Ross Perot to Speak to the Husson Community

On Thursday, November 16, at 7 p.m in the Campus Center, Ross Perot, leader of the Reform Party and former Presidential Candidate will be speaking. In his only appearance in the Bangor area, Mr. Perot will be addressing how he sees some of the problems in Washington and discussing some of his solutions. He will most certainly be addressing the recent shut down of the federal government and the fact the Democrats and Republicans don't seem to be getting the job done. He will also be telling us about the third party concept and what he hopes will happen with the Reform Party itself. He will discuss the potential for a Reform Party Candidate for President, and the potential to field candidates in the Congressional and Senatorial races in November of 1996. Mr. Perot, in his first visit to Maine since a February speech at the University of Maine at Orono, is also expected to field questions from the audience

Russell Verney, the Executive Director of United We Stand American said about Perot's visit to Husson, "This is a great opportunity for the students at Husson College who are preparing to enter the business world, to better understand the interaction between public policy created by politicians and the business world."

Perot attended public schools in Texas and graduated from the Naval Academy in 1953, where he was class president and chairman of the honor committee. In Maine in the 1992 Presidential election, Mr. Perot finished second in the voting to President Clinton and finished ahead of George Bush. His results in Maine were the best in the nation and he hopes his visit here will help to spark interest in the Reform Party and help them get the signatures they need to get their candidates on the ballot in 1996. Maine, Ohio, and California are the only states that have a deadline for 1995 ballot access. They need to gather 25,565 signatures to get the party on the November ballot. There will be people on hand to answer questions about the Reform Party, and if you wish you can sign a petition here on Thursday night. If you have any questions about this visit, please call Julie Green at 941-7129.

Residence Halls--How Clean Are They?

By theSpectator Staff

Dirty carpets, drippy ceilings, plugged toilets, trash in the bathrooms- these are only some of the many complaints that Husson students have addressed in reference to the Residence Halls. The biggest complaints seems to center around the bathrooms. Residents feel that the bathrooms could stand to be a lot cleaner. From mold in the showers to toilet paper all over the bathroom floor, the problems seem to be endless. The custodians are supposed to mop the floors in the bathrooms, clean the sinks, showers and toilets, and empty the trash everyday. If this is getting done then why are so many students unhappy with its overall appearance.

A shower on 6th level Hart. Students were told that this problem hopefully would be fixed for the spring semester.

In coming to a solution to the problems in the residence halls the Spectator Staff would like to say that it is not our intent to place the blame on the custodial staff. Rather, blame should be placed on the administration of Husson College. Blame needs to be placed and action must be taken in order to rectify the problems.

The picture to the left illustrates a shower stall that students are expected to use. Would you use this shower? Is this the type of environment that resident students should be forced to use?

When questioning students about the condition of the dorms we found very few students

Commissioner Alden Speaks at Business Breakfast

by Jen Bladen

Husson College held a business breakfast on November 9 at 7:30 a.m. in the Dickerman Dining Commons. The topic of this month's breakfast was fish. The guest speaker was Robin Alden. Alden was born and raised in Massachusetts and moved to Maine in 1971. She earned her degree in Economics at the University of Maine. In 1973 she published a newspaper called Commercial Fisheries News. Alden also is the founder of the Maine Fisherman Forum. Her speech was about the new limit to lobster and the possible extinction of salmon. She pointed out that Maine is identified by its coast. There are a lot of people who feel that there is no problem with the fish population or health in the state. But Alden says, "Out of sight, out of mind." Most of Maine's population feels that if you ignore the problem, it will go away. That's not true, especially in this case.

