A BLEND

of the old...

...into the new...

...On the threshold of a new and exciting era

It was a blend of the old into the new at Husson on the next to last weekend in October, a blend that promises to maintain the momentum of the College's rapid advancement toward broadening goals.

Alumni dating back to the old Bangor Maine School of Commerce on Columbia Street through the buildings on Park Street Hill saw the new campus renewed old acquaintances, heard from this year's seniors, who will be the first to graduate from the new campus, and gained some of the excitement felt by faculty and students about the new Husson.

It was the Fourth Annual Homecoming, by far the biggest and most successful of the four as a growing number of Alumni began truly to appreciate their equal role in the continued growth of their alma mater.

Converging on the outer Broadway location of the fine new buildings of Husson from their homes in Canada, New York, New Jersey, all the New England States and elsewhere, some 200 of the faithful toured the campus, met in fellowship at Friday and Saturday night social occasions, elected officers, and discussed their part in the continued advancement of the College.

After a Friday night gathering at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Court Street at which Alumni enjoyed a Bavarian Octoberfest, featuring a German buffet and a concert by the Stammtisch Band of Bangor, and a Saturday luncheon, the Alumni Association's annual meeting saw the election of officers for 1968-69.

Jac Lynch of Pittsfield, the Association's new president, led the slate of officers presented by the Board of Directors at the meeting. He will be assisted in leading the organization for the next year by Vice President Tony Picard of Veazie and Second Vice President Ruth Stearns of Hampden.

Elected to the Board of Directors for a three-year term were Frank Dawes of Bangor, Frank Barclay of Leeds and Ruth Wishart of Brewer. Chosen for two-year terms were Fred Astle of Portland and Jean Russell of Bangor, while Beverly Kane of Bangor was elected to a one-year term.

Lynch, Dawes, Astle, Barclay, Wishart and Picard.

EVERYBODY WAS on hand for Saturday night's festivities at the Penobscot Valley Country Club, when some 200 attended the annual Alumni Homecoming Dinner-Dance, trying out their dancing skills to the music of Steve Gould's Orchestra.

At the annual meeting, Les Nadeau outlined for the Association the great strides made in the organization of Husson Alumni to take an increasingly greater role in the life of the College, mentioning particularly the work of Dave Huff in New Jersey and Kevin Hanlon in Connecticut in organizing chapters in those states.

President Lynch addressed the group in his first appearance as its head and pledged an every-increasing involvement of alumni during the next year. He said that the College and its Alumni are on "the threshold of a new and exciting era."

The entire weekend left all concerned with a feeling of renewed dedication to the purposes of Husson as an educational institution that will make an even greater contribution to its local community and the larger community that surrounds it than it has already made in the past, as represented by the Alumni who "came home" in October.

IT'S A FAMILY AFFAIR

by JAC LYNCH
Association President

FROM THE FIRST day we entered a class at Husson College we became part of a family. As Alumni, we are as much a part of Husson today as are the students and faculty who, day by day, are helping to make the College a better place. In some way, each of us should ask the question, "What can I do as an alumnus to help?"

Every segment of American society needs loyal and dedicated leadership from individuals who will accept and effectively discharge assigned responsibilities. Involvement clearly indicates concern and noble stewardship. I personally feel the urgency to accept part of this great challenge, and I volunteer my help in promoting Husson College through its Alumni Association. Your Association officers join with me in requesting your time and talents to promote this important work.

Your question, "How can I help?", can be answered in this way. Chapters are the foundation. Volunteer to join your local Chapter, if one is available, and support its programs. Help to locate missing Alumni and persuade them to join and to enjoy the personal satisfaction of helping in a worthwhile effort. At your Chapter meetings pass on ideas which will be beneficial and accept a Chapter office if asked. Offer your services to help carry on a special social function or money raising affair. Feel perfectly justified to contact your Association office to discuss an idea, or to request information. Your Chapter officers need your loyalty and attendance at announced meetings. Promote a plan of action which will make your Chapter unique among all Chapters. The list can go on and on, but enough has been mentioned to get you thinking about your contribution and how it can be carried to fulfillment through "group dynamics."

