Husson College Bangor, Maine

Dedication

A recent addition has been made to the portraits that hang about the halls of Husson College. A portrait of Frank Peters now hangs in the library. This is a logical choice for the place where his portrait is to hang because as Paul Husson said at the dedication ceremony on March 30, "It is fitting that the portrait hang here because Frank was a man of books.

Husson said that Frank Peters led a life of adventure. He traveled to the Far East, Hong Kong, China, Pakistan, Asia, Kenya. His career ended during World War II when he was captured by the Japanese. Because he was a civilian at the time he was captured, the Swiss were able to negotiate his release. He then became an intelligence officer for the O.S.S., a predecessor of the C.I.A. It was in 1966 that Frank Peters retired for the first time. He became a teacher and later a college president. Mr. Husson finished by saying that Mr. Peters'life was full of adventure: "Frank was bigger than life. We all miss his stories and his humor. We were all very fortunate to have Frank as a friend."

Mr. Peters became president of Husson College in the late 1970's. It was at the time prior to his becoming president that the enrollment of the college was at an all-time low. He became president from among the faculty. He brought reaccreditation to the school and brought in more students. When the school was badly in need of funds he brought in the controversial Job Corps program to rent space from the school and made it work. He also brought in the I.C.L.S. and the financial aid that so many students depend upon today. And most importantly he brought students. The enrollment increased to between 650 and 800 students.

President Beardsley tells the story of how the enrollment was so low that at one time they were going to close down the school. He said that Frank Peters took the keys out of his pocket,threw them on the desk, and told that person to go ahead and close the school himself because he wasn't going to do it.

Japan: Maine's Business Partner of the Future?

Recently Paul Husson took a trip to Japan with several other Eastern Maine businessmen to speak to several Japanese firms in order to promote interest in trade and new business ventures in Eastern Maine.

He met in Hammamatsu with officials from several corporations including Ishikawa Tekko, a company that make small parts, and also the machines that make other machines, like the robots used to make cars and computers.

He then spent two days talking to Tetsuro Kosaka, a Husson graduate who received a M.S. in Business in 1984. Mr. Kosaka took two days off and helped Mr. Husson contact 12 colleges and agencies in that period of time to talk to them about the I.C.L.S. Program.

A seminar was held for area businessmen in which the members of the delegation spoke about business opportunities for Japanese businessmen in Maine. Mr. Husson spoke about education in Maine. They later hosted a dinner.

The delegation spent a few days in Hong Kong and met with the Trade Development Corporation and the American Chamber of Commerce, where they hosted a seminar at the U.S. Information Agency.

All in all Mr. Husson was impressed with the people of Japan. He says that they are a very dynamic society that pays a lot of attention to detail. He tells the story of a dinner that he attended that was hosted by Ishikawa Tekko. The screw in his eyeglasses had loosened. One of the female members of the delegation was able to make some repair to it by tightening the screw with her fingernail. When they left Ishikawa Tekko, the president of the company met the party to say goodbye. This alone was impressive. What was even more impressive was that in his pocket was a tiny screwdriver. When he shook hands with Mr. Husson he took this out of his pocket and asked him for his eyeglasses. He then took out the tiny screwdriver and proceeded to repair the glasses. It seems that he saw the woman repair Mr. Husson's glasses and didn't want him to leave Japan with glasses that were loose.

It is business practices such as these that would bring a breath of fresh air into Maine's businesses. With such attention to detail, it will be difficult to have unsatisfied customers.

The Easter Story

Easter is the most important day of the Christian year. It celebrates the Resurrection of Jesus. On Easter morning, according to the Gospel of St. Luke, Mary Magdalen and some companions visited the cave where He had been buried. To their astonishment, they found the tomb empty. An angel appeared and told them that Jesus had risen.

In the following days, Jesus appeared several times to His disciples, who began to understand that His miraculous victory over death offered the promise of rebirth for everyone who believed in Him.

In the 8th century the Venerable Bede suggested that the word "Easter" may have come from Eostre, the Angle-Saxon name of a Teutonic goddess of spring and fertility. Her symbol was a hare, which may explain the custom of the Easter rabbit.