The first topic discussed was lobster. Everyone in Maine knows that Maine is famous for its delecacy, lobster. This past spring, Maine passed a bill setting a limit on the number of lobster traps a person can use at once. The bill has three parts to it. The first part is to limit the number of fish companies allowed to fish. Everyone who will be entering into the fishing business will have to go through a two year apprenticeship. The second part consists of limiting the number of traps allowed to 1200. The average number of traps a company has is 600, this is well under the limit. The reason that the trap limit is so high is to limit the capital of one particular company. The last part of the bill is zone management. This is something that Maine has never had before. This will help cut down on fisherman not taking the responsibility of doing their part to help preserve lobster. This is "an infant version sweeping the industry," says Alden.

The apprenticeship that Alden is hoping for is started through the federal government, then is given to the state. Right now Maine has too many fisherman for too little fish. Thus, it is not a very reliable system. With this system it limits the employment. The limits for employment are: first a restriction on buying and selling of companies. This makes it hard for someone to start a business. Second, a lottery will have to be held to decide who can be in the fish industry, which isn't fair to anyone especially the kids of Maine. Lastly, the apprenticeship will slow down the number of companies being started so fewer jobs are lost. The apprenticeship has not yet been designed but is in the process and should be completed by early to mid spring 1996. It will take a number of years for Maine to get the full effect of the bill because there will be some major changes. Some of these changes include trap tags, which will cost money to the owners and special licenses. The committee for licensing is already pre-qualifying people. Alden's reaction to this is "heart-warming" and she feels "very optimistic".

At the end of September the Federal Government issued a notice that Atlantic Salmon are becoming an endangered species. There are seven rivers and four more that may soon be restricted for salmon fishing. There is some kind of partnership being formed between the state of Maine and the U.S. Government. If the government allows this it will leave the salmon conservation problem open to the state. There are many area businesses directed in the recovery plan. The government has formed a special task force to look into two things: One, to advise and draft a notice to all fisherman, which may have a negative response, and second, to come up with a conservation plan. The plan must include solutions in genetics, forestry, fishing limitations and health risks of poor rivers.

Some of the efforts being made are sharing meetings between federal agencies and the department of agriculture, not escaping the issues at hand and going in depth with research of fish health risks. They are also looking into why fish are leaving and not coming back.

All the work of the Department of Agriculture and the Federal Agencies is a major step. It is the first time the state has worked with the government to prevent the extinction of an animal. Alden also says that Maine seals are on the way to extinction. She also mentioned the conservation of the forestry industry.

Accounting Society Looks Forward to Annual Boston Trip

The Husson College Accounting Society has had a successful semester so far. We have had three meetings in which we have discussed future events and formed committees. At one meeting, guest speaker Bud Vassey spoke to us about the proper professional dress in the business environment.

Jason Higgins, President of the Accounting Society, presents to Lt. Col. Kenneth Simpson, Comptroller and Husson Alumnus of 1968, a Husson T-shirt in appreciation for a recent tour of the Maine Air National Guard Accounting and Defense facilities.

Many students attended the Maine Society of CPA's student night which included socializing, dinner and a speaker. On October 20 fourteen people went to the Maine Air National Guard Base for an explanation of the accounting department there and for a tour of the base.

Future events include the Annual Boston Trip the weekend of November 17-19. Twenty student members and three faculty members will be taking in many of the attractions that Boston has to offer. In order to help raise money for the costs of the trip, members are selling raffle tickets with prizes from local businesses such as Pizza Hut and the Olive Garden. The drawing will take place on Thursday, November 16.

Additional future events include guest speakers, tours, participating in the PBS telethon and the Annual Christmas Party.

The Accounting Society is open to all accounting majors. Anyone who is interested is invited and encouraged to attend our next meeting. Signs telling the time and place will be posted.

Telephone Response Question???

Do you think that the dorms should have access to the internet? If yes, would you be willing to pay a fee to have this service? Please call The Spectator phone at 941-7016 with your response. The results will be printed in the next issue.

It's Showtime!

by Len Lamoreau

The Husson Players are getting ready for performance on the 16, 17, and 18 of November. Everyone is welcome to come and laugh at the Players interpretation of Frank Vickery's "One O'clock from the House."

