Husson Golf

2005-2006

The Program

The golf program at Husson College has a proud tradition of excellence. At one point, the team won ten straight NAIA New England Championships and participated each of those years in the National NAIA Golf Tournament. Many of the Husson golfers have enjoyed outstanding careers along with All Conference, All New England, and All American honors. The past seven years the Braves have won five Maine Intercollegiate Championships, six Conference Championships, and four New England Intercollegiate Golf Coaches Division III Championships. The team has also made four appearances at a National Tournament.

This year's team won seven fall tournaments. The year's regular NCAA III season record was an outstanding 83 wins, 2 losses and 1 tie. The team's head to head record against NCAA Div. I, II, and III teams was 101-7-1.

About Husson College

The Friendly Campus: Husson's 200-acre campus is situated on a wooded hillside that is only a short walk away from a shopping center and two miles from the business district of the city of Bangor, Maine (population 36,000). Most points in the city are accessible by public transportation from the campus, and Bangor is the home to the second largest public library in New England, and the oldest continuous community symphony orchestra in the country. The population of greater Bangor is 100,000.

Campus amenities include three modern residence halls with single and double rooms all equipped with telephone, cable TV and the College computer internet system outlet. The award-winning Dickerman Dining Commons offers flexible meal plans. The college has networked microcomputer labs available to students 24 hours a day. Our athletic facilities feature the beautiful new Clara Swan Fitness Center, the new 3,000-seat John Winkin Sports Complex, featuring new fields for baseball, football, softball, and field hockey, the new Boucher Soccer pitch and an Olympic-sized pool.

The Communications building houses the radio station and television, recording and production studios. Peabody Hall, the main administrative and classroom building is home to the International Center for Language Studies and is built around an open quadrangle. Peabody offers a bookstore and a new campus center that houses an art gallery, chapel, and dining and performance areas for the Husson community. Bell Hall houses School of Health labs, learning center, the Science Research Institute, and clinical settings.

Husson is located near some of the finest recreational opportunities in Maine. The Kenduskeag Stream is a five-minute walk from campus. Excellent skiing and hiking trails are nearby, and the campus is less than an hour away from the great Maine woods, the rock-bound coast and Acadia National Park.

GOLF LOOKS TO SPRING FOR A BERTH TO THE NATIONAL TOURAMENT

The Eagles finished an outstanding fall season this past weekend winning their Husson Invitational Golf Tournament. The Eagles won 7 out of 9 tournament on the season. Husson will now look to the spring for a berth to the NCAA III National Tournament, which will be held at the Mission Inn Golf and Tennis Resort on May 9-12, 2006 in Howey-in-the-Hills, FL.

Husson finished the fall with a head to head record of 83-2-1 against NCAA III schools. Overall the team was 101-7-1 against schools from all divisions. The Eagles won the New England Intercollegiate Golf Coaches Association Division III Championship for the forth time in five years as well as the Maine Intercollegiate Golf Championship for the third time in four years.

The Eagles had a team scoring average of 305 with the last two rounds below 300. Husson had five players average below 80 for the season:

Ross McGee – Sr – Fairfield, ME – 75 scoring average
Lance Libby – Jr – Waterville, ME – 74.9 scoring average
Rob Picard – So – Vassalboro, ME – 79 scoring average
Adam Duplisea – So – Hermon, ME – 78 scoring average
John Ellis – So – Swan Lake, ME – 78 scoring average
Brian St. Louis – Jr – Argyle, ME – 81 scoring average

Also, four different Eagles were medallist this season, Ross McGee (Belgrade Lakes), Lance Libby (Point Sebago), Rob Picard (Natanis), and Adam Duplisea (Samoset) all were medallist.

Husson will now look towards the spring season, which will feature a 12 day trip to Naples, FL to get ready for three tournaments in the spring before participating in the Northeast Regional NCAA III Shootout. The shootout will be held at Williams College with the top three teams from the Northeast Region advancing to the NCAA III National Championship.

Husson places 5th at NEIGA tourney

Eagles finish 1st among Division III teams

College golf

BREWSTER, Mass. — Ross McGee shot a 2-over-par 74 Tuesday to lead Husson College of Bangor to a fifth-place finish in the New England Intercollegiate Golf Association Championship at Captains Golf Course.