Easter eggs are thought to have originated because eggs were a symbol of rebirth. The tradition of coloring them probably began with medieval travelers to Egypt and Persia where people colored eggs for their spring festivals.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board says having ham for Easter may have started up near the Baltic Sea.

Before winter set in, meat was buried in the sandy shore. The cold ground and sea salt preserved the meat, which was later dug up to celebrate the coming of Spring.

Alcohol Awareness

by Jack Slomback

This week's article will focus on Eleanor (not her real name), a Senior Business Management major who was willing to share her story with us by responding to the following questions:

Q. When did you realize, Eleanor, you had a problem with chemicals?

A. When I began not attending my regular Al Anon meetings because I had too much to drink, I realized I had a problem myself.

Q. Looking back, how old were you when you started drinking alcoholically?

A. I believe I started drinking alcoholically during high school. I didn't drink often but I always drank to get drunk.

Q. How did you hide it from your family?

A. After I got married I would hide my bottle in the attic so my husband wouldn't realize how much I really drank.

Q. Do you think your chemical use affected your family?

A. Although my children were too young to remember my drinking, my alcoholic attitude and behavior definitely had an affect on them.

Q. What made you decide to get help, Eleanor?

A. When my husband and I started to have marital problems, I decided to reach out for help.

Q. How has your life changed since recovery?

A. Since recovery, I have completed four years of college and became a positive role model for my children.

Q. How do you feel about yourself today?

A. After I stopped drinking and started working the 12 steps of AA, I started to see myself as someone who had the potential to achieve those things in life that I once viewed as unreachable. I like myyself today.

Q. Any advice for anyone who may be reading this today?

A. Have the courage to make changes in your life, you'll be surprised at how good you feel about yourself when you look back and see how far you have come.

President Beardsley said that whenever Frank Peters did anything, he did it all out. He was the man who first brought in the Business Breakfast where we are now able to speak to some of the most successful businessmen in the area. He also said that Frank enjoyed seeing people drinking tea served from silver teapots and talking about books and culture. One thing that President Beardsley pointed out was that Mr. Peters was "very formal and nonconformist. He was known for tipping a flourescent orange cap to ladies."

At the dedication ceremony, the people who had known him while he was at Husson and his sons gathered to honor him in the library, among books, sipping tea served from silver teapots, talking about culture and art. I wonder if perhaps somewhere Frank Peters wasn't watching: smiling and tipping a flourescent orange hunting cap.

Storing your Easter eggs

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says egg dyes you buy in the market are approved for safe use. Boiling the egg, however, removes the shell's natural protective covering and opens the pores. Bacteria can enter the egg during subsequent handling.

The safest practice is to use plastic eggs for the egg hunt and decorations. It won't matter how much they are handled because the stuff inside won't be contaminated by hands, dirt, and lawn chemicals.

Your beautiful hardcooked, natural eggs can be displayed for short periods of time and where they won't be handled significantly. Hardcooked eggs with shells intact will last 10 to 12 days in the refrigerator. Any that crack should be used the same day.

Campus Question

by Shawn Aksamit

With student government elections coming up on April 11th, many students are undecided about who to vote for, or even whether or not to vote. This weeks two part question brought up some interesting thoughts and opinions. Do you feel that you know enough about any of the candidates to vote responsibly and if a forum was held with all candidates stating their views and plans for the upcoming year would you attend?

Joe Davis: "No, I couldn't vote responsibly because I don't know any of the candidates. I would attend a forum to become more actively involved and to enhance my school spirit. The forum would be a part of the Democratic process to which we are all entitled and it would also show a sense of responsibility."

Jamie Glover: "No, I couldn't vote responsibly because I don't know who the candidates are. I probably won't even vote. I wouldn't attend a forum because I have more important things to do."

Patricia Hogan: "I don't know any of the candidates that are running-except one that's a friend, so I don't feel that I could vote responsibly. Yes, I would definitely attend a forum if one was held."

Terry McLellan: "I don't feel that I know all of the candidates as well as I should to vote responsibly. I don't even know how they are supposed to be benefiting us-others feel the same way. If there was a forum to explain what the student government is, what they do for us, and to introduce the candidates to us I would attend."