MUCH HARD WORK has to be done very soon. We need to identify our problems, and then to proceed with appropriate plans. A few basic problems were resolved this past year with complete cooperation from the Administration. They have expressed an interest and have been fundamental in creating a relationship which allows frank discussion of all topics, and a willingness to have the Association plan an independent and supportive role. The Association plans aggressively "to promote the interests of the College and establish mutually beneficial relations between the College and its alumni."

In a few months we will announce several ambitious plans. Success will be determined by the amount of confidence, cooperation and support we receive from you. Let's make this a year of accomplishment.

I accept the responsibility of being your President, and humbly pledge to give my best at a time when personal involvement can be directly related to progress.

BASKETBALL TEAM OFF TO GOOD START

The Husson basketball team, hampered by early-season injuries, is off to a good start in the 1968-69 campaign despite the loss in early going of high-scoring, top rebounder Al Caston.

Caston, sidelined by a heel injury suffered in a scrimmage, returned to the squad, although not in 100% condition, in time for the Paul Bunyan Tournament in early December. The Braves, under new coach Bruce MacGregor, dropped their opener in the tournament to a powerful Western New England combine, but then came from behind to edge Boston State in overtime to go into mid-December action with a 2-1 record. The club took its opener over the University of Maine at Portland quintet.

Coach MacGregor, taking over the reins from Athletic Director Del Merrill this season, is optimistic about the Indians' prospects the rest of the way.

If Caston returns to the form he displayed for the past two seasons, MacGregor believes, the Husson five will do well throughout the remainder of one of the toughest schedules the Braves have ever played.

Backing the 6-5, 195-pound Caston are such veteran standouts as the backcourt duo of Donnie Meyers and Johnnie Sinclair, 6-3 forwards Dick Giroux and Willie Gavett, and leading reserves Bob Leavitt and Percy Christian.

Immediately moving into a leading role is freshman backcourt prospect Kevin Baker of Old Town, who was instrumental in the fine records of his high school team for the past two seasons.

Kevin has shown well, both in the scoring and playmaking departments, in the Indians' first three games of the season

Other squad members include Neil Barrows, Ed Ruchaler, Dave Dunbar and George Watkins. Only three of the squad are under the 6-0 mark in height, Baker at 5-11, Dunbar at 5-10, and Sinclair at 5-11.

MacGregor, whose high school teams at Reading, Mass., Memorial High compiled an enviable 90-20 mark, hopes to continue a winning tradition at Husson, where Coach Del Merrill's outfits racked up a 197-86 record over the 13 years of his tenure, when the Braves had only two seasons under the .500 mark.

MacGregor is being very capably assisted by Keith Mahaney, former Fort Fairfield and University of Maine star who coached successfully at Greenville and Boothbay before accepting the position at Husson. Mahaney's frosh quintet opened its season with an easy victory over the Eastern Maine Vocational Technical Institute.

Meanwhile, Athletic Director Merrill has told news media that the new physical education building should be ready for basketball action sometime in January, possibly after the Christmas recess.

The new facility, which also includes a magnificent new Olympic size swimming pool, will provide a complete array of indoor athletics for both men and women at Husson. Its completion is eagerly awaited by students and by the physical education staff.

SCIENCE AT HUSSON

"To enable the student to better understand and cope with his environment..."

"A PERSON CAN'T watch TV intelligently today without some understanding of science."

T. J. Anderson, chatting in his office in a corner of what he calls "a combination preparation room and storeroom" at one end of a laboratory complex for sciences at Husson, was discussing one of his favorite subjects.

The professor of science was talking about the role of science in preparing Husson students for positions in the business world.

