavway, and the winner of the Winter Carnival Queen title was Brenda Leeman. Miss Leeman looked radiant wearing her newly acquired crown.

Brenda's first duty as queen was to announce the winners of the snow sculpture contest and present them with appropriate trophies. The second runner-up was the Young Dems for their sculpture of the Eternal Flame. First runner-up was awarded to Kappa Delta Phi fraternity for their model of the Mayflower. The winning trophy was awarded to the men of Husson Hall for their magnificent sculpture of Abe Lincoln. Aside from the individual trophies that were awarded, there was a big silver cup on which the queen candidates' names will be engraved and will be presented to Husson College in recognition of the occasion.

The weekend of February 17-19 will be remembered by Husson students as one that provided them with a very enjoyable and different form of entertainment. From basketball game, to sleigh ride, right up until the Winter Carnival Ball, enthusiasm and school spirit emerged from a usually unconcerned student body. This weekend proved to many students that the social life at Husson can be quite rewarding only if given a chance. The 1966 Winter Carnival was truly a great success and all who participated found it provided something for everyone's enjoyment.

TOMORROW

Tomorrow is another day,
Whether here or far away.
Through the ages
Through the pages
So much sorrow and pain
Should not be gained.

Tomorrow is another day
No matter what you say
Through the years
Through the tears
Happiness and fame
Should be your gain.

Career Opportunities for Women in Marketing

By ANN KIMBALL

Today's educated young woman has a vast new world open to her in the field of marketing. In the leading retail department stores women make up 50% of their executive training program. Women have an equal opportunity to advance to positions of management. These trainees advance to jobs in personnel, merchandising, sales promotion, control and operations.

Almost 100% of the executive training program trainees are college or junior college graduates. Some stores require college or graduate degrees. These degrees do not necessarily have to be in the business field. A liberal arts education is considered an excellent foundation.

Today approximately 40% of all executives in retailing are women, and they hold all positions.

Salaries for retailing executives average higher than many other fields. One department store recently surveyed its training program graduates and found that in five years they had more than doubled their salaries and in ten years had quadrupled them. The starting salaries for women in executive training programs are for $80 to $100 depending on the trainee's background and qualification. The executive trainee is also entitled to employees benefits: paid medical and surgical plans, life insurance, tuition reimbursement, liberal discounts and paid vacations.

AN IMPRESSION

By MANLEY DEBECK

When a boy meets a girl's parents for the first time he wants to make a good impression. Usually he tries too hard and makes a fool of himself.

When that special girl invites that special fellow to supper at her home, he happily accepts; and, having accepted, determines to make the perfect impression on her parents. Manners! He suddenly realizes he doesn't know a spoon from a fork. He rushes to his local library to study etiquette books. As "the hour" approaches, the boy spends two hours grooming and isn't satisfied until his hair shines as brilliantly as his shoes. At last he rings the doorbell, fully prepared for a pleasant evening. The girl's father answers the door. The lad stammers an inarticulate introduction and fiercely shakes the man's hand. He is invited to sit while mother and girl friend finish supper preparations. The lad is almost too agreeable. Every answer is followed by a crisp "sir". As the girl enters the room he remembers to stand, but somehow manages a trip which he hopes will pass as a bow. He pretends not to notice the father's amusement. Supper is announced. Playing the role of a gentleman, he pulls out the chair for the girl, and surprisingly completes his task with sophisticated efficiency. It's beginning to look as if he might be all right! Feeling debonair and confident, he pushes his luck too far. He pulls out mother's chair—too far—and she lands on the floor with a sad thump. The supper hour is quiet. Apologizing too profusely as he leaves, he wonders if he will ever see the girl again.

It is with relief one recalls those days of awkward adolescense. Even though the college freshman smiles with superiority as a younger brother suffers through the same social ordeal, his own "sirs" are still a bit too crisp and his own handshake still too hearty. But, then, you couldn't expect him to admit it, could you? After all, he is nineteen now.

FORWARD

By DIANE CUOZZO

By Push or by Pull? How do you intend to go through this life? Do you intend to be a self-made, self-developed person of character or is it your plan to wait for promotion, to wait for another's stimulus to pull you along? When a person first goes out into the world he holds his future in the palm of his hand. How his future shall be molded, how it shall develop depends upon whether he will rely on himself and his capabilities or whether he will look toward the other fellow to get behind him and shove. There will come a time when the other fellow will grow tired. Rely on yourself!

The person who is wide-awake and alive is the man who reaches the uppermost rounds of the ladder of life first. The person who stays on top is the one who pushed himself up and not the one who was pulled. Anybody may be full of energy and spirit while he is being pulled to success but it is a real man, pushing himself to the top by Push who weathers the storms of disappointment and finds in each loss a stepping stone to greater gains.