The story begins with the death of a father and the mourning of one of his daughters. Miriam's not really sad about his death, she's in fact quite excited because this means she gets an inheritance. She tries to act sad so not to appear rude. Margaret, Miriam's sister is also "sad" and "glad" about her father's death for the same reasons. Maureen on the other hand is genuinely sad about her father's passing and really isn't concerned about the inheritance which is ironic since she's dead broke with another baby on the way. The final sister, Mavis just isn't "aware" that her father is dead, probably because she's been in a psychiatric home for most of her life. Mavis is brought home for a visit by cousin Tudor. Margaret and Miriam don't want to take care of her, and Maureen can't so Tudor is tossed in which Miriam loses and has to take care of Mavis for the weekend. When a will is found that day all the inheritance goes to the sister that takes care of Mavis for the rest of her life, opinions change quickly. Mavis isn't the only "strange" person in the play. Cousin Tudor makes an almondless almond cake and Cousin Mansel thinks his shopping cart is "Rover". All this mixes together in a hilarious comedy.

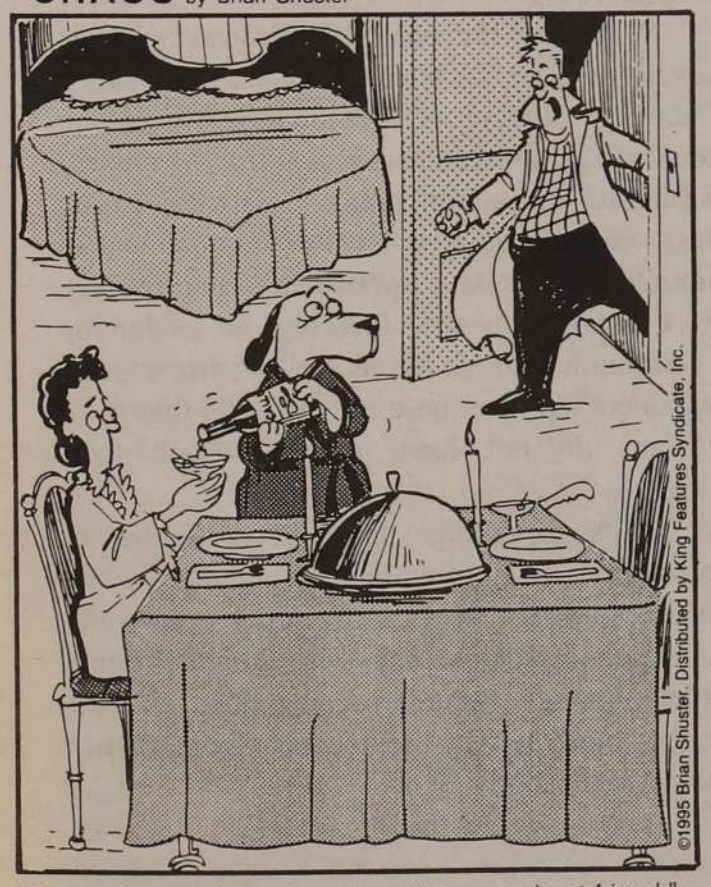

Cast members of "One O'clock from the House" practice during a rehearsal. Come check out the show on November 16, 17 or 18.

Showtimes include: Thursday November 16 - 8 p.m., Friday November 17 - 8 p.m., and Saturday November 18 - 1 p.m.

The Husson College Support Project Arian Committee would like to thank everyone for their support in the recent spaghetti supper. The night was very well attended with 386 students eating in the DDC and 414 coming in from the community. Altogher the benefit supper raised a total of $4562.05.

CHAOS by Brian Shuster

"Oh no, just as I feared . . . My wife . . . my best friend."