Paul Sprenkle: "I don't know enough about any of the candidates to vote responsibly mainly because there aren't any opportunities to get to know what the candidates views are. Yes, I would attend a forum if all candidates were present and they all had equal opportunity to state their views and opinions."

Dory Standley: "No, I don't feel that I know enough about any of the candidates to vote responsibly and I would attend a forum if it fit into my schedule."

Al Tripp: "No, I wouldn't vote because I'm not informed enough about the candidates. If I thought the forum was going to be organized and informative I would probably attend."

Ed Vasquez: "No, I wouldn't vote or attend a forum. I hate politics, I think they're a joke."

The Steadfast Heart

I've dreamed many dreams that never came true.
I've seen them vanish at dawn,
But I've realized enough of my dreams, Thank God,
To make me want to dream on.

I've prayed many prayers
when no answer came,
Though I waited patient and long.
But answers have come to enough of my prayers
To make me keep praying on.

I've trusted many a friend who failed,
And left me to weep alone.
But I've found enough of my friends true,
To make me keep trusting on.

I've sown many a seed that fell by the way,
For the birds to feed upon,
But I've held enough golden sheaves in my hands,
To make me keep sowing on.

I've drained the cup of disappointment and pain,
And gone many ways without song.
But I've sipped enough nectar
from the roses of life
To make me want to live on.

Anon.

The Passover Story

Passover, which occurs on April 10th this year, is the beginning of an eight-day Jewish celebration. It marks the delivery of the Jews from Egyptian enslavement over 3,000 years ago.

God spoke to the shepherd Moses, his voice coming from a burning bush, telling him to lead the Jews out of Egypt. But Pharaoh wanted them to continue building pyramids. He wouldn't let them go in spite of God's plagues upon the Egyptians.

Finally Moses told Pharaoh that a tenth and last plague would kill all the Egyptians' Firstborn sons. As a signal to the Angel of Death, the Jews sacrificed a lamb and sprinkled its blood on their door-posts. The Angel "passed over" their homes.

After this plague, the Egyptians said the Jews could leave. In great haste to prepare, the Jews made bread without leavening so they would not have to wait for bread to rise.

As they left, Pharaoh changed his mind and sent soldiers to stop them, but the Red Sea parted, allowing them to cross. It closed again so the Egyptians could not follow.

Today Jewish families celebrate with prayer, songs and blessings, and with a ceremonial seder meal that includes unleavened bread.

How to worry less

Do you waste time on unproductive worry? Author Kevin Murphy (Effective Listening, Bantam Books) says, ask yourself: Did worrying help to solve this problem before? Do I have any control over the situation? Are there matters in the here-and-now that are more relevant and can be dealt with effectively?

Buying a car: The last day of the months is best for dealing. Salesmen are trying to fill quotas. Select the youngest salesman on the floor.

Going on TV: You look 15 percent more serious than in real life, so try to look 15 percent less serious when on camera.

Student Government

by Viviana Altomari

A lot of people wonder why we have a student government. What do they do? Student government is one of the ways that the students have to communicate with the administration. Some members sit in on Board of Trustee meetings and voice the opinions and concerns of students.

Student government was concerned about the school policy for snow cancellations. They formed a committee that would look into the problem and tried to find a policy by which snow cancellations could be made. On the committe were David Roussel, Resident President, Peter Sund, Commuter President, and three senators. The commuters were especially concerned with the problem. The student body at Husson College is made up of 50 percent commuters.

There are 22 clubs and organizations that fall under student government. These clubs all have to submit their expected expenses to the finance committee, which then distributes the money accordingly. After the money is allocated,it is put into separate accounts in the business office. A request for payment for an organization would go through the student government, get approval from John Rubino and then go to the business office. One of the newest clubs is the Afro American Student Organization. Another club is the social committee, which provides such activities as dances, coffee houses, bowling nights and pool tournaments.

The president has a seat on the Board of Trustees for Husson College. This is a VOTING position. Husson College is the only college in the state of Maine that has a student government with a voting position on the board of trustees. President Kevin Carroll enjoys serving on the board and says that it is a great experience for him.

One of Vice President Karin Grant's duties is to send out birthday messages every day. This is important to many people, especially those who are far from home and the people who would remember their birthdays.