The Eagles shot a combined 299 Tuesday, second best among the 45 schools participating, to finish with a two-day total of 612. The University of Rhode Island won with a 592. The top four teams are all NCAA Division I programs.

Husson's play was good enough to win the Div. III title, while also besting all of the Div. II teams.

McGee, named to the All-NEIGA Division III team for the third time, finished third among individuals with his 36-hole score of 1-over-par 145, six strokes behind winner Jason Parajeckas of the University of Connecticut and one behind URI's Jason Pannone.

The team total is determined by adding up the four best scores each day from the five-man team. The other Husson competitors were Lance Libby with 72 for 152 (tied for 17th), John Ellis at 77-157 (T42), Adam Duplisea at 76-158 (T49), and Robbie Picard at 78-161 (T78).

Among the other Maine colleges, Southern Maine finished 24th at 654, St. Joseph's College of Standish tied for 30th at 666, and Bates of Lewiston was 40th at 688.

J.J. Frost was the top scorer for USM, posting a 78 Tuesday for 154. Francois Renaud led St. Joe's with 77-160, and Alex Jacobson paced the Bobcats with 84-167.

Husson golfer gains New England award

McGee leads Eagles to regional crown

BY LARRY MAHONEY
OF THE NEWS STAFF

Ross McGee of Fairfield didn't pick up a golf club until he was 13 years old and it was actually just a plastic club. And he was hitting wiffle golf balls.

But the Husson College senior has certainly made up for lost time.

McGee's outstanding collegiate career was rewarded Sunday when he received the prestigious Guy Tedesco Award given to the New England college golfer who has made a significant contribution to college golf and who also reflects the values of sportsmanship exemplified by Guy Tedesco.

"I was kind of surprised. I'm from a small Division III school in Bangor, Maine. I would have thought they would have chosen somebody from a Division I school or something like that," said McGee.

He was presented the award at a banquet on Cape Cod where the New England Regional championships for all divisions was held.

"It was really touching. Coach [Bruce MacGregor] did a really good job introducing me," said McGee.

He said he was on "cloud nine" and he promptly went out and shot a 71 Monday in the first day of the two-day New England Intercollegiate Golf Association Championships at Captains Golf Course in Brewster, Mass.

"I was on cloud 10 [after that round]," said McGee, who added that the emotional high from the banquet carried over to the golf course.

"To have the other golfers come up and shake my hand after the banquet gave me a lot of confidence," said McGee.

He added a 74 in Tuesday's second round to finish at 1-over-par 145 while helping Husson capture the New England Division III title.

McGee finished third overall in the tourney while the Eagles finished fifth overall.

Husson College golfer Ross McGee has received the Guy Tedesco Award given to the New England college golfer who has made a significant contribution to college golf and who also reflects the values of sportsmanship exemplified by Guy Tedesco.

In his first three seasons, McGee was a two-time conference player of the year and a two-time selection to the All-New England Intercollegiate Golf Association Division III team. He was picked to the Northeast Region NCAA Division III team last year.

He has led Husson to three conference titles and three New England Division III championships.

He credits his stepfather, Randy Goodhue, an avid golfer, with introducing him to the game.

McGee fell in love with the game, and his mother, Marcia, would drop him off at Pine Ridge Municipal Golf Course in Waterville in the morning and pick him up at night.

He went on to get a junior membership at Waterville Country Club in Oakland and he has worked at golf courses during the summer months ever since.

McGee played for Lawrence High School, and although he never won the state tourney, he had just one loss and one tie in individual matches.

He also played basketball at Lawrence, including two years for his uncle, Mike McGee.

"He was pretty hard on me for a while, but it was all for the best. It helped me out a lot in life," said McGee.

He decided to attend Husson because it was "it was a pretty good fit for me."

"I wanted to play golf close to home, I knew the team was really good, and I knew a few of the players," said McGee.

He was mentored by the veterans on the golf team his freshman year and now he has become the mentor as the two-year captain.

MacGregor has also been a major influence in his life.

"He is probably one of the most competitive people I've ever met and that has been carried on to me," said McGee.