The Chaplains Corner

by Rev. Robert T. Carlson

In my last column I wrestled with the myth of rugged individualism. My premise was that none of us is totally self reliant. We depend upon others from the cradle to the grave. In this issue I would like to deal with the concept of "community".

In our culture there is a significant departure from the sense of community that existed in a primarily agricultural society. History points clearly to a sense of isolation that was created during and after the development of the industrial age. Today we have, in many ways, exacerbated that isolation with the coming of the technological age. Electronics (in their many forms) provide an opportunity to withdraw.

We live a life on the fast track! Keeping up with the rapid changes in day to day living is mind blasting!

I would suggest that it is critical for our well-being to get connected with a community. It is in community that we are affirmed, challenged and held accountable.

Husson College is a community that exists not only for academic development but for development of the whole person as well. It is in community that the person is enriched. It is in community that reciprocal affirmation takes place. It is in community that we understand the importance of relationship.

Think about your place in the Husson Community and why it is important to you. I hope you can find real value.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

The weekend before Halloween, we went up to Orono to visit the brothers and help them with their Haunted House. The admission was $1.50 and we ended up making over $300 for Maine Special Olympics. We had a lot of fun scaring all the people who came through the house. Thanks to Kappa Lambda, the girls from 4th level, and anyone else who came to the Haunted House.

Over half the year is over and finals will be here soon. Before you know it all those end of the semester papers will be due. This is when half the campus stays up until 7:00 o'clock in the morning writing that paper you waited to the last minute to do. What a great time of year, NOT!

The weekend of November 4 was our district meeting. It is a chance for the brothers at Husson to meet brothers from other chapters as well as some of the Grand Officers of TKE. It also makes for a great road trip to get out of Husson for a weekend.

Some upcoming events include moving our Alumni Board President, Rick McDougald, into his new house in Bangor. We will also be ringing the bell for the Salvation Army at the Mall for a few days later this month. Our big event for this semester is the TKE Tourney, a basketball tournament held for the local area Big Brothers, Big Sisters.

By the time this article goes out pledging will be over, but we still want to wish the pledges of ETE good luck.

Delta Sigma Delta

Hello everyone!

Well, in the past week, the sisters of Delta Sigma Delta have been very busy preparing for our annual Parent's Weekend which was an excellent success. It was nice to spend some time with our own parents and get the opportunity to see (or meet for the new sisters) the parents of the other sisters. All who attended seemed to really enjoy the evening.

We were also able to help out the Greater Bangor Area Shelter by doing a food drive to help them through the colder months ahead. We plan on attending the Spaghetti Dinner for Project Arian, and participating in the carnival that the Student Government is putting on this Friday. Hope to see you all there!

In closing, we'd like to remind you how the Delta sisters love visitors so come up to the floor anytime. We'd also like to say Good luck to all the ETE pledges - we're all thinking of you.

Haunted House Not Scary Enough

by Samantha Heighes

The second annual Husson Haunted House was held on Halloween night from 9:30pm to 11:30 pm. This event was very well attended, but the general opinion of the event was not favorable. While many people felt the Haunted House was very well decorated, and the workers were in excellent costumes, they thought the house was not scary. While being warned in advance that the event was developed only for adult audiences, students expected a much scarier house. Several students complained of getting fake blood and other stains on some of their clothes.

The Haunted House theme for this year was a "Helllish Hospital". In order to give the apperance of this, the make-up department decorated several students to give them the apperance of being in a hospital after a major catastrophe. In early stages of the Haunted House there was talk of an admission charge of $1 per person, this was cancelled at the last minute. All Haunted House go'ers were allowed in for free.

Within the Haunted House there were several areas that students could reach into grab boxes and collect prizes. Some of the prizes included bubble gum CD's as well as several Halloween Items.

What's up in the house!!!

Is everybody looking forward to the Thanksgiving holiday? I know we are! Since we last wrote, we've been busy with past and future events.

