DEDICATION

The Yearbook Staff would like to dedicate the 1998 edition of the Husson College Chieftain in memory of Dr. Charles Sullivan.

Dr. Charles Sullivan taught at Husson College for 25 years. His intelligence, wit, and love of teaching made him not only popular with the students, but also respected by the faculty. His teaching style helped students to understand, that doing "just enough to get by", wasn't enough. He inspired many Husson undergrads to go on to graduate school and to aspire to be more. His death on December 3, 1997 has left an empty space.

While at Husson Dr. Sullivan served as academic vice president, served on the dean's advisory council, the president's task force on marketing, was the faculty representitive to the board of trustees and the first president of the faculty senate. He was the chair of the Business Depratment at the college before returning to full time teaching as a professor of Business Management. Active in politics he served 11 years on the Bangor School Committee and was serving his sixth term on the Bangor City Council at the time of his death. He was mayor of the City of Bangor from 1994-1995. Dr. Sullivan is survived by his wife of 41 years, Mary, and six children.

It is with sadness that we dedicate this edition of the Husson Chieftian to Dr. Charles Sullivan. He was a teacher, a mentor and an inspiration to generations of Husson students, and we hope in some small way that this dedication says thank you.

President's Message

Dear 1998 Graduates:

Congratulations. Completion of your college dregree is no small achievement. You are already better academically prepared than the average U.S. citizen and you are among a small percentage of the world's population to have completed college. This gives you an opportunity and a responsibility. An opportunity to move into ever more challenging postions in your chosen profession and a responsibility to use your talents well to make this world an even better place in which to live.

Also, congratulations as our Centennial class. Husson started as a small business school and a small nursing school back before the turn of the century. We've come a long way together and you will always be remembered as the class that graduated during the 1998 Centennial. I challenge you to live up to that special recognition.

Best wishes for your career and quality of life. We will miss you and will forward to your future return.

Sincerely,

William H. Beardsley
President

ICE STORM '98

One of the worst natural disasters to occur in recent history swept over the Northeastern states on January 5, 1998. A five-day storm of rain and ice broke branches and toppled entire trees, downing power and telephone lines along with them. Emergency shelters opened to alleviate the plight of residents. Some areas were without power for only a few days but others were not as fortunate. The widespread path of devastation and destruction meant that utility companies had to call for help from companies farther south. Despite the tireless efforts by power crews, many areas were without power for two weeks; parts of eastern Canada were crippled for a month.

It was a time of community — a coming together to help each other endure and even overcome the great Ice Storm of '98.

Maine Declared A National Disaster Area

A Storm Beyond Compare

Five days of freezing rain left everything coated in thick ice. Trees and poles snapped like toothpicks. "It sounded and looked like a war zone," said Lori Hanson, yearbook advisor from Messalonskee High School in Oakland, Maine.

According to Central Maine Power over 523,000 residents in the state lost power, affecting over 340,000 households. There were twenty-six hundred utility poles replaced and two to three million feet of line or cable restrung on them. Fifteen of the sixteen counties in Maine were declared disaster areas.

Luckily, many "Mainers" could revert to wood stoves for heat. Generators were in great demand also as people rushed to buy them to make their own power.

The National Guard clears trees in Winslow, ME

Vice-President Al Gore arrives in Maine to survey the storm damage with Governor Angus King. They announced that the federal government would extend at least twenty-eight million dollars for disaster relief to individuals and small businesses in Maine.

One way to get rid of all the ice - eat it!

There was beauty despite the widespread destruction.

In a typical view of the ice storm damage, motorists veer around trees and downed lines on the road. With falling limbs an ever-present threat, many "feared for their lives" and stories of near misses were prevalent. Special thanks go out to the line crews from CMP who worked tirelessly to restore power to the region. With the assistance of the out-of-state crews, CMP was able to accelerate the recovery process.

A scene from Oakland, Maine.

Neighbors helping neighbors was a common sight; clearing debris was a massive job.

From Around New England . . .