Life holds for each one a position. No matter what this position is, it belongs to you. The one redeeming feature in this arrangement is that by loyal, hard work you are able to mold yourself not only for this position but also for one higher up. To go higher should be the ambition and ultimate objective of every man.

Your position in life depends on you! You promote yourself. But are you pushing yourself up or are you being pulled?

Quae Est Intelligentia

By GEORGE LAMBERT

From the embryonic philosophical queries of Socrates, to the enlightened era of John Locke, to the modern existentialist literary period with Sartre and Malraux, the great minds of each successive age have dwelt upon the abstration of intelligence. Though philosophers and litterateurs have fathomed and probed the concept of intelligence, still today the nature, the ens of intelligence, perhaps more than any other faculty of the mind, is misunderstood and misconstrued by most individuals. What is intelligence—Quae est intelligentia? Speech developments and literary movements have popularized "intelligence" to such a degree that its true meaning is often veiled with misconceptions.

In modern conversation one hears people refer to an "intelligent" dog, an "intelligent" monkey, or even an "intelligent" parakeet. Because animals are conditioned by constant repetition to respond in a specified manner, they are said to be "intelligent." As if animals have intelligence! Animals have no intelligence; they are motivated by instinct and only by instinct. Instinct, "the natural and unreasoning prompting to action," unlike intelligence, does not allow the animals to evaluate and compare the interrelationships between facts to arrive at a desired objective. Instinct commands, intelligence permits; instinct accepts, intelligence questions.

Still other individuals, while admitting that intelligence is a power reserved for man, erroneously conceive of intelligence as memory. Though intelligence and memory are closely linked, they are not synonymous. If a student can recall a list of 15 or 20 effects of automation on marketing analysis, he is not per se intelligent. Whereas memory simply retains data, intelligence assesses and collates information.

Not instinct, not memory, intelligence is that rational faculty, distinguishing man from animal, that allows the individual to modify his actions and thoughts in the light of new circumstances. As Dr. John Randall states in his book Philosophy, intelligence "governs his (man's) purposive activity." Intelligence, therefore, should move man toward his goal. Today it seems that emotions have usurped the role of intelligence in many areas of human behavior.

SPORTS

BASKETBALL 1965-66

By defeating Thomas College of Waterville 109-81 on February 19, the Husson College Varsity basketball team concluded the season with a disappoiting 9-15 record. This year's team under Coach Del Merrill and Assistant Coach Phil Surgen faced a demanding schedule that included some of New England's top small college teams. Husson suffered from a lack of experience and the loss of some key players because of injuries and ineligibility during the season. These factors along with others made the basketball campaign a tough road to hoe.

Husson was led in scoring this year by Bill Spreng—a 6' 2" junior from Caribou who averaged 20.5 a game. The team's leading rebounder was 6' 3" Bob O'Keefe of Old Town, who is also a junior. The other starters were usually Jack Chlopecki, a 6' 2" junior from Schenectady, New York; Wayne Hartford, a 6' 1" senior from Presque Isle; and either Jack Butteridge, a 6' 3" junior also from Schenectady, New York, or Lynn Bailey, a 6' sophomore from South Portland. Also seeing a great deal of action were 6' 4" John Files, a freshman from Windham and Larry "Red" St. Louis, a 6' 1" sophomore from Orono.

Losing only one team member, Wayne Hartford, at graduation, Coach Merrill is looking forward to next season with a great deal of optimism. The Husson Indians would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you who supported the team by attending the home games this past season.

JUDO

The Judo club is now meeting at Sgt. Joseph Labbe's dojo (place of practice) at 53 State Street, Brewer.

The judo gi's (uniforms) have at long last arrived and their arrival has renewed interest in the club.

Unfortunately, because of tests, vacations and lack of transportation, the judoists have been unable to attend the several tournaments in Massachusetts, to which they were invited.

Next year, due to a number of requests, the club will hopefully expand and form a women's judo club to run in conjunction with the regular men's club. So any girls who might be interested in this for next Fall please express your wishes to Chris Shields, Walt Leo or any other member of the Judo club. Until next Fall, however, you are welcome, as all Husson Students are, to come to Brewer and see us practice "the gentle art."

Wayne Hartford

SGT. HURLEY NAMED

NORTHFIELD, VT.—Master Sergeant Leslie J. Hurley, USA (Ret.), Director of the Norwich University Outing Club and Assistant in the Physical Education Department, has been named one of the activities supervisors for the Norwich University Summer Camp for Boys.