McGee works constantly on his putting and credited pro Colin Gillies of Penobscot Valley Country Club in Orono with a recent tip that has made a big difference in his putting. He would love to conclude his career with a trip to the nationals with his mates next spring.

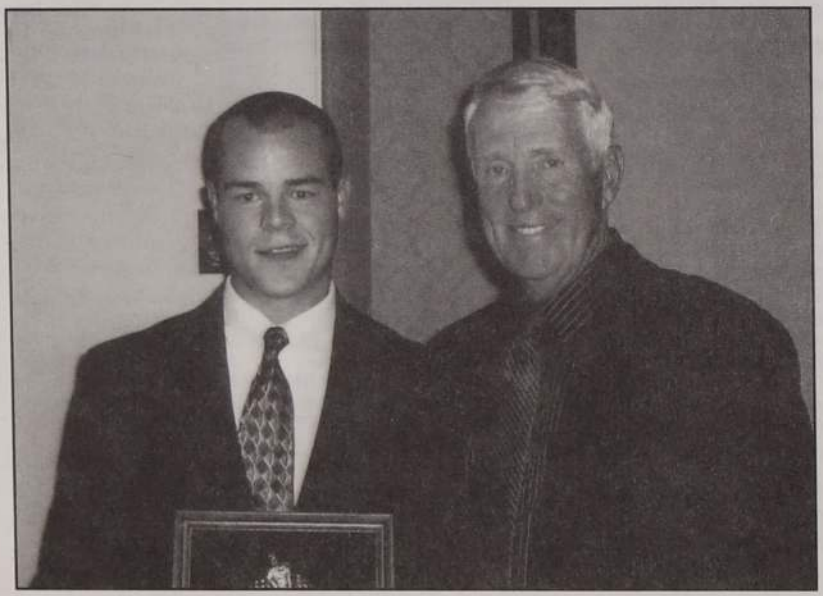

He hopes to continue his golf career after graduation.

"I want to turn pro and become a Class A professional so when I do go out and try to join a tour, I'll have that to fall back on. I'll probably be in the golf business the rest of my life. I love being around the people and everything," said McGee.

Husson golf team seeking regional berth

BY LARRY MAHONEY
OF THE NEWS STAFF

College report

The Husson College golf team did not win the New England Regional Division III Tournament a year ago, ending a string of three consecutive championships.

They hope to rectify that situation this weekend but it will be a grueling challenge.

That's because they play in the North Atlantic Conference championships on Saturday and Sunday at the Belgrade Lakes Golf Club before driving to Cape Cod for the New England Interscholastic Golf Association Championships at the Captains Golf Course in Brewster, Mass., on Monday and Tuesday.

"Playing four rounds in four days this time of year does wear you out. The weather changes, you've got class and tests. It requires more of an adjustment," said Husson senior Ross McGee of Fairfield "But everybody loves it. This is what we all live for. And this is a chance to play the best teams in New England."

He added that if they play well and win the conference tournament, "it will build a lot of confidence that we can take to the Cape. That will help out a lot."

"We've had a very good year. We have a strong team."

Husson coach Bruce MacGregor

Husson will enter this weekend's tournaments having won its previous five tournaments. The Eagles will be looking for their seventh straight conference championship on Saturday and Sunday although they have been in different conferences.

"We've had a very good year. We have a strong team," said Bruce MacGregor, who has coached the Eagles since 1994. "We definitely have the potential to go to the nationals [in the spring]. We definitely have the talent."

To qualify for the national Division III tournament, Husson has to earn a spot in next spring's 12-team Northeast Regional Tournament at Williams College (Mass.) through its play this fall and during the spring. Husson must play at least three matches in the spring prior to the Northeast Regional.

The top three teams at the Northeast Regional next spring advance to the NCAA Division III championships.

MacGregor's seven-man team is comprised exclusively of players who honed their skills on the golf courses in central and eastern Maine.

"What has been very good is that is has been somebody different [leading the way] each day. In the last five tournaments, we've had the medalist in four and they've been different individuals each time," said MacGregor. "Even during practices, all seven will shoot in the 70s."

