Husson's Board of Trustees Meet

International Statement of Purpose Endorsed By Husson Board of Trustees

Students attending Husson College will soon be feeling the significance of the recently held Board of Trustees meeting.

An International Education Task Force has been working since July to develop a statement of purpose that was endorsed by the full Board at Monday's meeting. "The purpose of international education at Husson College is to ensure that students are adequately prepared for effective, ethical performances in today's global society . . ."

While Husson's mission will continue to be to provide quality programs of study in business, health, education, and other professional fields, the Board's endorsement will provide opportunities for students to receive a more intense global perspective throughout the curriculum.

International education at Husson includes such things as intercultural experiences and activities, study abroad, international internships, international student exchanges, foreign language study, English-as-a-second-language programs, faculty and staff exchanges, area studies, international cultural events, opportunities for faculty and staff development, research and teaching of international subject matter and foreign student advising.

In other action, Trustees approved a new employee handbook and authorized the hiring of a professional investment firm to manage the growing endowment, currently in excess of $1 million.

Trustees also announced plans for the pursuit of a major Department of Education Title III Strengthening Program Grant. Application for such will be submitted in the Spring of 1990.

Trustee Richard Dyke will spearhead a subcommittee of the executive committee to study and report to the full Board at their next meeting plans to develop the back campus, which covers approximately 100 acres.

Meetings are held quarterly, with the next meeting planned for January of 1990.

Halloween Results . . .

ETE's Halloween Bash '89'
By Valerie Tefts

On Friday, October 27th, ETE held their annual Halloween Party. The ETE sisters put their all into promoting the event by making posters, sending out invitations, and even going door to door. The bash was held in the Arrowhead from 9:00-12:30. The place was decorated from top to bottom with the spirit of Halloween. There was a live D.J. and refreshments.

During the festive night, there was a costume contest. The sisters judged in three categories: scariest, funniest, and most original. By the looks of all the costumes, it was apparent that a lot of time and effort was put into them, but only three could win. The winners were Scariest, Sue Teeney as a witch; Funniest, Isaiah Moskowitz and Doris Burby as jail criminals; and Most Original, Leanne Erskine as a red maple leaf.

Another big event during the night was the announcement of the winner of the Pumpkin Candy Raffle. The winner was Linda Jenkins.

Overall the night was a big success for the ETE sisters. There was fun and plenty of excitement for all who attended.

And the winner is . . .
By Valerie Tefts

The 2nd floor of Hart Hall really showed their Halloween spirit. The floor thought it would be a great idea to have a door decorating contest as well as the Student Government's floor decorating contest. The door contest would be fun and enhance their chances of winning the hall contest.

Everyone on the floor put their thinking caps on to try to outdo each other. The hall was buzzing with anticipation to see who would have the best door.

By Friday, Nov. 27th, the doors were completed and ready to be judged. It was a tough decision for Liz Russell and Sandy Jutras, who were the judges, but they finally reached a verdict. The winner was Kurumi Amani in room 207.

The 2nd floor of Hart congratulates Kurumi for her excellent job. Also the floor thanks Liz and Sandy for judging.

Jane Goodwin
Named to NEASC Evaluation Team

Jane M. Goodwin, director of admissions at Husson College, recently served on the visiting committee which evaluated Marshwood High School in October.

Founded in 1885, the New England Association is the oldest regional accreditation association in the country and is recognized by the U.S. Department of Education as the sole agency to award accreditation to educational institutions in New England.

The Association is a voluntary league of over 1690 public and independent schools, colleges and universities, and vocational, technical and career institutions. Of these, approximately 690 public schools have been accredited through the Association's Commission on Public Secondary Schools which assists individual schools to improve the quality of education through a process of evaluation and accreditation.

The evaluation included reviewing various educational components of the school and assisting in the preparation of the final accreditation report of Marshwood High School.

Arcady Music Festival
By Viviana Altomari

Tuesday, October 31, marked something more than Halloween. It was also the day that the Arcady Music Festival came to Husson College. The concert, titled "Music for Winds and Keyboard," brought Marsha Heller, oboe; Mitchell Kriegler, clarinet; William Scribner, bassoon; and Arcady's artistic director, Masanbou Ikemiya, harpsichordist and pianist.