In his new position, Sergeant Hurley will be responsible for many of the day-to-day program activities of the camp and will supervise certain camp counselors. The camp will be held for two four-week sessions, starting June 26 and July 24.

A native of Bangor, Maine, Sergeant Hurley is a graduate of Watertown High School in Watertown, Mass., and attended Husson College in Bangor, Maine. He joined the Maine National Guard in 1935 and was called to active duty in 1941. He served as a 1/Sgt. with the 87th Mountain Infantry in the Aleutian Islands, the United States, and Italy.

A member of the ROTC Instructors Group at Norwich University until his retirement in 1961 after 20 years of Army service, Sergeant Hurley played a leading role in the establishment of the ROTC Mountain-Cold Weather Training at the military college. Norwich was the first college in the nation to establish such an ROTC program.

Known throughout New England for his ability on skis, in mountain-climbing, and in the athletic training of young people, he is an Inspector for the Appalachian Mountain Club; Regional Chairman and Avalanche Instructor for the National Ski Patrol; and Assistant Ski Coach at Norwich. Summer Camp officials feel Sgt. Hurley will bring a strong background in physical training to the new program.

THE END OF A CAREER

By ROBERT O'KEEFE

On February 19 Husson played its final basketball game of the season at Thomas College in Waterville. Not only was this day significant because it ended the 1965-1966 basketball season, but it also marked the last game of Husson's only senior, Wayne Hartford.

Just who is Wayne Hartford? For those of you who have seen him perform on the basketball court and on the baseball diamond, I am sure you all realize what a fine athlete he is. Wayne came to Husson via Presque Isle High School and Maine Central Institute. While at Presque Isle High School, Wayne was a standout basketball and baseball player, as well as a member of Presque Isle's 1961 Eastern Maine Championship basketball team. After graduation Wayne went on to star at MCI in Pittsfield. In September of 1962 he came to Husson College as a member of the Freshman class.

In Wayne's four years as a member of Husson's court squad, he has helped Husson's basketball teams to a record of 54 wins against only 33 losses, a very fine record in college competition. It is hard to measure the true value of a ball player of Wayne's caliber to the team simply because statistics don't always tell the whole story. When someone reads about a basketball game, the first thing he usually looks at is the scoring statistics. If one has done this while reading about a Husson contest, he normally hasn't found Wayne listed among the high scorers. Wayne, although a fine shooter in his own right, has passed up many chances to score in order to set up an open teammate. He has excelled in the phases of the game that one doesn't read about in the papers; namely, rebounding, defense, and assisting teammates on baskets. Wayne is a complete player.

Wayne has played all three positions on the court in the last four years. In his first three years he operated mainly as a forward with occasional duty at center. This year, because of a shortage of guards on the team, he was asked by Coach Merrill to fill in at a guard position. After playing in the front court all one's life, this is a tough adjustment for anyone to make. Wayne, however, made the adjustment at the sacrifice of his own scoring to fill the gap.

Wayne has played in 72 games and scored 892 points for a career average of 12.4 points per game. It is fairly evident that he not only displayed fine passing ability, but he also could put the ball through the hoop, too.

If those of you who are interested in the game of basketball haven't realized Wayne's true basketball ability before, I hope you will appreciate his outstanding ability now. As for myself, I think that Wayne is one of the finest basketball players that I have ever worked with. It has been my pleasure to be his teammate for the last two years, and I am sure that you fans have also enjoyed watching him play.

Organizations

ETE

New officers for Epsilon Tau Epsilon were installed on February 9, 1966. They are President Rosemary Hawkes, a junior from Bangor; Ginny Burr, Vice President, a sophomore from Old Town; Angela Brasslett, a junior from Bradford, Secretary; and Marlene Lloyd, a junior from Houlton is Treasurer. Installed as Chaplain was Liz Pullen, a junior from Monson; Historian is Joan Beane, a junior from Warren; Judy Williams, a junior from East Millinocket is the new Sgt. at Arms and Carol Taute, a sophomore from Kennebunk, is the new Student Senate member.

ETE pledged new members on March 2. They are: Patricia Hart, Linda Hardy, Peggy Gates, Evelyn Burton, Betty Smith, Terri Smith, Donna Swan, Linnie Jenkins, Martha McClure, Laurel Rokes, Glenda James, Gail Buck, Judith Dostie, and Marie Levesque. They were formally initiated in Commerce Hall on March 20.

The girls have been busy selling toothbrushes to fulfill their International Scholarship obligations. All reports indicate that a lot of people have needed toothbrushes since they have sold rapidly!

Senior sorority sisters who have been cadet teaching since February 7 will be returning on April 11 to resume their studies leading to their June graduation.