So you see, these are some of the things that student government does. If you want to make a difference, vote in the upcoming election or run for an office.

This year's officer are: President, Kevin Carroll; Vice-President, Karin Grant; Resident President/Social Committee Chairperson, David Roussel; Commuter President, Peter Sund; Secretary, Rachel Pooler; Treasurer, Wendy Swett; Advisor, Karl McGaw. Our thanks go to all of them for doing such a great job.

Working on the Student Government Bulletin Board are: (L to R) Rachel Pooler, Secretary; Wendy Swett, Treasurer; David Roussel, Social Committee Chairperson/Resident President.

The Greek Side

The sisters of Delta Sigma Delta would like to welcome and congratulate the new sisters of 1990:

Donna Belanger
Kathy Davis
Carolyn Dorsey
Lori Hallet
Kim Tate
Michelle Lindsay
Jill MacGregor
Jackie Olzewski
Lynn Perrault

Delta is proud to announce that our 1st Annual Alumni Banquet, held at the Holiday Inn on Saturday, March 31, was a great success! Several alumni attended along with current sisters and their dates. An alumni and a current slide show were presented bringing back many memories for everyone!

The following Sunday, Delta participated in the Greek Games, and took First place overall. A lot of the alumni came and supported us, which we greatly appreciated.

On Friday, April 6, Delta held their annual BLUE HAWAIIAN in the Arrowhead Lounge. The action began at 9:00 p.m. with a D.J. playing until midnight. We hope everyone who attended enjoyed themselves!

Delta held a car wash on Sunday, April 8, at the State Street 7-11 in Bangor.

Though Delta is doing some fun things, we are still working hard on social service projects and fundraisers. Every Wednesday night two sisters volunteer their time in babysitting for the Parents Anonymous. This is going really well, and the sisters enjoy spending time with the kids every week. We are also participating in Earth Day, picking up newspapers every Thursday and delivering them to the Library room.

A few other social service projects are coming up soon.

TAU EPSILON PHI

The brothers of Tau Epsilon Phi would like to thank J.K. and his maintenance crew for all of their help on our floor this year. We have accomplished many improvements like the repainting of our hallway and entrance and the remodeling of our bathroom. We hope to continue to work with J.K. in the future on other floor improvements.

We would also like to take this time to congratulate our three new brothers; Kent Winchell, David Gordan, and Andy Duprey. They have already shown that they will be excellent TEP brothers.

Like most of the Greek organizations we have a lot planned for the month of April. We will begin the month with elections for new officers and wardens. We also have many car washes planned for the weekends. The annual TEP banquet and brotherhood outing are planned for later on this month. As our final fund raiser for the year, we hope to get together with our brothers from the University of Maine and hold an event at the Orono TEP house.

If you have any questions or are interested in seeing the improvements that have been made on the TEP floor, feel free to come up any time. 7th level Hart room 712.

All In A Day's Work - A Workshop on Enhancing Communication Skills

Thursday, April 12, 1990 or
Wednesday, April 18, 1990

Honest, direct communication takes self-awareness, courage, and responsibility.

This workshop is designed to strengthen your communication/problem solving skills. Our approach is fun, experiental and highly interactive.

Through exercises and discussion participants will have an opportunity to:

- gain a basic understanding of personal rights and responsibilities;
- learn the importance of honest, direct communication in meeting personal and organizational needs;
- understand tools and strategies for effective problem solving: how to create/negotiate win/win situations;
- recognize and honor diversity in personality and communication styles

Kevin Barnes: "My Turn"

BBB: Tell us a little about yourself.
BARNES: I graduated from Presque Isle High School in 1988. From there I was on my way to a three-year stint in the Army. If J.K. hadn't recruited me to play baseball, then I would be in Kansas with Toto right now.

BBB: Why aren't you playing baseball anymore?
Barnes: I played my freshman year. About a fourth of the way into the season I was dismissed from the team for exposing my gluteus maximus to several students at a Chief Week dance. I decided not to pursue another year of baseball for personal reasons. But I do miss it though.

BBB: Is it true that you had to sign a contract stating you can't drink or be involved in any incidents or you would be removed from the resident halls?
BARNES: Yes, this is true. I wasn't too pleased but I have lived up to all my expectations.