The concert opened with a Sonata For Bassoon and Harpsichord by Carl Friedrich Christian Fasch (1736-1800). The other pieces played were A Duo for Oboe and Bassoon by G. Rochberg, Three Pieces in Trio by Jaques Ibert, and Trio Pathetique in D-Minor for Clarinet, Bassoon and Piano by Mikhail Ivanovich Glinka.

This was a marvelous concert in which the listeners were whisked away to another place and held there until the end of the movements, and then gently brought back to reality.

From the Editor . . . .

The Campus Question column in the Oct. 30 issue asked, "What is your definition of a REAL MAN or a REAL WOMAN?" The responses to this question from various Husson students were printed without quotation marks and without identifying the speakers. Several female students were insulted and offended by the remarks. This was a learning-process mistake on the part of THE SPECTATOR staff.

Of course THE SPECTATOR did not and does not wish to offend or insult anyone and will be more careful in the future.

Dear Editor:

The Chrysler Corporation is on the verge of getting involved in a bit of international genocide.

Please forgive if the assumption is made that you know little about the Latvian Nation.

Briefly: Historically, Latvians have been unable to keep out of the affairs of their much larger neighbors.

Toward the end of the 1st World War, in order to free themselves from German Barons, many Latvians joined up with Lenin and his Bolsheviks. During the ensuing calamity they managed to make many Russians very, very unhappy.

During the 2nd World War, again Latvians got mixed up in the fight between the big boys and vigorously resisted the implementation of the Hitler-Stalin Pact, namely, the second coming of the Russians.

When things settled down after the 2nd World War, the Russian occupation regime known as the Soviets, decided that they had had enough of Latvian antics and decided on a program to destroy the Latvian Nation. This program of destruction, in addition to traditional methods such execution and deportation, employs subtle, internationally less visible methods.

One such method is industrialization of the territory historically inhabited by the Latvians. Without any economic justification, huge industrial plants are imported from other parts of the Soviet Union. Raw materials to operate these plants are also imported. The products of these industries again disappear into the Soviet Union, without any benefit to the Latvian.

However, the most deadly aspect of this machination, as far as survival of the Latvian Nation is concerned, is the forced immigration of labor from other parts of the Soviet Union to man these plants.

At this time (1989), this program of genocide has created a situation where Latvians now are a minority in their homeland.

It has been announced that the Chrysler Corporation plans to build a manufacturing plant in Latvia. Latvians see this as one more step in the program to destroy their nation.

Under no circumstances do we believe that the Chrysler Corporation knowingly participates in furthering genocide. Nevertheless, the Chrysler Corporation Project will promote the influx of some 50,000 additional workers, thus further weakening the ability of Latvians to survive. (Native Latvian population prior to World War 1 - 3,100,000 down to 1,400,000 now.)

Industrialization with subsequent migration of new workers into Latvia creates an unprecedented historical event, namely, theLatvian Nation will be democratically voted out of existence.

In addition, the post-war forced-industrialization has caused unbelieveable contamination: all of Latvia's lakes and rivers have been declared unfit for swimming. Birth defects among migrants and Latvians is a disaster. The most polluted area is Ventspils, where Mr. Hammer's Occidental Petroleum built huge chemical plants.

Latvians are not asking for special privileges. We would be grateful to receive just half of the rights accorded to the smallest and weakest member of the United Nations. Please help us stop Chrysler.

Alcohol Awareness

By Jack Slomback

The first three articles this semester may have allowed some readers to become Aware of a problem with alcohol or drugs in oneself or a loved one. The next step is to truly Admit that a problem exists. This step is much more difficult than it may appear.

Alcoholism, or drug addiction, has many symptoms. One of them is denial. It is often said that alcoholism is one of the few diseases where denying you have it is a symptom, in fact, of having it. Therefore, Admitting very seldom occurs.

The alcoholic may admit to having one too many every once in a while. Some of us may admit that father or mother enjoys a few beers each evening. Perhaps a spouse admits that the husband or wife comes home from work late, after stopping at the local tavern, more often than he or she should. But to actually admit that alcoholism is present is rare indeed.

