Husson College Faculty To Lecture in Aomori, Japan

In the first official exchange since the signing of a fromal articulation agreement between Husson College and Aomori University, three Husson faculty will spend ten days in the Japanese classroom in January. A formal articulation ceremony will be held during the visit by Aomori faculty to Husson is in the planning stage.

"This is an extrodinary opportunity", said Dr. Teresa Steele, Professor of Nursing, who will lead the Husson Faculty delegation. "My goal is to apply the same leadership techniques I use at Husson and then compare the outcomes. I will also discuss my research in geriatric issues from another cultural perspective", said Dr. Steele. Accompanying Dr. Steele are Dr. James Parker, Professor of Mathematics and Dr. Barry Lin, Assistant Professor of Finance and International Business. Dr. Parker will pursue his interest in teachind symbolic logic to first year students and the teaching of mathematics through distance learning. Dr. Lin will work with students and faculty on matters of international business marketing and finance as well as work with the Aomori business and government officials on data bases for trade between Japan and the United States.

The Aomori/Husson tie is an outgrowth of a sister relationship between the Prefecture of Aomori and the State of Maine. Administrative visits have occures and Husson President William Beardsley addressed Aomori University's International Symposium in the 21st century in 1996. Students exchanges are in the planning stages.

"Amori is the northern most prefecture on the main island of Honshu, Japan. It is a region with strong ties to agriculture, fisheries, tourism and light industry. Aomori City is similarto Bangor in terms of geographic location vis-a-vis the major metropolitan area of Japan", explained President Beardsley. "Aomori University is a private university not unlike Husson College with strong professional and liberal arts programs, a love of athletics and an entrepreneurial spirit. Mrs. Kimura, Chair of the Board, is one of the most extraordinary individuals I have met and it is an honor to be associated with her University", said Beardsley.

Superbowl or BUST!!

by Mike McCaffrey

I got the call two days after the Broncos won the AFC Championship game in Pittsburg. My oldest brother Ed McCaffrey is a wide receiver on the Denver Broncos and was headed for the Superbowl. I answered the phone and was greeted with ,"are you coming or what" It was Ed, I congratulated him on the AFC win and said, if there was any possible way, I'm there. My family has always been very close, despite the extreme distances in which we live. Ed was making all the plans to get us to San Diego and I was the last arrangement, and the most difficult. My father and my younger sister, Meghan, flew to San Diego on the Tuesday before the big game. My mother flew to Denver to watch over Ed's youngest son, Christian, who is almost two years old. My mother chose to go to Denver to be in a more relaxed atmosphere because she, like any mother, gets extremely nervous and stressed watching her sons compete in big games. Watching on T.V. would be stressful enough. My oldest sister, Monica has a newborn of her own so she was going to stay in Washington D.C. where she lives. My older brother Bill couldn't make the game because he is a professional basketball player in Germany and had games that week. So, that left me. The problem was, on Saturday the 24th I had a game against the University of New England at Newman Gymnasium. Ed told me to start looking for airline tickets and to call him back.

Mike congratulates Ed on the Superbowl victory.

With the help of Coach Caruso I was able to put together two possibilities. One of the two options has me leaving the night of the game and in San Diego for a total of 13 hours. Needless to say, I discarded that option with little hesitation. The second option was also difficult but I would be able to stay for the post game celebration, I say celebration because I was optimistic the entire week. So I relayed the plan to Ed and he called to get the ticket.

My adventure started on a good note due to our victory over UNE. However, it took a cruel twist when I rushed to the Bangor airport to catch my 6:20 p.m. flight and the malicious word CANCELLED was stretched accross the monitor. This is plane. I sat on the runway for an hour and 40 minutes. The plane finally was deiced and I took off for Pittsburgh. Everything's good right? Wrong. Because of the delay in Boston I had 15 minutes to reach my connecting flight in Pittsburgh. I did my best O.J. Simpson impression and reached my gate before the doors were shut.

Angus S. King, Jr.

Governor of the State of Maine to speak at Business Breakfast

"A State in Transition"

Angus S King, Jr. is serving his first four-year term as Maine's Governor and is the nation's only sitting Independent Governor. Elected on November 8, 1994 as Maine's 71st Governor, he was victorious in his first run for public office.