First, we would like to thank all the people who attended, and/or contributed their valuable time and money to the charity basketball game to benefit Project Arian. The Husson Women's Basketball defeated the Bangor Police. Department in a head to head match. The true winner of the event proved to be Arian Haghkerdar. Raising over eight hundred dollars, the night proved to be a success. We would especially like to thank the "Road Runners" for giving a wonderful half-time show.

Second, we are preparing ourselves for the up-and coming annual president and treasurers meeting at New Hampshire College this November 12-14. We are expecting many brothers from Husson to attend.

Finally, we would like to welcome you to movie night in the Kappa lounge on Wednesday, November 15. We will be featuring "Crimson Tide." Show time begins at 9 p.m. The Wednesday following, get ready for "Congo."

We are looking forward to seeing you.

What Are Businesses Looking for Today?

by Josh Scroggins

Recently I have had the opportunity to attend a couple of educational conferences. At one of these conferences, The New England Business Educators Association in Burlington, Massachussettes, I listened to a presentor speak on what she felt the business industry was looking for when hiring new employees. The presentor was of Elizabeth Ryan, Boston Regional Manager of Kelly services.

Ryan began her presentation with some background information on Kelly Services. Kelly Services, which was orginally established as a temporary service that only delt with secretaries, now deals with workers on an individual basis. They place people in all levels and job professions. A large percentage of the Kelly Services work force comes from recent college graduates. Her office, located in Boston, places several Boston area college graduates.

When looking at recent college graduates, her service has a relatively easy time placing students who's grade point average range from a 2.7 to a 3.5. For those students who have GPA's that range from a 3.5 to 4.0 they usually have a harder time. When asked why this was she commented that the majority of students ranging in the 3.5 to 4.0 status are not active enough in student organizations. Without the involvment in organizations and clubs graduates resumes are lacking valuable leadership experience.

In a GPA range of 2.75 to 3.5 there is a large number of students that get very active in student and community sponsored organizations. This involvement makes their resumes stand out and appear more impressive. In todays very competitive job market employers find themselves with too many applications to interview all the candidates. By only looking at the resumes they must choose who they think will be the best people and then offer them interviews.

What does this mean? Is Ryan suggestting that every time an "A" student interviews against a "B-" the "B-" student will get the job? No, infact, the ideal job candidate she said is still a "A" student active in student organizations. The key to job success seems to be your level of involvement in communtiy and school sponsored organizations. These organizations tend to bring out leadership and communication skills, as well as proper time management skills. These are all skills that most companies do not have time to teach their employees.

Husson College has a large number of organizations with membership open to any interested students. On campus there are several organizations students may wish to join. For a complete listing of these organizations and the times they meet, stop by the student activities office in room 132 Peabody Hall.

Your Connection to the Stars....

by Jen Bladen

Aquarius: (January 20 - February 18) - Going on a vacation with a new partner could make or break your relationship. Now is the best time to discuss what you both would expect from each other. This is a good month for setting out to learn something new. Picking up a new skill or trade can always be helpful now and in the future.

Pisces: (February 19 - March 20) - Try to put school and work out of your mind during Thanksgiving break. Your lover may be feeling as if you are more attached to your work and or school, then you are to them. Take advantage of the extra days off and show him/her how much they really mean to you. If there is any truth in this situation I'm sure that your partner will be more than willing to compromise to fix it.

Aries: (March 21 - April 20) - Your superiors can be in a difficult mood. It may be a wise idea to stay clear of them before you do something that you will regret later. Be patient, the mood won't last forever. When they seemed to have calmed down then approach them with your problem. Be open minded when you do. They may not have gotten over their "mood problem."

Taurus: (April 21 - May 20) - A friend may cancel a social engagement on short notice. Give them the benefit of the doubt. Their reason may be legitimate. The facts will come out later, whether or not your suspicions were correct. If you keep your cool before you find out the facts, you won't have to apologize for acting irrational.