Second semester officers are, President, Joe Petrone; Vice-President, Bob Cox; Secretary-Treasurer, Gail Buck; editor of club newspaper "Dots and Dashes," Linda Vadnais; Public Relations, Walter Leo.

At the March meeting, a 17-minute film entitled "The Teacher Crisis" was shown. After the film a stimulating question and answer period ensued with advisor Miss Dolores Renaud.

April is National Educational month. The Student Education Association will sponsor a display in the school library. Anyone interested in education please drop in and pick up a pamphlet. Following the theme of the month the Assistant Superintendent of Bangor Schools, Mr. McIntosh, has been asked to speak at our April meeting.

Since the May meeting will be our last for the year, we plan to have a banquet at one of the local restaurants.

MEX

The Brothers of Mu Sigma Chi Fraternity are proud to announce their new officers for 1966-1967. They are: William Abbott, President; David Hart, 1st Vice-President; Stephen Flanagan, 2nd Vice-President; Eugene Melville, Secretary; and William Collins, Treasurer. With such able men, MEX will continue to grow and prosper. Many thanks to the outgoing officers, Gerard Cote, Leonard Saba, Lindon Lane, and Thomas Wasielak for an outstanding job.

Congratulations to Jerry Cote, our past president, for his fine showing as a runner-up in the Pi Rho Zeta International Man of the Year Award. Also, best wishes to Rosemary Hawkes in her bid for Sweetheart of Pi Rho Zeta.

The Brothers enjoyed some fine basketball when they were asked to usher at the High School LL Basketball Tournament. The boys did a commendable job and have been asked back next year.

MEX is now busy with plans for the upcoming Chief-for-a-Day and advises everyone to be prepared for a big surprise.

Student Senate

At the February assembly sponsored by the Student Senate, Secretary of State Ken Curtis accepted an invitation to address the students and faculty.

The main topic of Secretary Curtis' speech was the operations of the electoral mechanism here in Maine. Diverging momentarily from his topic, Mr. Curtis elaborated on certain governmental reforms that he personally feels are necessary for the betterment of the state: annual sessions of the legislature, abolition of the Governor's Council, appointment of the Secretary of State by the Governor.

During the question and answer period that followed the lecture, Secretary Curtis answered when asked if he was a candidate for gubernatorial office: "I am quite sure that I will try." When questioned about the Sunday liquor sales referendum, Mr. Curtis stated that he personally "felt that it would enhance the economic position of Maine." Questioned on the efficiency of the Department of Economic Development, Secretary Curtis, in a vehement tirade, explained that his opinion was that this department "lacks a program" and places "too much stress on entertaining indutrialists."

The Student Senate thanks Secretary of State Ken Curtis for interrupting a busy schedule made even busier by the recent referendum to address the students of Husson.

The important item on the agenda of the Student Senate is the upcoming "Chief-for-A-Day" competition. A committee has been formed to establish the guidelines for the contest, tentatively set for the end of April.

KDP

It's convention time once again and Kappa Delta Phi chapters throughout the East are busily preparing for the annual reunion to be held, this year, in Albany, New York, from April 15 to April 17. The Lambda Chapter here at Husson has taken upon itself the chore of arranging bus transportation for all the brothers from Maine. According to the preliminary notices, received from national headquarters, among the noted guest lecturers at the convention will be Sen. Robert Kennedy. With seminars, lectures, banquets, dances, parties, the convention promises to be a memorable occasion again this year.

At the last inter-fraternal council meeting, the brothers of Kappa Delta Phi agreed to sponsor a joint raffle with the brothers of Mu Sigma Chi and the sisters of Epsilon Tau Epsilon and Delta Sigma Delta, the prize to be a $450 scholarship. Such joint ventures will no doubt increase the understanding and cooperation between the different fraternal organizations.

During the Ice Capades in early March, Kappa brothers were asked to sell programs and novelties. The financial rewards of this undertaking will help defray the convention expenses. The fraternity thanks the individual brothers who donated their time and services to the success of this enterprise.

Again this year, the Kappa brothers won the second place trophy in the snow sculpture competition during the winter carnival. Next year, Kappa Delta Phi will win first prize . . . hopefully.

Young Republicans Club

The Husson College Republicans Club is on the go again. Recently blotters were distributed to the students in hopes of familiarizing them with the YGOP Club.

At the March meeting, plans were formulated to assist in the upcoming primary campaign of Mr. Howard Foley who is running for Congress. Broad guidelines were established and committees were formed to aid in our advisor's bid for a congressional seat.