Governor King began his career in 1969 as a staff attorney for Pine Tree Legal Assistance in Skowhegan. In 1972 he became Chief Counsel to the U.S. Senate Subcomittee on Alcoholism and Narcotics in the office of then Senator William D. Hathaway. In 1975 he returned to Maine to practice law with the firm of Smith, Lloyd, and King in Brunswick. In the same year he began his almost 20 year stint as host of the television show "Maine Watch" on the Maine Public Broadcasting Network. In 1983 he became vice-president and general counsel of Swift River/Hafslund Company, an alternative energy development company based in Portland and Boston. Governor King founded and served as president of Northeast Energy Management, Inc. in 1989, a position he held for 5 years. The Brunswick based company specialized in the development of large scale projects at commercial and industrial facilities in central and southern Maine.

The Governor graduated from Dartmouth College in 1966 and the University of Virginia Law School in 1969.

where the adventure began. I came back to school and called the bus stations to find a way to Boston. The last buses to Boston had already left which left me with one option, Road Trip! My flight was to leave Boston at 6:30 a.m. After rounding up my girlfriend Kelly Taylor, and close friends Aaron Katz and Gwyn Wilcox, we were off to Boston. We arrived in Boston around 2:00 a.m. and had some time to kill so we hit IHOP for some breakfast. We didn't realize we were in the twilight zone's IHOP until we were greeted by a uniformed police officer who seated us in the mad house. The place was mobbed with a most peculiar blend of individuals. We killed some time eating and people watching. The Logan Airport greeted us at about 4:00 a.m. A brief siesta in the airport pushed the clock to 6:00. I parted with my friends and went to my gate. They turned around and drove my car back to Bangor. It was a total team effort, thanks guys.

Well, I boarded the plane on time but of course the plane didn't take off. It had started snowing in Boston around 5:00 a.m. and snow and ice had covered the plane. I sat on the runway for an hour and 40 minutes. The plane finally took off for Pittsburgh.

Everythings good right, wrong. Because of the delay in Boston I had 15 minutes to reach my connecting flight in Pittsburgh. I did my best O.J. Simpson impression and reached my gate before the doors were shut. The flight from Pittsburgh took me straight into San Diego at 12:20 Pacific Standard Time. The game kicked off at 3:00 P.S.T. My next obstacle was trying to get to the stadium although I did feel a bit more relaxed in the 70 degree weather than in the ice and snow. After being interrogated by quite a few fans needing tickets I made it to the parking area. Just a little side note, I was actually offered $2,500 for my ticket. I thought about it for a second but continued on my way. I did have some time to get to the stadium but I had to figure in traffic and I didn't have my ticket yet. (I had to pick up my ticket at the Broncos will-call office. Will-call is an office where the Bronco's players and coaches leave tickets for family and friends.) The rest of my family was already at the stadium.

I could have taken a taxi but I was nervous about traffic so I opted for a shuttle bus to a trolley station. I picked the trolley for three reasons, one it would cancel out the traffic factor, two I'd never been on a trolley, and three it is what the parking attendant suggested. I bought my ticket for the trolley and was pleased to find out it would take me directly into the stadium parking lot. Everythings good right? Wrong. While I was in the trolley they announced that if you didn't have your superbowl ticket they wouldn't let you out of the trolley station. You could say a slight panic attack set in. The announcement also said you would be put on the next trolley back if you didn't have your ticket. At this point in my adventure it was nearing 2:00 p.m. I exited the trolley into a mob of cheeseheads and Bronco blue.

They were filtering all the people through two gates where you had to show your superbowl ticket or turn around. I filtered my way through to a security guard and asked where the will-call office was and he let my slip through a different gate. I had dodged another bullet. I picked up my ticket at about 2:20 p.m. and treated myself to a chillidog and a brew before the pregame show. I met up with my family and my brothers in-laws and took my seat. I couldn't have asked

Your Connection to the Stars....

by Amy Martin

Aquarius(January 21-February 19): Love: You'll get to know someone who has been shy earlier in the year. You'll learn that he/she can be outgoing and even rebellious at times. Once you get him/her to open up to you, you'll have formed a great friendship, or possibly more. Social Life: Go visit a friend who goes to a different college. You'll meet new people and have a great time. Also, it'll feel good to hang out with your friend again.
Mood: You haven't been totally happy lately. Figure out the source of your unhappiness and do something about it. Don't waste time being depressed.