Gemini: (May 21 - June 20) - A project that has been going on for a while needs to come to a close. Whether or not the outcome is positive may not be all that important. Just knowing that the project has been completed will make you feel great. Knowing that the job is done will overpower the negative outcome if there is one.

Cancer: (June 21 - July 20) - If you are considering joining a club or an organization to expand your social circle, do your homework before you commit yourself. Look at a club that is recommended from someone who you already know and trust. If you choose to just pick one out of thin air you may risk wasting a lot of time and money.

Leo: (July 21 - August 21) - This could be your month of major progress with your studies. The work you submit is likely to be of top quality and earn the grades you want. This excellent work may give the signal to your professor that you have great potential. This could lead to a promising recommendation letter when the time comes.

Virgo: (August 22 - September 22) - This is a favorable time for investing some money into a new hobby. Money spent this way won't make you feel like you are over indulging in yourself. It can also lead to an inexpensive way to buy friends and family Christmas gifts. If what you make is something everyone loves, make more of them to give as gifts. It will also give you something to do.

Libra: (September 23 - October 22) - You are waiting to receive past-due recognition. Your cheerful, upbeat approach to problems starts to rub off on co-workers and students. Someone who panics at the littlest level of stress may benefit the most from this. Offer your advice to someone who asks for your opinion, but, don't go overboard. Only offer your advice, don't tell them what to do, or how to do it. You could make them even more confused about the situation.

Scorpio: (October 23 - November 22) - Family may be at the top of your responsibility list. This may include calling or visiting a family member whom you have nothing in common with. Remind yourself that family is important. No matter what you do your family will almost always be there for you. Don't lose that family tie. You may regret it later on in life.

Sagittarius: (November 23 - December 20) - Aim for balancing pleasure and work. You may feel the urge to back out of a get together. But, by doing this you may hurt someone's feelings. Try to reach a compromise that will satisfy both of your wants and needs. Your wants and needs are just as important as everyone's around you. If they have a hard time making a compromise remind them of that.

Capricorn: (December 21 - January 19) - Combine your tact with your firmness. Refuse to bite if the bait isn't something you like. This may cause some disputes but it will end with a positive outcome. Be prepared to debate the issue at hand. Stick to the facts and refuse to give in on something you don't believe in. This would just show weakness and may lead the other person to take advantage of you.

Commuters Discuss Smoking Issues

Commuter President Jeff Emro held another commuter meeting on November 8. The attendance at the meeting was down, but a lot was discussed. Many issues were brought to the attention of the president such as parking, security, lighting and smoking. Smoking is the newest issue to be brought up. Jeff asks that smokers please use the ash trays and to not stand in front of the doors. If the ash trays are not used and cigarette butts continued to be thrown on the ground a campus wide smoking ban will be enforced.

Commuters are also planning to have a dance. The theme has not yet been decided. The dance will be held on December 8 from 7-12. The dance will be a BYOB and ID's will be checked at the door. The dance is only open to the commuter students and their guests. Commuters are asked to dress properly. We would like to make the dance semi-formal meaning no jeans with holes and no tee-shirts.

There are several committees for the dance. If you are interested in helping please contact Jeff Emro or Jen Bladen in the Student Government office or the Student Center.

The next commuter meeting is December 6 in Kominsky at noon. All commuters are encouraged to please attend. The commuter meetings are for commuter students to voice their opinions and views of any issues.

Some companies demand experience. We offer it.

Women's Team Works Hard to Capture Conference Championship

by: Steph Freeman

The Husson Women's Basketball Team begins this season as the defending Maine Athletic Conference Champions. The Braves Head Coach, Kissy Walker, stated that the team's goal is to work hard all season and to win the Conference Championship for the second year in a row. The Braves lost three starters from last year but the team still has a lot of depth, especially in the backcourt.

Junior Beth Miller practices her foul shooting ability during preason play.