BBB: Does the student life administration have something against you?
BARNES: I don't feel they have anything against me. It's just that I seem to get blamed for things I don't do. It's just being in the wrong place at the wrong time. They are trying to purify Husson and my personality and straight forwardness clashes with their goals.

BBB: Some say you've grown up since boot camp this summer. Is this so?
BARNES: I spent 14 weeks in Missouri this summer for Army boot camp (basic training). It helped me mature as a person and respect the things I have as an American.

BBB: Are you in the National Guard now?
BARNES: Yes, I've been in the National Guard for almost two years. I enjoy it, it feels good to serve my country. It also helps out tremendously with Husson's high cost. They will pay for most of it. I strongly recommend it, not just for the money but for the experience too.

BBB: What is G.D.I.?
BARNES: G.D.I. is just a social group of die hard independants who chose not to pledge a fraternity or a sorority. This creates conflicts since we are not recognized as an elite group of individuals. It mostly consists of 7th level Hart and 2nd level Carlisle but there are numerous others scattered amongst the college. As stated in a recent issue of"The Spectator" if you are going to support G.D.I., on your window, paint it in red.

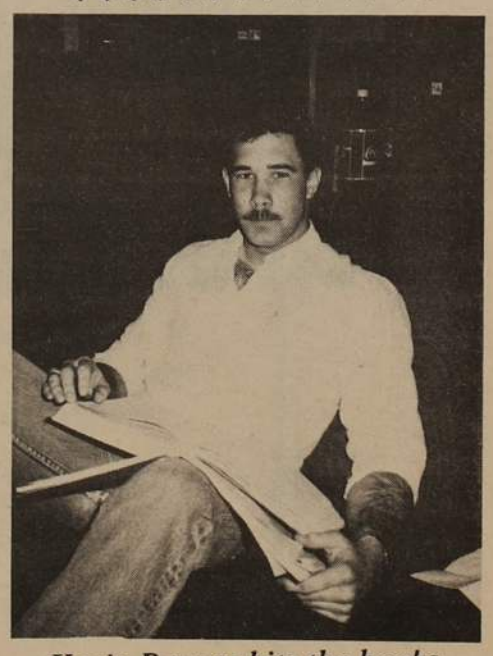

BBB: What is 7th level Hart like?
BARNES: 7th level is one of the best floors on campus. There is TEP at one end and MEX at the other end and GDI right in the middle. We all get along real well and have fun. Anytime you have Bruce, Lloyd, Pete, and Scott on your floor it's an endless laugh.

BBB: Is you reputation of being a "Bad-*#!!", "Rowdy Hell raiser" true?
BARNES: Last year, yes. I feel I have calmed down a lot and now I would have to say definitely NO. I think people feel this way because of things I did in the past, which will go unquoted. Once people get to know me they'll find that I'm very easy to get along with and very trustworthy. Just don't step on my Redwings.

Lady Braves Softball 1990

by Liz Russell

The Husson Braves softball team is young, but Coach Pam Hennessey is convinced that the 1990 squad is capable of matching last season's 15-7 record. With only five returning veterans, Hennessey will have to rely on a host of first-year players to fill key positions.

The strength of the 1990 Lady Braves may well be their pitching quality and depth. Senior Robin LeClair and freshmen Crystal Hinton are expected to see considerable action on the mound. Junior Christine Hunter may also be called upon in relief situations. Co-captain LeClair, who will also see some action at second base, is expected to be the team's top offensive threat. Last year, her .327 batting average led the team.

Quality and depth also describe the pitcher's battery mates. Junior veteran Sue Lea will be behind the plate on opening day, but freshmen Darci Collins and Sue Teeney, both all-state catchers, are expected to see action at that position.

Three of the four infield slots are up for grabs by the group of talented first-year players. Veteran Christine Hunter will definitely be at shortstop on opening day. Christine, who has a strong arm and makes few mistakes, is expected to provide leadership to the rookie infielders.

Collin's versatility makes her a viable candidate for any of the infield positions. Hinton and Lea may see action at first while Teeney, a strong hitter, may play first or second. Rookie junior Sheryl Parker will play some second base and outfield.