The number one player is two-year captain McGee. He has shot in the 70s in all eight of his playing days this season. Junior Lance Libby from Waterville and sophomore Rob Picard of Vassalboro have shot in the 70s in seven of their eight playing days; sophomore transfer Adam Duplisea, a transfer from Daniel Webster (N.H.), has accomplished the feat in five of six after missing the first two matches and sophomore John Ellis of Belfast has recorded scores in the 70s in five of seven days.

In addition, junior Brian St. Louis of Argyle and freshman Brian Johnson from Bangor have supplied the Eagles with depth and pushed the top five with their play during qualifying rounds in practices.

"The competition has made us stronger," said MacGregor.

He said his players "bring a variety of things to the table. Overall, a lot of them hit the ball pretty far. In this day and age, the young athletes can really hit the ball an amazing distance."

The former longtime Hus men's basketball coach also his team has been a joy to w with.

"They're all excellent pe They're very courteous. they love the game. If I tell t to take a day off, they'll go there and play anyway. The really dedicated to the ga said MacGregor.

"We help each other ou practice," said McGee who passed on the lessons he lea from his previous Husson te mates to his current teamm

"I came in here as a fresh with a big ego. But the guys were way better than me. T showed me how to be com tive and how every shot cou I've carried that tradition and have tried to help the pe under me," said McGee.

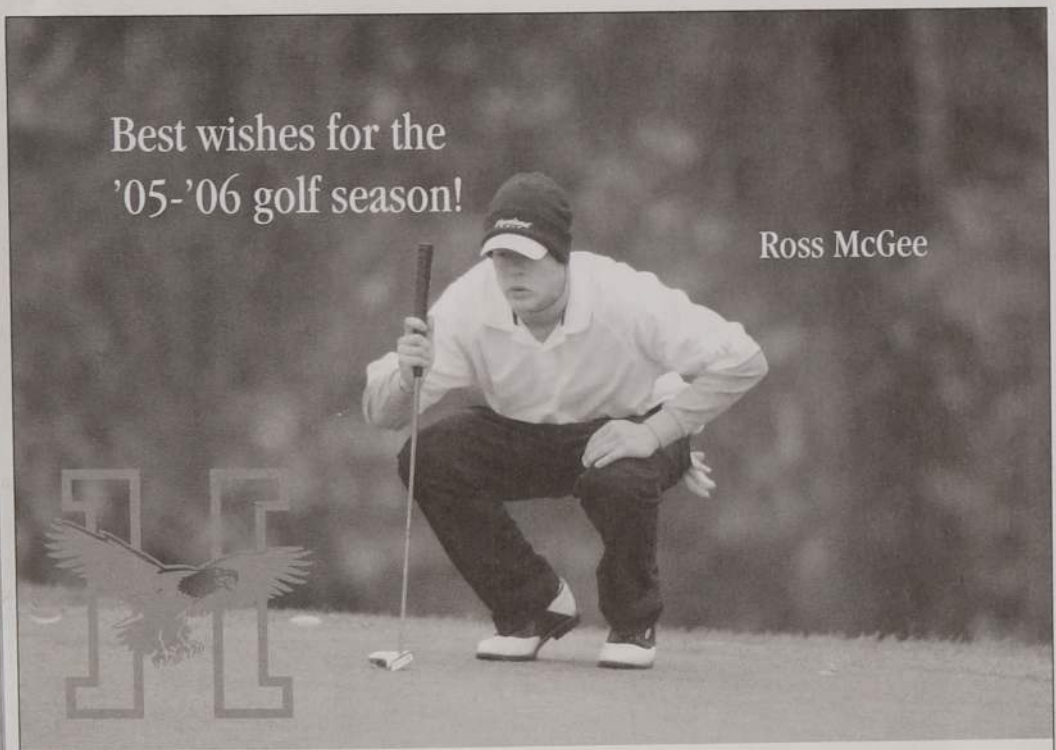

The Eagles have played a Belgrade Lakes course and M Gregor said "we usually pretty well there."

The Captains Course offe different challenge. Teams f Division I and Division II also be there.

"They have a lot of hills long holes and they usually wind this time of year. tough. The scores are usua lot higher than they would other courses," said MacGre

"You have a totally diffe mindset [at the Cape]," McGee. "Everything is diffe You've got 44 schools, it's m more competitive and every counts that much more. year, it was 45 degrees, pou rain and there was a 25-mile hour wind."