Scenes from other New England states show that this storm had a wide-spread effect on hundreds of thousands of people. The broken trees will be a constant reminder of this destructive storm for years to come. Especially hard-hit were the maple syrup farmers whose livelihood depends on the maple trees. With this years' crop essentially ruined, fears about future production haunt the farmers' thoughts.

Jessica Ethier of Champlain accompanies the National Guard to check on those who would leave their homes. Here she brings her grandfather much needed supplies.

Brandi Kissel, a student at Northeastern Central School, shows two members of the National Guard the map of Champlain, New York, so that they can do health and welfare checks on the residents there.

Northern New York Devastated

Upstate New York Held Hostage

The devastation from this storm was unimaginable in upstate New York. For five days the mercury hovered just above the freezing mark and the sleet and rain continued to fall until the ice build-up reached incredible proportions.

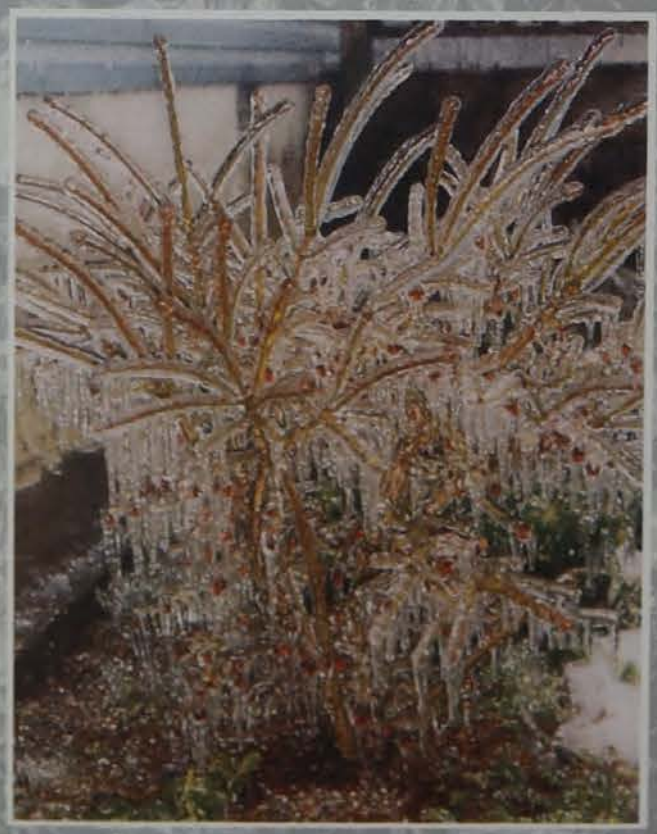

The ice brought everything to a halt. Students, out on Christmas break, never thought that the break would last until January 20. Folks worked together to help those around them. People arrived from all parts of the country to donate food, blankets, generators and their time.

Roads were impassable due to downed trees and lines.

A remnant of last year's crop, this apple hangs encased in ice on a branch in Adams, New York.

Berries frozen in time in Sackets Harbor, NY.

Sara and Anna Finerson display willow branches bejeweled with ice.

Rippling fingers of ice form on a tree in Sackets Harbor, New York.

While it was a near miss for this shed, many other structures suffered severe damage. Millions of dollars in damages resulted from the weight of the ice and falling trees and branches - some of which even crashed through dwellings.

This pole snapped over Rt. 12E in Chaumont, New York.

Lyme Central School, using power from generators, served as an emergency shelter.

"Helping hands" in a shelter at the Belleville-Henderson School, Belleville, New York.

Memories That Will Linger

Vehicles and crews from North Carolina were flown into the Brunswick Naval Air Base as part of the federal disaster relief effort. They joined other crews from the Northeast.

This special ice storm section was generously donated by Jostens Printing and Publishing to schools throughout New England. Thanks to all the people who contributed photos, including Toby Youngs at the Maine National Guard, The Portland Press Herald, and Lori Hanson at Potsdam High School.

We are confident that these pages will serve as mementos of the worst natural disaster to hit New England in recent history for the people who overcame it.