Freshman Michelle Provencal probably will start at third base. Michelle, who has a quick glove and strong arm, will have to compete with freshman Shelley Young for playing time at that position. Young, a fundamentally sound player, will also see action in the outfield.

The outfield will be anchored by veteran co-captain Lorie Stevens in center. Steven's speed, strong arm, and knowledge of the game are assets which make her invaluable to the squad. Junior Pam Diaz-Rubin returns for the second year to right field. Freshman Angela McPeek and Kim Tate will also see action in the outfield.

One of Hennessey's goals is to return to the district tournament in May. Although the team is young, they will be competitive and Hennessey's goal is, in her mind, "attainable."

Sports Update

by Valerie Tefts

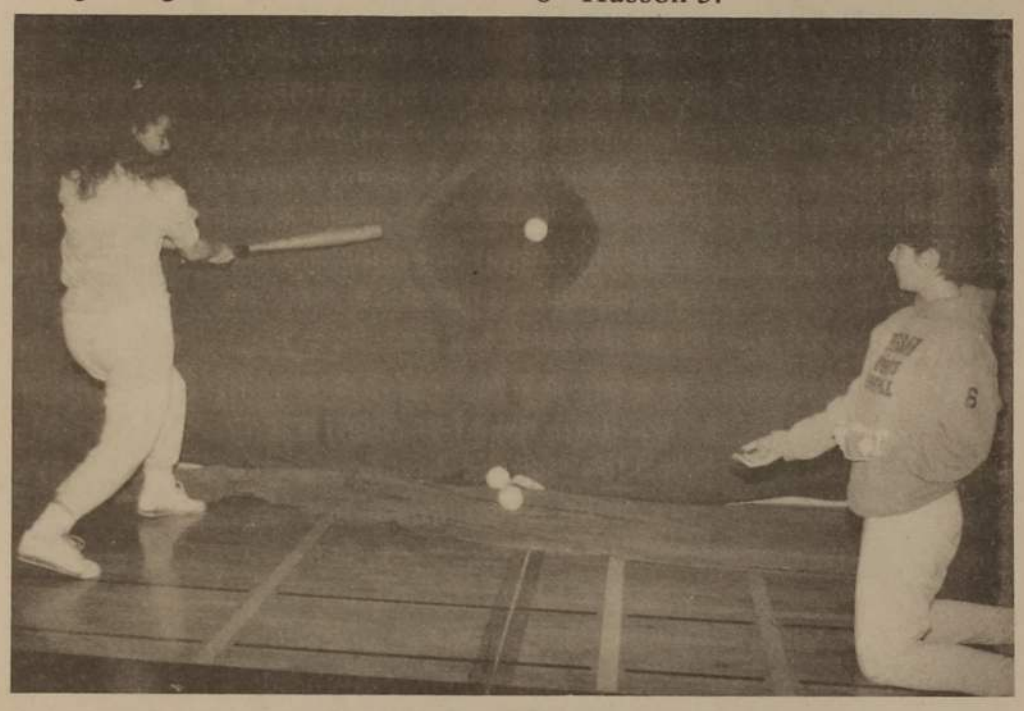

On Thursday April 5, the Husson Women's Softball Team won their season-opening doubleheader against Colby College.

The women's first game was a struggle to the end. Husson had only 1 run against Colby's 3 until the 7th inning, when the Lady Braves showed Colby what they had, gaining 5 runs. Final score: Husson 6 - Colby 3.