One of the most respected treatment centers in the country, located in the upper Mid-west, professes the following about their 28-day treatment program. They suggest that if there is one thing they hope to accomplish during the 28 days the patient is there, it is that they can successfully break down denial. They believe if they can get a patient to admit they actually have a problem, then they have succeeded.

Admitting that one grew up in an alcoholic home or admitting to having an alcoholic spouse is equally difficult. Alcoholism is not one of the socially accepted diseases. Society's views about alcoholism or drug addiction are still in the dark ages. Nobody really likes to admit the disease is present in the family, even though it is probably something everyone else in the neighborhood already knows.

Breaking down the denial process in family members is just as important as in the drinker, since recovery will not occur in most cases until then. Recovery for the spouse and/or family members is just as important as with the drinker. Once awareness occurs, and admitting takes place, then acceptance of the problem is necessary for succesful recovery. That is the topic of the next article.

Dear Spectator;

We would like to thank the Student Government for providing the students with a night of bowling. It was a pleasant change of pace to be able to go out and enjoy an evening with so many Husson students. The enthusiasm shown by the participants was a sight to see. It is not often that one can see most of the Greeks and the independents together at a social event.

Again, we would like to thank the Student Government for an enjoyable evening, and say that we are looking forward to the next social event.

Sincerely Yours,
The Brothers of Mu

Free Lunch Drawing

The first drawing of a free lunch in the Wigwam was won by Ed Leblanc, a resident who lives in 104 Hart. His name was drawn by Julie Green during the Senate meeting which was held on October 18. The second drawing, which took place on October 25, was won by Scott Warman, a resident of 105 Hart. His name was drawn by John Rubino during an Executive Board meeting.

It has been the case in both drawings that only 12 people have signed up. If you felt that you would never win anything, or that you just don't have the 1 minute it would take to sign your name on a piece of paper, take the time because YOU may be our next winner of a FREE lunch in the Wigwam.

RULES OF THE GAME

1) The drawing does not cost a thing.
2) You must sign up in the Student Government Office.
3) When you sign up, it is only for the week of that particular drawing.
4) The meal is redeemable at the winner's convenience.
5) Drawing is every Wednesday.

Good Luck!

The Admissions Office passed along the following story:

A traveler stopped to observe the curious behavior of a farmer who was plowing his field. A single mule hitched to a plow was wearing blinders and the farmer was yelling, "Giddyap, Pete! Giddyap, Herb! Giddyap, Ol' Bill! Giddyap, Jeb"!

After watching the farmer carry on like this for a while, the traveler asked, "Say Mister, how many names does that mule have?" "Just one, his name is Pete." "Then why do you call out Herb and Bill and ---"?

"It's like this," explained the farmer. "If Ol 'Pete knew he was doing all this work alone, I couldn't make him do it. But if he thinks he's got three other mules workin' alongside of him, he does the whole job all by himself.

"What a marvelous idea!" explained the traveler. And when he got back to his corporate office in New York, he invented the committee.

Friends

By Jodie Williams

The moon, the stars, the deep blue sky, all engulfed by an enormous black cloud, and somehow the sun still shines on some but for others life is in that enormous black cloud.

When the world stops caring and is never understanding, for some reason none of these things seem to matter if you have a friend to walk down that lonesome road with you, to place the sun into your life again and to take that enormous black cloud away. If he is a true friend, he will be there caring and understanding, and that enormous black cloud will become a sunny sky when you've walked down that road with a friend.

Men's Basketball Team Trip to New Brunswick

By Stephen Novak

The Husson Braves men's basketball team opened its pre-season last weekend with a trip to Fredericton, New Brunswick, to play in the First Annual Red Rider Fall Classic.

Friday night saw the Husson Braves matched up against a tough University of Prince Edward Island team. The Braves, without the services of Mitch Range, scored first, but from then on had trouble with UPEI's press. The further the game went on, the further behind Husson got. Going to the locker room, the Braves were down by 20 points.