Pisces(February 20-March20): Love: Right now you aren't very worried about your love life. You figure if something is meant to be, it will happen. You'll find love when you least expect it, and it will be the best you've ever had! Social Life: People enjoy being around you. You are quiet at times, and energetic at others. People can count on you for a shoulder to lean on. Don't be afraid to ask for help from others like they always do of you.
Mood: Lately you've felt like spending some quiet time alone. Read a good book or watch tv. When you get bored, go find your friends and do something exciting with them.

Aries(March21-April 20): Love: You'll be receiving many compliments sometime soon. Members of the opposite sex will definitely notice you. Think about whether you're ready for a serious relationship because one could be coming your way.
Social Life: Get out and play your favorite sport with friends. It will feel good to get away from your books for a while. Exercise will also help you follow through on your New Year's resolution to lose weight. Mood: Since returning to school you've realized how much you've missed your friends, but not your classes. It will take a few weeks to get used to doing work again.

Taurus(April21-May21): Love: Lately your love life has been confusing you. As the spring semester begins, all confusion will drift away and you'll have a clear sense of what lies ahead. You'll find that after a few weeks pass you'll be happy and surrounded by romance. Social Life: You've come to the conclusion that it is hard to do everything you want with little money. You aren't the only one who lacks dollars. Find a way to make more money or better save it. Mood: You were excited to return to school. You were bored at home. Have fun with your friends but don't forget to call home every once in a while. I'm sure your family misses you already.

Gemini(May22-June21): Love: You are not thinking clearly about a relationship. You appreciate his/her good qualities but his/her flaws keep cropping up, and you can't seem to build a satisfying relationship. Are you truly happy or would you be better off with someone else? Social Life: Spend some quality time with friends that you haven't seen in a while. Your friends will always be there for you even if your boyfriend/ girlfriend isn't. Mood: Little things have been annoying you lately. Try not to let little things bother you because it could result in a fight with your roommate or friends.

Cancer(June22-July22): Love: Looking for romance? Follow your heart. You'll know when you've found the right person for you. Don't let other people's opinions affect your outlook on a relationship. Social Life: One of your friends is jealous of you or the relationship you are in. With time they will get over it, but don't let it ruin your relationship for the time being. Mood: Your family and friends from home have been on your mind lately. You had a lot of good times while at home, so you are having a hard time adjusting to life without your best friends around, like they were all vacation. Within days you'll be ready to go out and have fun with your good friends from Husson like last semester.

Leo(July23-August23): Love: Be on the lookout for a secret admirer. This person has had their eye on you throughout the school year but has been afraid to get to know you better. Be yourself and the next few weeks will be filled with romance. Social Life: You haven't been that serious about studying lately, you want to go out and have fun. Go out and enjoy yourself but don't forget that college involves learning too. Mood: You've been feeling wild and crazy lately. Go with it but make sure you don't get in too much trouble.

Virgo(August24-September22): Love: Someone will develop an intense crush on you but you won't return the feelings back. Be friendly even if he/she totally annoys you. With time, your feelings may change.
Social Life: Lately your confidence has been high so you'll talk to someone who you had not dared to in the past. Don't be afraid of rejection, I'm sure you'll wish that you had talked to him/her earlier. Mood: Lately you've been feeling nervous about one of your new classes. If you are having problems, go to your teacher or a tutor for some extra help.

Libra(September23-October22): Love: If you see someone you want, make sure he/she sees you. Talk to him/her and be friendly. You aren't going to get anywhere if you act too shy. Don't be afraid to let people see the real you. Social Life:You've been sad or confused about a friendship that isn't going as well as it used to. People change, and maybe your friendship just isn't meant to be anymore. Try your hardest to get your friendship back the way it used to be. Mood: You've been really tired lately. Make sure you get more sleep so you'll have more energy to do schoolwork and go out with friends.