Back in February a special committee was set up for obtaining prominent Republican speakers. Ron Di Robbio, Bob McGuire and Bob La Guikie were assigned to this committee. Also, a letter was sent to the Young Democrats, challenging them to a debate to be held in the month of April. With the assistance of our five new members: Nelson Haley, Ron Irish, Jim Hathorne, Tom Monahann and Brian Niles such a debate should prove interesting.

In recent voting, Melvin Guiggey was elected Sergeant at Arms and Angelo Borsello was elected Corresponding Secretary.

In conjunction with Bowdoin College, the Husson College YGOP Club is now investigating the possibility of a state convention of all Maine YGOP Clubs.

Placement and Financial Aid

The recruiting season is nearing its end, and once again the Placement Director is proud of the Husson product. All of the interviewers are impressed by the maturity and "down to earth" approach of our job seekers. They are especially impressed by your manners and appearance. This is the Husson way, and believe me, it's a definite asset when seeking employment.

April is our Career Day month. On April 13, we will have a Career Emphasis Day for accounting and business administration sophomores and juniors and business education seniors. Careers in merchandising will be emphasized. Our keynote speaker will be Mr. James White, Personnel Director of Jordan Marsh Company, Boston, Massachusetts. Mr. George Mueller, instructor in the Department of Business Administration is coordinating the program.

On April 21, the Secretarial Science Department will hold its second annual Career Day. A group of men from the Bangor-Brewer Management Club will present a skit on How to Apply for a Job. The program will be narrated by Mr. Albert Weymouth of the General Education Department (there is also a surprise in store, girls!). The meeting will be held at the Harlow Street school, and will be followed by a luncheon at Husson Hall.

This office is also administering all financial aid programs for the College. FORMS FOR FINANCIAL AID FOR THE FALL SEMESTER MUST BE IN BY MAY 1, 1966.

Husson College participates in two federal programs. The College Work-Study Program is designed to assist academically qualified students of low-income families. This can be combined with loans, scholarships, or other grants in aid. For a student to qualify, his parents' income level must be in accordane with the following:

No. of Children or Other Dependents	Income Level
1	3200
2	4000
3	4700
4	5300
5	5800
6	6200
7	6600

The College also participates in the National Defense Student Loan Program which provides loan funds at approved American institutions of higher education from which needy students may borrow on reasonable terms.

The Federal Government contributes up to 90 percent of the total amount of each institutional loan fund.

Eligibility

A prospective borrower applies for loan assistance to the financial aid office of the institution of his choice.

The law requires that each borrower:

1. Be in need of the amount of his loan to pursue his course of study in the institution;
2. Be capable, in the opinion of this institution, of maintaining good standing in such course;
3. Be enrolled, or accepted for enrollment, as an undergraduate, graduate, or professional student in the institution;
4. Be carrying at least one-half the normal full-time academic workload as determined by the institution.

An undergraduate student may borrow each year a sum not exceeding $1,000 up to a total of $5,000.

Repayment

The borrower must sign a promissory note for his loan. Repayment extends over a ten-year period beginning nine months after the borrower ceases full- or half-time study. Interest at 3 percent starts to accrue at the beginning of the repayment period. Minimum payment is $15 per month.

Repayment obligation is cancelled in the event of the death or permanent disability of the borrower.

Deferment. No payment is required and no interest accrues during periods when the borrower is serving in the Armed Forces or the Peace Corps (up to a total of three years for each) and during periods when he is in full- or half-time attendance at an accredited institution of higher education in the United States or at a comparable institution abroad.

Repayment may also be deferred at the option of the institution for a period, up to an aggregate of three years, during which the borrower is in part-time (less than half-time) attendance at an institution of higher education taking courses creditable toward a degree. Interest, however, does accrue during this time.

Forgiveness Clause for Teachers. A maximum of 50 percent of loan indebtedness (plus interest) may be cancelled at the rate of 10 percent for each year of service for the borrower who becomes a full-time teacher in a public or private nonprofit secondary school, or an institution of higher education.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING OF NEW CAMPUS

Husson Fund-Raising Drive

On March 15, 1966, Husson College initiated it general fund raising drive under the chairmanship of William P. Newman, a vice-president of Husson College and chairman of the Board of Eastern Trust and Banking Company of Bangor. The goal of the campaign is to raise $1,000,000 in equity needed to release the $8,656,000 in grants and loans that have already been consummated.

The statement gives the sources of the amount in hand and lists the projected sources for the remaining balance.

Though all the loans and grants have been arranged, these funds ae contingent on $1,000,000 in equity. The loans and grants cannot be released unless Husson College raises the required equity funds. Only through the generosity and cooperation of the friends of Husson can the new Husson College become a reality.