At half-time the intensity level picked up and the Braves were soon holding their own, but every time Husson made a move, the Panthers, led by All-Canadian Peter Gorden, hit a big 3-pointer to match the comeback.

The final score was 85-65. It was a disappointing loss, and the team determined to avenge its loss and gain back some pride.

Freshman Jeff Shakoor showed that he would be a factor along with Buster Frederick, who was a force on the boards. The team's shots just weren't going in, and the Braves ended up shooting about 30% from the floor.

In the second game, the Braves were playing against Bishop's University of Quebec. The B.U. Gators had lost the previous night to The University of New Brunswick.

The game opened up with Husson pulling out to a quick lead, but disaster struck early when starter Pete Cace dove for a ball which was headed out of bounds; in the process of saving it, he received a gash in his shooting arm which required stitches. With Pete out for the game, Coach McGreggor had to reorganize the line up, and without the two big men it was going to be tough. With only a few subs remaining on the bench, Husson managed to hold onto an 8-point lead going into half-time.

Coming out, the Braves' best chance was to close the coffin early and then use the bench, but while they gained 10-11 point leads, the Gators just kept hanging tough. Half way through the period, things turned around and the Braves soon found themselves behind and just couldn't catch up.

The final score was 88-82 but it really didn't tell the story. The Husson Braves played tough but the shots just weren't going in; again the Braves shot around 30% from the floor.

It definitely wasn't a wasted trip, as team member Mark Stillwagon will tell you: "The trip was a major learning experience . . . I think we grew together as a team." Bobby Campbell also saw it that way: "... This trip made each one of us take a long look at ourselves as individuals and made us think about just how hard we want to work to accomplish our team goals."

The Husson Braves will open up their regular season at home against UME Augusta at 7:30 on Tuesday. See you all there.

The Braves golf team finished its fall season at Natanis Country Club last month. The annual WMAC Championship was won by Farmington, with Husson placing second. Both Kurt and Dave made the All WMAC team. Other scores included Dewey Gosslin 83, Joe Bustard 84 and Matt Thompson 112.

The team also competed in the Bowdoin Invitational, where they finished fourth, and the Husson Invitational, where they didn't fare as well.

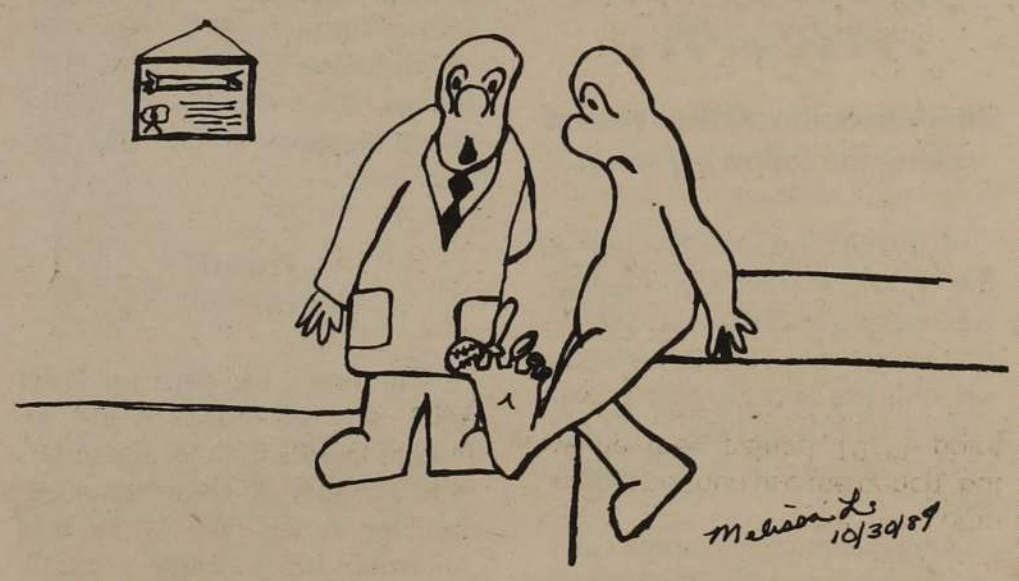

The team will be practicing throughout the winter to gear up for the spring season and the NAIA's.