Scorpio(October23-November 21): Love: You'll catch the eye of a newcomer to Husson and romance will be in the air. Don't get excited too fast, things could turn out the opposite of how you expect.
Social Life: You'll hang out with new people this semester. Being around different kinds of people is good because it'll bring new experiences.
Mood: The long vacation gave you time to think about what you want out of life. Do whatever it takes to be happy and achieve your goals. You can accomplish whatever you want if you put your heart into it.

Sagittarius(November22-December21): Love: There have been some obstacles in your love life. Even you have to admit you are making slow and steady progress. Soon you'll have a day to remember that will be filled with exciting news and romance.
Social Life: Someone is annoying you or making you really mad. You are aching to say a few choice words but you should ignore him/her as much as you can. After a few weeks, all will be forgotten.
Mood: Lately many thoughts have been going through your head. Put them down on paper. Start a journal or write a letter to someone you care about. You might be less confused about a situation if you see it on paper.

Capricorn(December22-January20): Love: You haven't had much luck with love lately. Try being friends first. You'll get to know him/her fully, including his/her strengths and weaknesses. By being friends first, you'll get a better idea about whether a relationship would be rewarding. Social Life:Call your best friend from home. He/she will be very excited to hear from you. Make plans to do something meaningful while you are home next time. Tell him/her how much you miss them. Mood:Your new classes have gotten you a little stressed out. Take some time to relax and stop worrying. Everything always works out in the end!

Glenburn Elementary School Enjoys Educational Visit from Australian Native

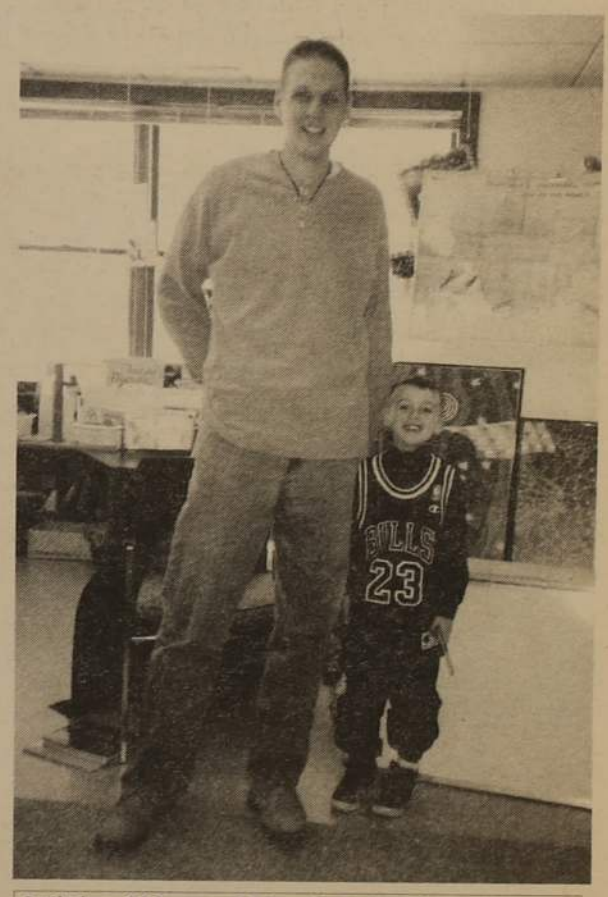

Michael Dyt visits third grade class for "show and tell"

by Charlotte Hanscom

Charlotte Hanscom's grandson, Dustin, was studying Australia in his third grade class at Glenburn Elementary School and needed something for show and tell from Australia.

Charlotte was talking to Mike, a basketball player form Australia attending Husson College, and asked if he had anything that could be used for show and tell. The next day Mike came back and said he would go and talk to the class about his country. The idea was met with great enthusiasm and Mike was on his way to Glenburn Elementary. Not only was one third grade class there, all the third graders had the opportuntiy to ask questions of Mike. Mike stayed for snacktime with the students.

The teachers and students were very impressed with Mike and thought he was a great representative for Husson College. We always hear about the bad things that go on at colleges; the good things are hardly mentioned. There is a lot of good happening here on our campus at Husson that we don't hear about. This is just one example of the many good students making up our student body.

for a better seat. My father and I were 18 rows up on the 35 yard line behind the Broncos bench. My sister and sister-in-law were a few rows below us. The next few hours I would go through an aray of emotions watching the best superbowl I have ever seen.