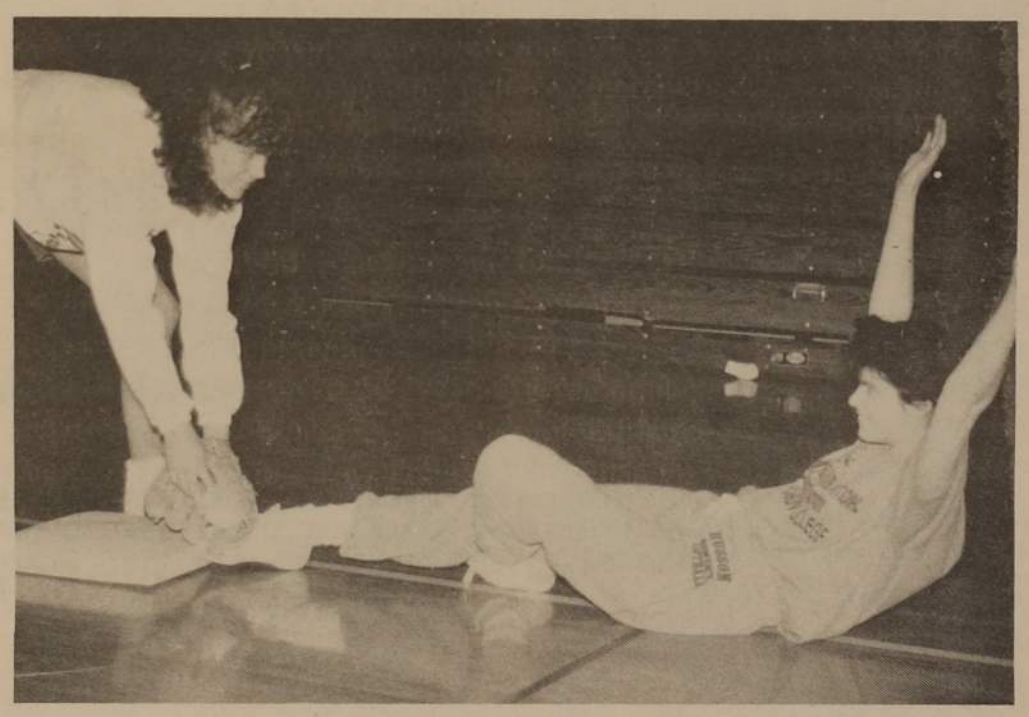

In the second game, Husson put the pressure on Colby again, showing them who was #1. Final score: Husson 12 - Colby 8.

Unfortunately, the Husson Men's Baseball Team wasn't as successful. They too played against Colby College on Thursday April 5. The men's final score was Colby 8 - Husson 3.

The social sport of the 90s is ... Pool

A recent Gallup poll shows pool to be one of the fastest-growing activities around today. In fact it ranks seventh of all leisure sporting endeavors, ahead of jogging, softball and aerobics. And more people are joining the 35 million stick-chalkers in the U.S. every day.

Going out for a game of pool is a world away from what it was a few decades ago. Today there are family billiard parlors where everyone can enjoy the game. And it's become an equally enjoyable dating activity.

Pool is cool. It's featured in magazine ads, movies and recreation rooms. It's a game that is fun for a tyro or a master player, and there's literally no end to development of technique and skill.

Pool and Billiard Magazine says the mainstream player is male, middle-aged, well-schooled and well-heeled with 43 percent of parlor players earning $40,000-plus per year and another 37 percent earning about $25,000. The 18- to 34-year-old age group accounts for about a third of all pool shooters with young female players increasing in visibility at public establishments.

It fills a need for high-quality entertainment without the dangers brought on by alcoholic beverages. Many of the new establishments don't serve liquor.

Further, pool and billiards are a social sport where people interact instead of observing while others entertain them. They participate themselves and do it with their friends and their families.

BRAVES BLAST E.N. 18-7

by Stephen Novak

Friday, the Husson Braves baseball team traveled to Quincy, MA to play a doubleheader against Eastern Nazarene. In the first and only game, due to snow, Husson blasted their way to an 18-7 win.

Jamie Campbell put on a show by hitting in the go-ahead runs with a homerun; he also had a double and a single and 6 rbi's for the game. Campbell's homer came in the top of the third to put Husson up 4-3.

Thanks to excellent hitting and 14 walks given up by E.N. pitchers Husson(5-6) was able to increase their lead.

Jim Palmer had 2 singles and 3 rbi's while Tim Knapp helped with a double, single and 2 rbi's.

Matt Dutille picked up his second win against no losses by pitching 3 1/3 innings and allowing 5 runs, 3 earned. Jamie Campbell then relieved him and he worked 1 2/3 innings on the mound, giving up 2 unearned runs. Eastern Nazarene (0-1) was led by Ed Tierney who hit a long ball and had 3 rbi's, while Cook took the his first loss against no wins.