Leading the way for the Braves is 6'0 senior center, Tara Leavitt and also playing center for the Braves is 6'0 senior Becky Moholland. Other key returnees include two juniors, 5'10 forward Beth Miller and 5'6 guard Sue Ann Allen. Coach Walker will look to these women to be key contributors to the team. Other returning players include 5'5 guard Jen Russ, 5'7 guard Angeline Grant, 5'9 forward Jill Emerson, and 5'6 guard Amanda Pomerleau. Joining the veteran's will be freshmen guard/forward, from Schenk High School, Carrie Cram. Carrie was a first team All-State Selection for high school basketball last year. Another newcomer is a transfer from New Hampshire College, Emily Walker. The 5'10 Walker will be playing forward for Husson. Other newcomers to the Husson Basketball program include freshmen guard Stephanie Lumbart and freshmen forward Kim Palmer.

The women have a strong nucleus of players this year, including both newcomers and returnees. The only question for the Braves seems to be how well they will gel together as a team but it looks very promising. Coach Walker, who is going into her seventh year coaching at Husson, stated, "We hope to improve game by game and focus on each individual opponent."

The women's season starts off with a tough contest Thursday, November 9 versus St. Francis Xavier.

Cheering Begins Again at Husson

by: Steph Freeman

Cheerleading has returned to Husson College. Last year the program was cancelled due to lack of participation. There have been many changes in the program and it looks as though the cheerleaders will have a very successful season. The biggest change for the Braves is their new coach Karen Charpentier. Charpentier has coached cheering at John Bapst High School for the past seven years. The squad consists of eight people, 7 women and one man. The strength of the man on the squad will give the women more opputunities to perform varieties of difficult stunts. Even though the Cheerleaders will not be traveling to away games this year, they hope to work had and improve so they can travel with the basketball teams next year. When asked what the strengths of the squad are Freshman JoAnna Williams replied, "We have a lot of talent coming from each individual cheerleader. It helps that everyone on the squad has previous cheering experience. Everyone seems to have something original and unique to bring to the squad.

Freshman Mandi Martel also responded, "We have a lot of potential to make a great squad. Our first and most important concern is to involve the crowd to cheer on our Husson Basketball players. We also hope to bring enthusiasm and excitement to all of the games."

The first game the squad will be cheering at will be the Paul Bunyan Tournament on November 18 and 19. Come join the cheerleaders and support the basketball teams.

Husson College Intramurals

by: Steph Freeman

Fuzz n' Stuff. What's the deal. Coed naked. These are just some of the original names of teams that are participating in Intramural Volleyball. Intramurals are a way for students at Husson to have fun and play a sport they enjoy. Bob Ackley, who is new to the Husson coaching staff, is in charge of the intramural programs. Ackley stated that there are many people playing intramural volleyball but only two teams signed up for the intramural football program. The playoffs for intramural volleyball start Monday, November 20, the second round on Thursday, November 30, semi-finals on Monday, December 4, and the final match will be on Tuesday, December 5. Intramural sports are a really fun way to meet new people and to learn how to work together as a team.

Men's Basketball Suffers Tough Loss

by: Steph Freeman

The Husson College Men's Basketball Team traveled to Antigonish, Nova Scotia on November 3 and 4, to play in the St. Francis Xavier Basketball Tournament. The Braves opened their season at the tournament with a game against Concordia College. In the first half of the game the Braves played hard but found themselves with a 43-40 deficit when the half ended. The Braves came out fired up in the second half but still could not catch up to Concordia. The Braves lost their first game of the season by 10; Concordia 81, Husson 71. Senior Captain Rick Sinclair led the Braves with 19 points while fellow Captain Brian Jefferson netted 18 and freshman guard Mike McCaffrey contributed 11.