I have seen my brother play in many big games and have been very close to him my entire life, so when I get drilled with the question, "what is it like having a brother ..yada yada yada. I can only respond, "It's just Ed." Most of my close friends have met my brother on a personal level and are no longer star struck because they know him as a person. (Ed flew to Nampa, Idaho last year to watch the National Tournament that I was playing in with the men's hoops squad. He stayed with the team and travled with us. My friends also saw his competitive side at an arcade in downtown Nampa.)

I just wanted him to play well. He has a superbowl ring already with the 49ers in 95 but he didn't see much playing time due to some guy named Jerry Rice. It was especially moving to me seeing him announced as a starter on the big screen at the stadium. It gave me the chills and moved my sister and sister-in-law to tears. I'm sure anyone reading this article watched to game for themselves so I won't go into game details, but I was so anxious, excited, happy, proud, and honored at the way my big bro played.

After Elway took the final knee and the clock dwindled down the place went nuts. I found myself slapping fives and hugging people I had never met before. My brother came over to tell security to help us scale the wall. We took a bunch of pictures and watched the trophy presentation on the field and took in all the excitement. The players went to the locker room and we went to the post game party. We met up with my brother at the party and had a blast. It was much greater since they won. The place was decked out with all kinds of food and drinks. A huge ice sculpture of the Lombardi trophy was in the center of the room with shrimp and lobster surrounding it. I guess when you're the superbowl champs you can do things the right way. I saw quite a few players but talked mostly to Jeff Lewis (backup QB) and most of the offensive line all of whom were huge. I congratulated Bill Romanowski on my way to the shrimp and I got a "Thanks buddy," in response. Romanowski is my favorite defensive player.

The party lasted almost all night but we called it quits at about 3:30 a.m. My brother had some things in his room for us so we went to his room for a while. He had a mound of hats, shirts, jackets, and other souvenirs that he divided up between us. I then got about four and a half hours sleep before it was back on the shuttle bus to the airport. I said my goodbyes and started my next journey back to the New England freeze.

The trip home was much more relaxing due in part to the Broncos victory. After pit stops in Philly, and Boston I landed in Bangor and headed back to One College Circle. Although I spent more time in airplanes, shuttle buses, and trollies than I did with my family in San Diego, it was well worth the experience. This will stay with my family and be the topic of converasation for the rest of our lives. It was easily one of the best experiences of my life.

THANKS ED!

Husson Men and Women defeat St. Joe's

On Thursday, January 29th, the Husson basketball teams traveled to Standish, ME to take on conference rival St. Joseph's College. The opener showcased the women. The #2 ranked Braves against the #3 Monks. The game was close throughout. Both teams played with great intensity with the Braves coming out on top 62-54. Husson was led by the inside scoring of Sophomore Kelly Dow who netted 12 points. While Freshman co-captian Liza Doughty added 10 and Senior co-captain Emily Walker grabbed 8 boards and contributed 7 points.

The Husson Men came out on top 78-77 after a hard fought game. The Monk's took their second lead after leading 2-0 in the first quarter of action with 11:37 remaining in the second half. With the monentum on thier side, the Monks went up by 11 points with only 6:07 left in the game. After a rebound by Brad Olson, a shoving match evolved, resulting in punches being thrown by Lynn Campbell of St. Joe's, this led to his ejection from the game. Also from St. Joe's, Randy Harrison, who came off the bench during the brawl was ejected

After the 10 minute delay, the Braves came out fired up and were determined not to lose the contest. With only seconds remaining on the clock, St. Joe's had the opportunity to take the lead and the Braves defense proved to be to much for the Monks. The Braves scoring was led by Chris Funk, Brad Olson, and Nicos Sompatzis collecting 18, 16, and 15 respectively.

Congratulations!

The Husson Spectator would like to congratulate Senior Emily Walker for scoring her 1,000 point on December 30th against St. Thomas Aquinas . Walker transferred to Husson her Sophomore year fom New Hampshire College.
She will continue her education at Husson with a double-major in Nursing and Business Administration