"This is a scientific and technological age," he said, "and the well-informed citizen should be able not only to appreciate but to understand underlying principles."

But, beyond this rather basic reason, why is Husson offering a fairly broad selection of science courses for students entering business administration or secretarial work?

"Although this is a college of business, it is above all an educational institution," said Mr. Anderson. "Any educational institution should provide an education that will enable the student to better understand and cope with his environment."

Establishing this, Mr. Anderson pointed out that there are also some very practical aspects of the new science curriculum at Husson.

"Businesses today want people who are versatile enough to cope with any situation," he pointed out. "Science, by its very definition, is systematic inquiry, and systematic inquiry has direct application to business practices."

THE HUSSON scientist explained that a growing number of businesses have recognized the need for this kind of training among their employees and are sending their people back to school to broaden their science background.

"If colleges like Husson provide these courses," he maintained, "our graduates will be more valuable employees when they get their degrees."

Among the courses offered in science at Husson are biology, anatomy, histopathology, laboratory techniques, chemistry, the history of science, and physical science.

The courses in anatomy, histopathology and laboratory techniques are required of all medical secretary students at the College.

"If our medical secretaries have training in these areas," said Mr. Anderson, "we'll be turning out not only medical secretaries, but people who could perhaps serve as physician's aides to the doctors who employ them."

Because of this, the lab techniques and a thorough knowledge of medical terminology are stressed in these courses.

Science courses are taught in two well-equipped laboratories, one for chemistry, one for biology, and each providing working space for 24 students. Strict rules of laboratory safety are followed, and safety equipment is close at hand in the preparation room.

"For many of our students at Husson," said Mr. Anderson, "this is their first exposure to science courses with laboratory facilities.

"Since science provides an insight into all those areas generally accepted as part of our culture—the atom, electronics, mechanics, etc.," he concluded, "Husson or any other educational institution would be remiss if it didn't provide this experience."

ALUMNI AT WORK

... in business
... in education

EMMETT R. STEVENS ('48), whose cross country team at Schenck High School in East Millinocket recently captured its second straight state championship in Class M, received a special honor in November when he was named Maine's Teacher of the Year. This is a title sponsored each year by LOOK magazine. Each state names its Teacher of the Year, and from these candidates a National Teacher of the Year is chosen. Emmett is head of the Business Education Department at Schenck. Since winning the Teacher of the Year title, Emmett says, he has heard from former students of his at Schenck and Lee Academy who are now scattered all over the Northeast and in the service both here and overseas.

Colonel Hazel E. Benn '39, receives congratulations from General Leonard F. Chapman, Jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps, after ceremonies in his office that promoted her to the highest rank held by a woman in the armed services of the United States.

HAZEL E. BENN '39, in July became the highest ranking woman officer in the armed services when she was promoted to the rank of Colonel by the Commandant of the Marine Corps in ceremonies in the Commandant's office in Washington, D. C.

Daughter of Mrs. Edith J. Benn and the late Melvin L. Benn of Smyrna Mills, Colonel Benn attended the University of Maine and earned AB and AM degrees from George Washington University after her graduation from Husson.

Before joining the Marine Corps, she taught in the Hodgdon and Fort Fairfield High Schools and worked for a time in the Quartermaster Department at Marine Corps Headquarters. She entered the Marine Corps as an officer candidate in 1943 and was commissioned with the second class of Women Reserve officers trained at Mt. Holyoke College in South Hadley, Mass.

From 1943 to 1946, Colonel Benn was stationed at Camp Lejeune, N. C. She subsequently worked as an education specialist in the Bureau of Naval Personnel until recalled to active duty with the Marine Corps during the Korean War. Since that time she has served consecutively as the head of the Education and Information Section and of the Special Services Branch at Marine Corps Headquarters. Her work includes administration of Marine Corps athletic, recreation, library, absentee voting, Savings Bonds, and Youth Opportunity programs.