The next day, the Braves played the hosts of the tournament, St. Francis Xavier. Like the game before Husson played tough defense in the first half but stayed behind for the rest of the game. The final score was St. Francis Xavier 99, Husson 79. Captains Brian Alley and Brian Jefferson combined for 32 points while freshman forward Chris Funk added 13. When asked how he thought the team played in the tournament, Coach Warren Caruso stated, "We still have a lot of things that we need to work on. The team has worked hard in practice all week and is improving day by day. We hope to do better in upcoming games." The men's next game will be November 15, at 7:30 p.m v.s. the University of Maine at Fort Kent. The men will be hosting the Paul Bunyan Tournament on November 18 and 19 in the Newman Gymnasium.

Rape Awareness Held At Husson

by Jen Bladen

It was Six o'clock p.m., and Sue had just started getting ready for her date. She was wearing a short black dress that showed off her womanly figure. Her date for the evening, Tom a college senior in a local fraternity. Although she had only known Tom for about a week, he seemed like a great guy.

She was ready very quickly and soon Tom was knocking on the door to pick her up. When she questioned him about the date Tom replied with a very confident answer of "an exciting evening was planned." There exciting evening began with a party at Tom's Fraternity house. A party that Sue considered at the time to be one of the best Frat parties she had ever been to. There was plenty of music and lots of alcohol. By about 11:00 p.m. Sue was feeling "pretty good." She had been drinking pretty heavily, but was not completely drunk.

Tom decided to bring her on a tour of the house that ended up in his bedroom. Once in the room he locked the door, he said it was so they could talk in private. Sue felt a little uneasy but, at first, all they were doing was talking. Soon the talking turned into much more. It finally came to a point where Sue said "Stop." Tom continued, and what started as one of the best parties Sue had ever been to, ended in the worst day of her young life.

Unfortunately what you just read is an all to common event on college campuses. Rape is any sexual act committed without consent. During the week of November 6- 10, Husson College held a Rape Awareness Week. Everyday during the week a table was set up in the Student Center with pamphlets, flyers, pins, buttons and information on ways to prevent rape and what to do if you have been raped.

Husson College has an escort service. The escort service is sponsored by the Security department, and is available to ALL students. For more information about the escort service contact the security office. The service is for those who feel threatened or would like to be walked to there car or dorm room with a security officer. There are several area rape services such as The Spruce Run, The Rape Response, and Husson offers personal counseling and a student health center. The Rape Response Service has a toll free, 24 hour hot line number. 1-800-310-0000.

Movie Review

by Jaime Maynard

The movie "Powder" is based on a young man who was born with telekenetic powers. After his last living relative passes on he is left by himself to live. He is found by the town sheriff and the town social worker who takes him to a boys home. He is called a freak, but no one really knows his gift.

This film shows you not to judge a book by its cover. There is more to a person than just what meets the eye. I recommend this film to everyone and I hope you go see it. I give it two thumbs up!

Dirt in the Dorms

who were satisfied with their over ail condition. In fact, there was a large number of students that mentioned if they were allowed to move off campus they would. The administration needs to take a look at the environment it forces resident students to live in. if thev feel it is an inadequate environment then they should allow students to move off campus or make the necessary repairs.

John Rubino, the Dean of Student Affairs admits that the custodians are understaffed right now, having only five custodians to clean all three residence halls. Rubino also stated that Husson is now in the process of hiring more workers. He believes that the biggest cleaning problem in the dorms is on the weekends. The dorms go for two and a half days without being cleaned. Once the custodians have a full staff this problem should easily be solved.

It is true the weekends do take their toll on the bathrooms, but what about Monday through Friday they are not clean then either.

The Spectator Staff would also like to recognize that some of the problems in the residence halls are caused by students carelessness. Some students do not clean up after themselves, thus leaving more work for custodial crews. However we would like to say that the major problem still lies in the lack of attention adminstration focuses on residential life.

We welcome any comments that students, faculty, or staff members may have about this story or any other story. If someone feels that we did not give an adequate description of the residence halls please feel free to respond by writing a letter to the Editor.
